The lafe Mr. S. Whitney Phonix, who was a trusted in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York city, in which he always took a deep interest, has left in his will to that institution the art collections which it was his great pleasure during many years to gather. To the museum he has left all his statuary, oil paintings, drawings in wateroolor and crayon, embroileries, framod engravings, ditheraphs, photographs (excepting those relating to the history of the city of New York), lacquer ware, carvings in ivory, wood or metal; jade or presons stones, brouges, enamels, rock crystal and glass, porcelain and faience, coins, silverware and meades. Mr. Phenix has also made valuation of Natural History and the New York Historical Society.

PREFACE.

In sending forth this work, which has cost me much time and labor during the last ten years, I wish to acknowledge, to the fullest extent, my obligation to Mr. D. WILLIAMS PATTERSON, of Newark Valley, New York, who has been my assistant since 1873. Not only has he acted as my amanuensis in preparing for the printer the vast mass of crude material gathered by myself since 1867, but he has also added largely to the bulk and value of the book by his own researches, especially in the female lines. He has, moreover, examined on my behalf the records of almost every town of importance in southern Connecticut and the eastern part of Long Island, acting at all times with intelligence, rare conscientiousness and indefatigable industry. Much of such merit as the work may be adjudged to possess should justly be ascribed to the labors of this accomplished genealogist. Thanks are also due to Mr. John A. Boutelle, of Woburn, Mass., who was of some assistance to me in the earlier part of my task.

THE WHITNEYS OF ENGLAND.

Whitney, as a surname, owes its origin to the ancient, but obscure, parish 'Etymology. of Whitney, 2 on the western confines of Herefordshire, near the border of Wales. It lies in the valley of the river Wye, which is here a mountaintorrent, subject to sudden and destructive freshets. This circumstance affords a probable explanation of its name-Whitney being perhaps derived from the Anglo-Saxon words hwit, white, and ey, water, 3 and so literally meaning white water.

But more ambitious etymologies of the name are not wanting. The Rev. Dr. Giles, in his history of Witney and the neighboring parishes, in Oxfordshire, says: "But, if Witney received any fresh peculiarity of character from the Saxons, it certainly takes its name from the occupation of that busy and plodding race of men. The Witan-eye, or, as it is also written in the Anglo-Saxon or old English dialect, Witan-ige, evidently signifies the island of the wise men, or of the Parliament.4 . . . Thus the word Witney means, etymologically, Parliament Isle, though no record has been handed down to us to tell for what reason such a name was given. There is a large house still named Parliament House, at the corner of the Crofts Lane, which, to the minds of some, conveys a tradition concerning the etymology of the name Witney."

Dr. Thomas Wright, the eminent Anglo-Saxon scholar, made other suggestions: 5 "I think Dr. Giles's derivation of Witney, in Oxfordshire, a very probable one. Some meeting of the witan, or leading men of the district, had probably been held there, and the island had been named

This sketch is mainly a reprint from Rev. Henry Green's Introductory Dissertation to his reproduction of Geffrey Whitney's Choice of Emblemes, London, 1866, with additions from a pamphlet on The first known use of Whitney as a surname, published at Boston, Mass., in 1875, by Henry Austin Whitney, Esq.

2 Not to be confounded with Witney, in Oxfordshire, so famous for its manufacture of woollen goods. But possibly both names are the same in meaning; and they have not always been differently spelled. Witney appears in ancient records as Wittney, Witenie, Witeney, Witteneye, Wytney, Wytney, Wyteney, Wytteneye, Whiteneye, Whitteneye, Whitney; and

Whitney we find also written Whiteney, Whyteneye, Witenie, etc.

3 Notes and Queries, 5th Series, Vol. VI, p. 119. Other examples in Herefordshire are Whit-bourn, the white brook, Whit-church, the white cyrc (church), and Whit-ton, the white town—the last of which occurs in six other places in England.
4 By "parliament," in this connection, should be understood merely an assemblage of the witan, or wise men, of the folc or shire, and not the great national council of the Anglo-Saxons, or Witena-gemote (in which witena is the genitive of witan), as it was termed.

from it, like what is now called Magna Charta Island, in the Thames. But the great difficulty in fixing the derivation and meaning of these local names arises from the circumstance that the name is, in far the majority of cases, derived from that of a Saxon possessor of the land. I should think Whitney is not the same thing as Witney; it has either something to do with White, or it perhaps contains a man's name, as Hwitenes-ege, the island belonging to Hwitene."

There is certainly no improbability in supposing that ige or ege, signifying island, was the termination of the Herefordshire Whitney, situated as it was on the river Wye, and at times overflowed by it. Indeed the old church and rectory were entirely washed away by the mountain torrents

Whitneys of Whitney.

There seems to be no record of Whitney, in Herefordshire, prior to Domesday Book, which places it in the hundred of Elsedune and spells the name Witenie.2 In the general distribution of land among the followers of The Conqueror, it fell to the lot of Turstin the Fleming (Turstinus Flandrensis), the son of Rolf, who, besides his possessions in Herefordshire, held lands in Hampshire, Dorsetshire, Berkshire, Somersetshire, Devonshire, Gloucestershire, Buckinghamshire and Wiltshire. 3 Nothing further is known of him, except that his wife was named Agnes and that his son, Sir Eustace (Eustacius miles), was called, from the Herefordshire hamlet, Lord of Whitney (dominus de Whiteney), and so founded the family of De Whitney. The particle was gradually dropped from the name, in some cases as early as the twelfth century; and it has long since entirely disappeared.

The parish church of Whitney is about four miles from The Hay in Brecon, Wales, and seventeen miles from Hereford. The parish contains nearly 1500 acres, the chief owners being Tomkyns Drew, Esq., and the Rev. Spenser Phillips. In the old time it was a portion of the longstretching debatable ground, within which were one hundred and forty-one little lordships, often at war with each other, and "amenable only to their several feudal chiefs." It was not included in any of the three adjoining counties, until in 1535-by act of parliament for the incorporation of England and Wales-Huntington, Clifford, Winforton, Eardesley, and Whitney were united into the hundred of Huntington. The castle of Whitney, the family stronghold, stood on the north bank of the Wye, and is now represented by a group of mounds and also by Whitney-court, the residence of the present proprietors.

Pencombe.

Agnes, widow of Turstin, had also estates in the parish of Pencombe, in the same county—one hide (about 120 English acres) of which she and her son, Sir Eustace de Whitney, bestowed upon the Church of St. Peter, at Gloucester, "free from all tax, in the time of the abbot Reginald." 1

In the reign of Henry III (1216–72), Pencombe was stated to consist of fifteen hides of land, one moiety of which was held by John de Whytene of Robert Tregoz, and the other moiety by Thomas de Hemegane of Robert de Whytene, by military service, and both of the honor of

In the earlier times, when Bohuns, Mortimers, and the bishops of Hereford convulsed the whole county, and overshadowed even the royal authority, little trace of the Whitneys appears upon record; yet, in A.D. 1306, a Eustacius de Whyteneye was knighted at the same time with a Corbet, a Lacy, and a Marmyon; and, previous to that, the same Eustace, in 1277 and 1280, acted as patron of the living of Pencombe, and in the latter year presented a Roger de Whitney. 4 In 1342 W. D. de Witenie was the incumbent; in 1353, Baldwin de Whitney; and after 1378, Eustacius Whitney. Among the patrons of this living, at various times from 1353 to 1590, were Robert de Whitney, 1353; Baldwin de Whitney, 1357; Robert Whitney, Knt., 1419 and 1428; Robert Whitney, 1539; then the Crown, during the minority of a Robert Whitney; and again, in 1567, a Robert Whitney, Knt.; and lastly James Whitney, Knt., in 1590.

In 1393 John Whitney was a portionary, or prebend, in Broxash Hun-

The name of "Robertus Whiteney, Chivaler," was returned in the list of gentry, &c., in this county, made by commissioners in 1434, 12 Henry VI.

Survey of Domesday, quoted in Rev. John Duncumb's Collections toward the History and Antiquities of the County of Hereford, Vol. II, pp. 149, 150-1. Unfortunately the author received such scant encouragement that he did not complete the second volume; and the collections for the hundred of Grimsworth, in which Whitney was included, were never printed. As originally published, the second volume contained 318 pages; "but when the stock was sold off, about 1849, it passed into the hands of Tho. Thorpe, the bookseller, who continued the work from the author's MS. to page 358, and added an index of 10 pages." (See Lowndes' Bibliographer's Manual). Mr. W. H. Cooke, a County-couri judge, wrote and printed, a few years ago, a continuation of the history to page 402 of the second volume, thereby completing that volume. It seems uncertain whether he had access to Duncumb's MSS. These were sold, after the death

In the offices of sheriffs of their county, knights of the shire in parliament, and justices in the commission of the peace, the name Whitney may be traced in Herefordshire from Henry V (1413) to George III (1799).

Thus of Sheriffs of Herefordshire there have been: 1

Robert Whitney, 1377-8, 1 Richard II. Robert Whitney, 1413-4, 1 Henry V. Robert Whitney, Knt., 1427-8, 6 Henry VI. Robert Whitney, Knt., 1432-3, 11 Henry VI. Robert Whitney, 1436-7, 15 Henry VI. Robert Whitney, 1475-6, 15 Edward IV. James Whitney, Knt., 1573-4, 16 Elizabeth. James Whitney, Knt., 1585-6, 28 Elizabeth. Eustace Whitney, 1595-6, 38 Elizabeth. Robert Whitney, Knt., 1638-9, 14 Charles I.

Among the Knights of the Shire, in parliament, we find:

Eustace de Whitney, 1312-13, 6 Edward II. Eustace de Whiteney, 1351-2, 25 Edward III. Robert Whitteney, 1377, 51 Edward III. Robert de Whitteney, 1378-9, 2 Richard II. Eustace Whitney, 1467-8, 7 Edward IV. Robert Whitney, 2 Knt., 1558-9, 1 Elizabeth.

See Gent. Mag. for 1847, p. 484.

The following legend, explanatory of the Whitney crest, was received from a correspondent; but the author, after considerable research, has been unable to discover its authority, and is disposed to consider it apocryphal.

Sir Randolph de Whitney, the grandson of Eustace (founder of the name), accompanied Richard, Cœur de Lion, to the Crusades, and distinguished himself greatly by his personal strength and great courage. On one occasion he was sent by Richard on a mission to the French commander; and, as he was leaving the British camp, the brother of Saladin (whom he had twice before defeated) followed him, with two Saracens in his company, and riding around a small hill, suddenly made a furious attack upon the English knight. De Whitney defended him-self with the greatest vigor, but his assailants were gaining upon him when a furious Spanish bull, which was feeding near the scene of conflict, was attracted by the red dress of the two Saracens, and made so furious an attack upon them that they were diverted from their intended prey, and sought safety in flight. Sir Randolph soon succeeded in wounding his single assailant, whom he left for dead; and then overtaking the two Saracens, he dispatched them, and proceeded upon the mission of the king. According to the superstition of that time, Sir Randolph attributed the event to the especial interposition of the Virgin, a medal of whom, consecrated by the Pope, he had continually worn on his breast. On his return to England, he erected a chapel to the Virgin, which was called Our Lady of Palestine Oratory, the walls of which remain to this day, adjoining the grounds of the ancient family mansion.

As a matter of course, the name Whitney occurs in the lists of gentlemen in the commission of the peace for Herefordshire; as, temp. Elizabeth, Eustace Whitney; about 1673, Thomas Whitney, of Whitney; 1 in 1799, James Whitney, of Norton Canon, related to the family of Whitney-court.²

The Śir Robert Whitney, Knt., of King James's and of Charles's reign, had four sons who all died without issue, and four daughters to whom the estate descended. They all married, and enjoyed shares in the property. Robert Rodd, the only son and heir to Thomas Rodd, married Hannah Whitney, one of the four daughters, and conveyed her share to Robert Price, of Foxley, by whom it was sold to William Wardour. The latter acquired the rest of the estate, and built the present Whitney-court, and also, in 1740, Whitney church, to replace the one swept away, ten years before, by a flood of the Wye—a calamity which involved the destruction of all the old family monuments but one, that to the memory of Williams, of Cabalva, in the neighborhood, who married into the Whitney family. Mrs. Bourne held the property from William Wardour, and left it to her godson, the grandfather of the present owner, Tomkyns Drew, Esq., and of his brother, the Rev. Henry Drew, rector of the parish.

The present representative of the Herefordshire Whitneys is Thomas

Whitney, Esq., of Bath. 3

The Whitneys were also established at a very early day in Cheshire, and had a seat at Coole Pilate, a township in the wide-spread parish of Acton, near Nantwich, almost as soon as those of Herefordshire were settled upon the Welsh border. "The manor" of Coole Pilate, say the Lysons, 4 writing in 1810, "which was anciently parcel of the barony of Wich-Malbank, is now the property of Lord Kilmorey: in this township were two halls, with considerable estates annexed, one of which belonged to the Whitneys, who became possessed of it in the reign of Richard II (1377–99) and had a seat there for many generations: this estate was purchased in 1744 of Mr. Hugh Whitney, by whose death the family is supposed to have become extinct. The chieftains. His exploits are narrated in "The Jacobite robber. Account of the famous life and memorable actions of Captain J. Whitney, London, 1639.

Whitneys of Cheshire.

3 Strong's Heraldry of Herefordshire, p. 109. This book was published in 1848; and the statement may not be true at present.

The only Whitney mentioned in Walford's County Families, edition of 1876, is Thomas Annesley Whitney, of Merton, Enniscorthy, Co. Wexford, Ireland, who is without male issue.

4 Magna Brit, Vol. II, Cheshire, p. 473.

purchaser was Mr. John Darlington, whose daughter brought it in marriage to Henry Tomkinson, Esq., of Dorfold, the present proprietor:

the hall is occupied by a farmer." I

The Vale Royall of England 2 testifies to the fact which the Lysons record. It describes where the brook Combrus, from which Combernere has its name, "meeteth shortly with the water of Weever, about Broomhall, a great Township," "near whereunto is scituate a Demean of the Whitneys, called the Mannour of Cole Pilate."

Manor of Coole Pilate.

This manor, in the parish of Acton, was the homestead of the family; and here, or in the neighborhood, they long dwelt. The manor-house of Coole Pilate is pleasantly situated on the bank of the river Weever, at a short distance from the stream, and is now occupied by a farmer. Of the old structure little remains, except on the side looking toward the river. This side or wing is in the usual style of ancient Cheshire houses-a framework of timber painted externally black, and filled in with whitened plaster or brick. 3 The opposite bank of the river is elevated and covered with wood, and the whole valley is undulating, and at some distance, at Combernere, very picturesque.

The alliances of the Cheshire Whitneys show them to have been of consideration in that county in the old time. 4 About the reign of Henry VII (1485-1509) Anne, daughter of John Brooke, of Leighton, in Nantwich hundred, became the wife of Thomas Whitney, of Coole.5 She was an aunt to the Richard Brooke, Esq., who "Purchased from the King the Mannor of Norton with its Members and Appurtenances, "6

Hugh Massey, of Denfield and Audlem, also in Nantwich hundred, son and heir of William Massey (who came of age 3 Edward VI, A.D. 1550, and was descended from Sir Geoffrey Massey, of Tatton, near Knutsford, "who died 4 die Octobris 1457"), married "Elizabeth, sister of Hugh Whitney, of Coolane in Wenbury." He died in 1646, and was buried at Audlem, 7

In speaking of the extinction of the Cheshire Whitneys, the Lysons are not entirely correct. Toward the end of last century, Mr. Silas Whitney, also a poet, or writer of verse, from the neighborhood of Nantwich, carried on business in Knutsford as a cotton manufacturer. He was reputed to be descended from the Whitneys of Coole Pilate, and a relative of the celebrated Josiah Wedgwood. When political feeling ran high and fierce about the first French revolution, he is said to have emigrated to the United States -where, however, no trace of him has been found.

7 As it is no part of our purpose to write a genealogy of the English Whitneys, we refer the reader who may be anxious for further particulars, to Mr. Green's Introductory Dissertation (quoted above), pp. xli, xlii, and especially to Mr. Henry Austin Whitney's admirable Menoranda relating to Famney's admirable Memoranda relating to Families of the Name of Whitney in England, Boston (Mass.), 1859. The latter gentleman has, besides, a vast store of manuscript material relating to the same subject, which, it is to be hoped, he will publish at no very distant Geffrey Whitney.

Of the Cheshire branch was he who has done most-if we except an American, Eli Whitney, inventor of the cotton-gin-to make the name of the family known. We refer to Geffrey Whitney, author of A Choice of Emblemes. He was born about 1548, probably near the family manorhouse at Coole Pilate, was educated in the grammar-school at Audlem in the same county, spent several years of diligent study at Magdalen College, Cambridge (though he does not appear to have taken a degree), was underbailiff¹ of Great Yarmouth, in Norfolk, from 1580 to 1586, and perhaps earlier, and then passed over (probably in the service of his patron and friend, the Earl of Leicester) into Holland, where on the 4th of May 1586 he penned the preface to his Choice of Emblemes, which was printed in the same year at Leyden.2 He is credited with three other works, but upon this one rests his fame. It consists of two hundred and forty-seven engraved devices, nearly all of which were taken from earlier emblematists; and to each of these is appended an original stanza embodying a sentiment, a moral maxim, or a rule of action. After being neglected and forgotten for nearly three centuries, it was reproduced in fac-simile at London in 1866, with an introductory dissertation, essays literary and biographical, and elaborate explanatory notes by the Rev. Henry Green.

He perhaps owed his taste for poetry to the example of his eldest sister, Isabella Whitney, who published in 1573 a book of mediocre verse, entitled "A sweet Nosgay, or pleasant Posye: contayning a hundred and ten Phylosophicall Flowers." This work has become excessively rare; indeed, Mr. Green conjectured that but one copy of it has survived. To her also is attributed by Sir Egerton Brydges3 the following: The copy of a letter lately written in meeter by a yonge Gentilwoman to her unconstant Lover; with an admonition to al youg Gentilwomen, and to all other Mayds in general to beware of mennes flattery. By Is. W. Newly joyned to a Love letter sent by a Bachelor (a most faithfull Lover) to an unconstant and faithless Mayden. Impr. at London by Rd. Thones, dwelling in the upper end of Fleet-lane, at the signe of the Spred Egle.

To the Cheshire branch of the family, also, should probably be assigned the "Master John Whitney" who was the companion and beloved friend of the celebrated Roger Ascham, and upon whose untimely death the latter wrote an affecting lamentation. 4

By far the greater number of Whitneys in the United States are descended from John Whitney, who, in April 1635, then aged about 45,5 with his wife Elinor and five sons, embarked at London, in the ship "Elizabeth and Ann," Roger Cooper, master, for New England, and, in the following month of June, settled at Watertown, Mass. His ancestry has not been discovered, though carefully looked for in England by Mr. Samuel Austin Whitney, of Glassboro', N. J., Horatio G. Somerby, Esq., and Mr. Henry Austin Whitney, of Boston, Mass. It is known, however, that he lived for a while at Isleworth, about nine miles from London, on the bank of the Thames, opposite Richmond; for in the parish register of that place Mr. Somerby found, in 1871, records of the baptism of three of his children. I It is probable that John and Elinor left Isleworth shortly after the baptism of their son Richard in 1624. as no further trace of them is found there. Of their nine children six married and had offspring; and their descendants are now very numerous in all parts of the Union.2 Among those who have risen to distinction may be mentioned Eli Whitney, the world-renowned inventor of the cotton-gin, William Dwight Whitney, an eminent philologist, professor of Sanscrit in Yale College, and Josiah Dwight Whitney, the head of the State Geological Survey of California, a geologist of the first rank.

Other early immigrants to New England, of the name, were Jeremiah Whitney, who appeared at Plymouth as early as 1643, and Thomas Whitney, whose wife Winifred died 23 July 1660—concerning both of whom we know nothing more—and Stephen Whitney, who is mentioned by Savage as an early settler of Huntington, L. I. A careful examination of the records of that town, however, has failed to confirm the statement; and it seems probable that in this case the painstaking and accurate author of the Genealogical Dictionary was mistaken.

No connection has been traced between the above-named settlers. nor between any of them and Henry Whitney, the founder of the Connecticut family, whose descendants we have essayed to trace in the present work.

Ancestry of Henry Whitney.

The ancestry of Henry Whitney has been fully established by a skilful genealogist, Mrs. H. A. De Salis (née Bainbridge), of London, after several years of research.3 The first twenty generations of her pedigree are extracted from The Golden Grove, with corrections and additions from the Visitation of Herefordshire and other sources. This manuscript was compiled in 1703, by Owen Thomas, Deputy-Assistant to Garter King-at-Arms, from Welsh genealogies, records, and private papers furnished by living representatives of the families whose history it contains. It is the property of the Earl of Cawdor, but is now deposited in the Public Record Office, Chancery Lane, London, to be returned to the owner whenever he may desire it. While the pedigrees of which it is composed are received as authentic and considered of great value by genealogists, it would be unreasonable to expect strict accuracy in the commencement of a pedigree extending back to King Arthur's time, in the sixth century of our era. We may, therefore, safely reject the earlier generations as legendary, and consider the authentic history of the family to begin about the time of the Norman conquest of England (A. D. 1066), in the person of Sir Baldwin, of Whitney, in Herefordshire. ²

Copies of the documents upon which are based the remaining portion of the pedigree are in the author's possession. He is unwilling to increase the already enormous bulk of his book by printing them in extenso in this place; it is believed, however, that the following extracts will be amply sufficient to prove the authenticity of Mrs. De Salis's work.

The Golden Grove, in the pedigree of Whitney, designates Hugh Whitney (20th gen.) as "of The Hay," a parish in Wales—close to the border of Herefordshire. In another part of that book, as well as in several of the numerous Vaughan, or Vaūn, pedigrees contained therein and in Randal Holmes's manuscript collection of pedigrees, he is styled "of Bromhall," Cheshire, and in still another Vaughan pedigree, "of Chester."

It appears from some fines, preserved among the Harleian MSS., that Hugh Whitney, "of The Hay," and Constance, his wife, had land also in Radnor (Wales) and in Cheshire. In the latter county, they owned prop-

There were two Hughs Whitney, as shown by a deed of indenture, dated 1546, of some land, fields, etc., between Hugh Whitney, "of The Hay," and his son, Hugh Whitney, and Jevan ap Morgan and James Meredith.

From an inquisitio post mortem taken at Hereford and at Chester in 1549, and now preserved in the Public Record Office, London, it appears that Owen Parry died seized of lands in Bredwardyn and other places, the names of which are obliterated. His will is recited in full. In the latter, he mentions his daughter Constance, wife of Richard Vaun, his sons Owen and Thomas Parry, his daughter "Mary Whitnee, recently bereaved of her origin to the family, and in making the first lord of Whitney Sir Baldwin instead of Sir Eustace. We make no attempt to reconcile the differences.

goode husband"; names all his grandchildren and, among them, Thomas, Robert and John Whitney, and Margery Aesden; speaks of fields at Bromhall, Chester, where his "daughter, Mary Whitnee, now liveth"; mentions a cottage, with the appurtenances, in the parish of Mel 1 (probably Melpas or Malpas) which he bought of his son-in-law deceased, Robert Whitney.

A. D. 1558.

The will of "Thomas Whytney, Clerk, sometyme Abbott to the late Monastery of Delaweres (?), in the County of Stafford, suppressyd"-signed 3 August 1558; proved in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury, London, 13 August 1558-expresses the testator's wish to be buried in the monastery at Westminster, mentions his brother John Whitney, cousins Peter and Francis Whitney and Margery Aesden, 2 niece Anne Whitney, and nephew Nicholas Whitney, to whom he devises his house in Mylne Street, Leek, Co. Stafford, and other property, real and personal. That this nephew, Nicholas Whitney, was the son of his brother John (and not of his other brother, Robert) appears from a suit brought, in the 27th year of Elizabeth (1584-5), by "Nicholas Whitney, of Brooke Walden, Co. Essex, alias dict. Nicholas Whitney, lately of Leke, Co. Stafford," against James Brodocke for a messuage, with its appurtenances, in Gryndon, Co. Stafford, "of which John, his father, died seized." See the Common Pleas or De Banco Rolls, in the Public Record Office.

A. D. 1576.

The will of Margery Aesden, "of ye parryshe Church of Draiton, in the County of Stafford, widdowe,"-signed 13 April 1576; proved at Lichfield 4 March 1578-expresses a wish to be buried in "ye church aforesaide"; gives to the poor people of Draiton a sum of money for the purchase of coals; devises unto "my kinswoman, Mary (Anne?) Whitney, daughter of my brother John Whitney, of Audlem, Chester," all her messuages and tenements, with their appurtenances, in Draiton, "now in the occupacion of Robert Wikins," and unto her cousin, Walter Whitney, of Nantwich, "all my lands and tenements whatsoever in the countie of Chester, left unto me by my grandfather Hugh Whitney, of Chester," as well as "the lands and tenements in Leeke, which I did purchase of my cousin, 3 Nicholas Whitney"; gives to the latter, whom she styles "of Walden, in the County of Essex", "fiftene poundes of lawfull money of England"; leaves small legacies to her "cousin aforesayed Anne Whitney" (whom she appoints executrix) and to "Dorothie Meade, my mayde", and bequeaths the residue of her estate to William and Mary Aesden, "children of my late husband, as a token of my love for their dootiful kindness to me in my poore widdowhood."

*The original manuscript is here illegible. 2She was undoubtedly his niece (daughter to his sister Margery, who married Peter Aesden) and appears to have died before 1576, as she is not mentioned in her mother's will, made in that year. The words cousin and nephew (or niece) were, at this time, used interchangeably.

3 i.e., nephew.

From a pedigree of the ancient family of Stuteville, in Davy's Suffolk Pedigrees, we learn that Thomas Stuteville, of Dalham, married "Anne, daughter of Nicholas Whitney, of Walden, Essex." This, taken in connection with the following will, shows the Christian name of Nicholas Whitney's wife, though it unfortunately does not reveal her maiden surname.

The will of Mary Whitney, "of Brooke Walden, in the parish of A. D. 1590. Walden, in the Countie of Essex, widow"—signed 28 Nov. 1500; proved at Chelmsford in the same year-makes various bequests to "Thos. Stuteville, Esquire," to "my daughter Ann, his wife," to her sons Henry, George, Thomas the elder and Thomas the younger (the last two are appointed executors), to her daughters-in-law Elizabeth and Jane Whitney, and to Anne, Thomas and Elizabeth Whitney (her god-daughter), children of "my sonne Thomas the elder"; bequeaths to her son Thomas the younger all her furniture, silver pots and tankards, silver spoons, and "a great chestt bound with Iron and the lynnen therein," to her daughter-in-law, Elizabeth Whitney, "a Kertlett of wrought velvet and my best hoode, to Elizabeth Gardiner, her daughter's daughter, "my best gowne of silke Taffatie"; leaves tokens of remembrance to her neighbour Mary Frith, wife of Robert Frith, and to her maids Elizabeth Blurton and Margaret Porter; gives a sum of money to "the poore of Audley Ende"; and devises the residue of her estate to her son, Thomas Whitney the elder.

The will of William Pardoe, "of Walden, in the County of Essex, gen- A. D. 1586. tleman"-signed 28 July 1586-as recited at length in an inquisitio post mortem of 29 Elizabeth (1586-7), desires that his body shall be "buryed in holye molde"; appoints "my goode and trustve friends, Nicholas Whitney, of Walden, and Preston, gentilmen, and my dere and welbelovyed Penelope, my wyff," executors; expresses a wish that Walter Fieldyng, whom he entrusts to the guardianship of "Mr. Humfrey Taylor, esquier," "shall mary and take to wyff Anne, Elynne or Judyth, my daughters, at the discretion of my sayde executors"; directs his executors to divide the income of "all my landes, messuages, tenements, rentes and other my hereditaments, set, lyinge and beinge in the sayde countye of Essex," in certain proportions, between his younger sons, William, Henry and Robert Pardoe (his "oldest sonne and heire, Thomas Pardoe, being already provided for by an Indenture given by myne owne hande two yeres past") and "such of my two daughters as the sayde Walter Fieldynge shall not marye"; devises to "my daughter Penelope, wife of George Whitneye, one messuage or tenement, with the appurtenances thereto belonginge, which now they are dwelling upon, or ells the messuage or tenement which the said George Whitneye hath taken of me without fyne, paying no more than he hath done save only the rent and service accustomed"; and bequeaths to his executors a sum of money to be distributed "to every one of my poore neighbours."

A. D. 1605.

In an inquisition upon the death of Thomas Pardoe, gentleman, taken at Chelmsford, in Essex, and dated 9 Jan. 1605, mention is made of his capital messuage called (Spolestic?) and of divers lands, tenements, etc., in Essex. His will, of 28 July 1604, is quoted at length: in it he mentions his brothers Henry and Robert Pardoe, his sisters Penclope Whitney, widow, Judith Fylding, and Ellen Carneys, and his nephews Thomas Whitney, the younger, and George Whitney. His death took place on the 28th of December last, his heir being his brother, Henry Pardoe, "aged 36, and more."

A. D. 1619.

The will of Henry Pardoe, of St. Botolph, London, scrivener—signed in 1619, and proved in the Prerogative Court, London, 15 June 1619—bequeaths nearly all of his estate to his "deare friende, Dorothy Tozer"; appoints his brothers, Richard Carneys and Robert Pardoe, executors; names his niece Judith and nephew William, children of his sister Ellen Carneys, his nephew George Pardoe and wife Elizabeth, his nephew Thomas Pardoe, his nephew John Pardoe and wife Elizabeth, his nephew Thomas Fyldinge, his niece Frances widow of his nephew Thomas Whitney the elder, his nephew George Whitney, and his nieces Sarah Mills and Catharine Mors, daughter of his sister Fyldinge.

We learn from Chancery Proceedings, temp. Eliz., in a suit brought against . . . Pardoe by William Whitney, that the plaintiff is son and heir apparent to Thomas Whitney, of Saffron-Walden, Essex, and Frances, his wife; that the said Thomas Whitney is the eldest son of George Whitney, deceased, and Penelope Pardoe, his surviving widow; and that William Whitney, the plaintiff, has sisters Anne, Catharine, Frances, and Martha (also called Mary)—the last of whom married successively William Buckley and Henry Rodfern. Before the suit was finished, in 1640, William Whitney died, and Martha Rodfern, the only surviving sister, came into possession of the property.

A. D. 1611.

Among the Bills and Answers in Chancery, we find, under date of 31 Oct. 1611, the Bill of Complaint of Humphry Cob, of Wimbish, near Saffron-Walden, Essex, and Elizabeth his wife. It shows that Thomas Warne, deceased, gentleman, grandfather of the said Elizabeth, was seized of a manor house and divers lands in Walden and elsewhere in Essex, and in the adjoining County of Hertford; that the said Thomas Warne had issue Robert, the eldest son, Henry, second son, Richard, third son, Mary, wife of George Whitney, Jane, wife of Thomas Whitney, and Alice, wife of Lawrence Dixon; that Robert Warne, eldest son of Thomas Warne aforesaid, had issue "Thomas Warne, his only son, and your oratrix Elizabeth and Bridgett, his daughters"; that Robert Warne died in the life-time of his father Thomas, who being then "a sicklye and weake oulde man and, as it seemeth, somewhat suspecting his second son, did commit the custody of his grandchild Thomas, together with all deeds, writings," etc., to the Lord Montacute, who intrusted him to William Fryar of "Rikmanoth" (i.e., Rickmansworth, Hertfordshire) to bring up; that Thomas died about fifteen years since, and Thomas, his grandson, an infant, succeeded to the property; that the Thomas last-mentioned died about eight years since, without issue; that, after his death, the premises ought of right to have descended to Elizabeth and Bridgett, as his sisters and next heirs, but that Henry Warne, of Rikmanoth, Co. Herts., the brother of Robert and uncle to the said infants, "knowing their youth and friendless condition, did contrive with William Fryar aforesaid and did persuade him to deliver over all deeds," etc., professing to keep the same safely for the benefit of the sisters, and then "endeavoured by divers means to defraud them of their estate": that Henry Warne died some years since, and Richard, his brother, seized the property and still occupies the same; that the plaintiff Humphry Cob, about three years since, married Elizabeth Warne, since which time Bridgett, her sister, died without issue: that the plaintiffs are, therefore, the sole survivors, and ask for the restoration of the property.

The following extracts from Hertfordshire Fines prove that George Whitney and Thomas Whitney, the younger, removed from Walden, Essex, into the adjoining county of Hertford.

Thomas Whitnee, of Berkhampstead St. Mary, otherwise called North- A. D. 1624. church, Hertfordshire, died 5 March 1624, as we learn from an examination of the wills, etc., at Hitchin, in that county, and administration upon his estate was granted to his relict Jane Whitnee.

The will of "Jane Whitnee, of Berkhampstead St. Mary, in the County of A. D. 1627. The will of Anne Roberts, "of Borrington, in the County of Hertford, widdowe"—signed 4 Oct. 1655, and proved at Hitchin 25 Dec. 1655—distributes her estate among her daughters, Sarah Welles and Julyan Ettridge, wife of Thomas Ettridge, her grandchildren, Thomas Welles and Anne Ettridge, her god-child, Anne Pleasaunce, daughter of her kinswoman Julyan Pleasaunce, Thomas, John and Robert, "sonnes of my brother Thomas Whitnee"; gives "unto Henry Whitnee, one other of the sonnes of my brother Thomas Whitnee, now living in New England, the somme of fower poundes he did borrow of my late husband", and unto Jane Cottle "the fower pounds her father oweth unto my late husband, Owen Roberts"; and appoints her two daughters executresses.

WHITNEY FAMILY.

FIRST GENERATION.

Henry Whitney, the earliest of this family whom we can trace in America, was born in England, probably about the year 1620. No record of him has been found prior to 8 Oct. 1649, when he was associated with Edward Tredwell and Thomas Benedict in buying three fourths of William Salmon's land at Hashamonmock, in Southold, Long Island. These four men made the following agreement, which is recorded in the town records of Southold, Vol. 1, p. 89.

Wee whos names are vnder written inhabiting vppon the neck of land comonly called Hashamommock¹ considering that our Cumfort and quiett setlement would consist et stand in the inioyment of good neigbourhood did make this agreement at our first sitting doune that what man soever should desire to remoue and to endeauor to make sale of his accomodacons should put in such a neighbour as the other Inhabitanc liveinge with him should approve of.

Charles B. Moore, Esq., of New York, who has carefully studied the history of Hashamommock, thinks that Henry Whitney, while residing there, lived in the same house with Thomas Benedict.

As before stated, the date of his transfer of those lands gives no clue to the time of his removal, but the Town Records of Huntington, L. While at Huntington, he built a grist mill, or "corne mill," for Rev. William Leverich, of that place, which led to some disagreement; Leverich asserting that the mill was not finished in season, nor in the way that the contract required, and Whitney that his pay had been unjustly withheld from him. He seems also to have been a leader in the movement which resulted in the dismissal of Mr. Leverich, as minister of Huntington; and these causes led to several suits between the parties. Not much of the testimony is recorded; but before leaving the town, Mr. Leverich obtained permission of the court to put on record three long depositions signed by himself, his wife, and his son, giving their version of the causes which led to his dismissal. Some persons who have read these depositions, have inferred that Henry Whitney had preached for the people of Huntington, before Mr. Leverich was employed, and some of the testimony seems to harmonize with this supposition. The evidence shows that he was a frank outspoken man—once fined for speaking his mind too freely before the Court-but when a charge was true, he would acknowledge it, without waiting for proof from his opponent. His differences with Mr. Leverich were finally settled, as appears by the following receipt, a copy of which was furnished by Mr. James Riker, of Waverly, N. Y., from the original, yet preserved by one of the descendants of Mr. Leverich.

The first allusion to his wife is found in the following extract from the Huntington Court Records, p. 23, from which it seems that he married a widow Ketcham; possibly Sarah, the widow of Edward Ketcham, of Stratford, Conn., who died about 1655.

He was defendant in two suits at Huntington, 25 Oct. 1660, both brought by William Ludlum, who had succeeded Mr. Leverich in the ownership of the mill, one of which was "an acsion of trespas for breking the nill and grinding seueral times with out his leue to his greate damage."

The defendant deny the breking of the mill but confesed he opened the dore, and went and groune his corne, his family being all scik, none abell to beate, he went to inquier for the kei but coulde not her of it for he was gone to the south, and his family with himselue being like to famish he was constrayned to doe it: yet notwithstanding he gaue the miller his just towle.

The vardit of the courte in this acsion is this they finde the defendant was necessitated to yt he did and the plaintiff sufered no damage.

His last appearance in the records of Huntington, was 25 Jan. 1661 [7 1661-2], as witness, with Edward ffrencham, to the will of Henry Scudder, of Huntington.

Soon after this he removed to Jamaica, Long Island, where, as we learn incidentally, he bought a home-lot of Richard Harker; which he afterward sold to William Smith and his son Joseph Smith. His name appears several times on the records of Jamaica; 9 Aug. 1662, as committee to buy boards and lime for the minister's house, and to hire a mason, if need require; 12 Dec. 1662, as committee to lay out the south meadows; 20 Dec. 1662, as grantee of an acre of land at the rear of his home lot; 2 March 1663 (stylo novo) as one of twenty-four who signed the deed of gift for a house and home lot, to Rev. Mr. Walker; and again, 5 Feb. [1663-4], as committee to lay out meadows.

December ye 13th 1664. The town have chosen Henry Whitney, Beniamin Coe, Thomas Smith, Joseph Thurstone, & Samuel Mathews to be Townsmen for ye year ensuing & to order & cary on ye affaires of ye Town of publike concernment during the year, except giving off lands & taking in off habitants.

Another record, without date, of a vote of the town to lay out to others, "yt lott of medow which was formerly Henry Whitneys," closes the history of his residence in Jamaica. He next appears at Norwalk, Conn., in the following record.

At a towne meeitinge heild the 24th of July, [16]65. * * * * Also at the sayed meeiting—whearas Henry Whitney, I hath agreed and incaged with the towne to make, build, and erect a goode and sufficient grounde corne mill, and that at the mouth of norwake River quishede.

This lot lay near the mill, on the north side of Norwalk River, and was the first lot west of Mill Brook.

Norwalk Land Records, Vol. IV, folios 51 and 52, set forth the fact that the agreement between the town of Norwalk and Henry Whitney "being comprehended in one pair of Indentures of a like tennure not being recorded, one of them not to be found, and the other damnified by some unknown means, and not in a suteable capacity for a Record," the town voted, 24 Oct. 1706, that a new draft be made of the former agreement, and covenant made by James Olmsted, Samuel Smith, and Joseph Platt, the town's committee, and John Whitney, Senr. This was recorded 16 July 1709, and shows that "whereas the planters aforesaid hath given and granted unto ye said Henry Whitney the Old Mill House, with the Mill Stones and what Irons and other things belongeth thereunto," etc., the said Henry Whitney engaged "to make, Maintaine, Keep, and uphold a good sufficient ground corne Mill, and that at ye proper cost and charge of ye said Henry Whitney, his heirs, and assigns, and that upon the mouth of Norwalk River by ye Falls, and also a good sufficient Mill House over ye same with also a good sufficient Damn to ye said Mill, The said Planters by these presents allowing ye Ground to ye said Mill where it stands and also sufficient ground across ye River for ye said Damn and also ye use of ye stream of Norwalk River to ye said mill and also liberty to ye said Henry, his heirs and assigns, at all time and times to take from off the common land sufficient of timber for the said Mill and Damn," and he engaged "To Grind the Corne of ye aforesaid planters, their heirs and assigns and Inhabitants of said Town, well and sufficiently at all times hereafter, making good and well conditioned meal provided water may be obtained with the use of means, and to Take butt and no more than the sixteenth part for Tole of all sorts of Grain that shall be ground." The town also granted him several pieces of land.

At a Towne Meeitinge November the 9th [16]65, ordred and voted that Waltar Haite and Math Marvin see to lay out the home Lott granted unto Henry Whitney, and allso to place out that peice of Land which the town granted to Henry Whitney upon building and mainteining a good sufficient corne mill.

At a Towne meeiting Des 13 [13 Dec. 1665] voted and ordered that Henry Whitney and Mathe Marvin see to finish the [meeting] house, or cause the same to be done according as the towne [ma]nifested themselfs about the finishinge the same and for ——r of the same the decons to descharge the same in currant pay.

His name appears in the rate, or tax list of 19 Feb. 1665 [1665-66]. The following entry appears in the records of "A Generall Assembly, held at Hartford, October 10th, 1667,"

This Court upon the petition of Wm. Haugh, have considered that case depending between him & Henry Whitney, and doe order that there shall be payd unto the sayd Henry Whitney fower pownds out of the publique Treasury, and this to be an issue of the case depending between the sd 'Haugh & Whitney about seizing of rumme. The Treasurer is desired to order him his pay at Norwalke.—(Trumbull's Public Records of the Colony of Connecticut, from 1665 to 1678, p. 73.)

At a Towne meting in Norwalk, Aprill 15th 1669, henery Whitne and Ralph Keeler was voted and chosen by the towne to vew the pound which John Gregory Junr and Tho Bennydicke Junr., did agree to make, and the sayd men did take a vew of it at the same time & found it to be finished according to bargin and accordingly made their report to the towne.

Also at the same meting voted and agreed that henery Whitne shall have libberty to make a fence vpon the bank of the other side of the Riuer about the Lower cart waye for the seruing of his land.

At a Towne meting in Norwalk, May the 5th 69

Also at the same meting it was agreed on that the grant that was formerly given to hencry Whitney touching comonage should be Recorded, namely that he is to have a Right in the comons and liberty for Keping cattell horses swine with all other priviliges for fensing, or building, or Any other nesesaries he stand in need of, onely it is to be vnderstood that it is to stand & Remaine to the mill as the other lands doe yt Are appropriated to the Euse.

He was one of thirty-three, named in "A true and perfect List of all the Freemen appertaininge vnto the plantation of Norwake. Taken this 11th of October, 1669, and to be presented unto the Honnored Court assembled."

At a towne meting in Norwalk, February 20th, 1672, [1672-73] At this fore sayd meting it was voted and agreed on that all the land lying between Samuel hayes his homlott & Goodman Whitnes running along by the creek side, shall lye comon for euer & is never to be given out to Any man.

At the afore sayd meting it was voted and Agreed on that the pond that lies on the other side in the field, with the meddow aboute it from to Matthias Sention his lott shall belong to henery Whitne & his eyers to be layd to the mill as his other lands are that are appropriated for that use: And this is to be for him to Improue as afore sayd, so long as the afore sayd henery Whitney and his eyers doe maintaine a good sufficient gate into ye aforesayd field, to be well hanged so as it may open and shutt conveniantly.

This was his last appearance on the records of the town. He was one of the petitioners, 9 May 1672, for liberty to begin a new "plantation neare the back side of Norwalke." This was Danbury. Leave was granted, and the plantation was begun in 1684, but he did not live to take part in it.

He probably died in the autumn of 1673; but a careful search has failed to show the date; nor has anything been found to show any facts in the history of either of his wives, except that the second was a Widow

Ketcham, and she was probably the same who survived him.

SECOND GENERATION.

Chil. of Henry Whitney.

I. John Whitney was probably born before his father went to Southold, as the fact that he was of full age before 20 Jan. 1665-66, is indicated by the following vote:

At a Towne meting held the 20th of Jan. 1665, granted vnto John Whitne the sonne of Henry Whitney oinse unto his father's home lott extending from the Brow of the hill lying by the hi . . weigh Leading to the 2 Rodds cartpath by the sayd Falls.

He settled, with his father, in Norwalk; followed his business, of millwright and miller; suc-John Whitnor foron of the mill and homestead; and there married, 17 March 1674-5, Elizabeth Smith, dau. of Richard Smith.

At a towne meting desember 27th 1677. At ye aforesayd meting it was voted and agreed on between the towne and the miller, John Whitne, that the towns men are to carry their corne to the mill vpon the third and sixt dayes of the weak, comonly called Tuesday & Fryday, which days he is to Attend to grinde in & if the sayd John can clere the mill of the corne that is brought in the aforesayd two days, or before, then the Rest of the dayes of ye week he may take to atend his own ocations, but if he cannot clere the mill of the corne sesonably brought in, he must clere it before he leaues.

He built a fulling-mill at Norwalk, which he gave, 14 Ap. 1707, to his son John Whitney, with needful conveniences of land and water, to Injove use and improve, so long as there shall be a grist or corne mill maintained by the sd John Whittney, Senr., or his heirs for to grind the Inhabitants come, According to his covenant with the sayt Towne and noe longer. This I do Grant unto my sayd sonn so long as he or his heires shall se cause to maintaine a fulling Mill there where it now standeth and no Longer; provided allso that in case the sayd John Whittney son of sayd John Whitney, senior, shall marry, and he Decease, and leave a widow, she shall Inioy the privilledges above mentioned so long as she shall remain his widow, & noe longer, and then to return to his Eldest Brother surviving; and in case he shall Refuse, then the next surviving, and so successively to all the Brethren of the sayd John Whittney Junior.

He sold to his son, John Whitney, 8 July 1712, in consideration of a bond to pay certain sums of money, the grist-mill, and land belonging thereto, taking, 9 July 1712, a life-lease of the premises. His son reconveyed the whole property, three days before his death; and a month later, the father secured the fulling-mill to the widow during the minority of her son, with remainder to him. He finally sold the grist-mill, 20 May 1713, to his son, Joseph Whitney, for which Joseph was to pay his father's debts, give him one half of all grain that should be received for toll at the mill during the father's life, if demanded; "and, after ye decease of ye said John Whitne, to maintain his mother, Elizabeth Whitne (if she survive) Honourably During her natural life, if she Remaine ye sd John Whitne's widdow," and within four years after John Whitney's death, pay to his heirs £50 "in Provision pay at price currant equivalent to two thirds of said sum in money."

He probably died, at Norwalk, in 1720, as his son-in-law, Joseph Keeler, was appointed administrator of his estate, 11 Oct. 1720. His widow was a member of the First Congregational Church in Norwalk in 1725, and was living as late as 3 Ap. 1741, when her son Joseph Whitney, in a codicil to his will, provided for her future support; but the date of her death is not known.

THIRD GENERATION.

Chil. of John and Elizabeth (Smith) Whitney.

I. John Whitney, b. at Norwalk, Conn., 12 March 1676–7; a miller; married, 4 March 1709–10, Elizabeth Finch, dau. of Joseph Finch, of Greenwich, Conn. They settled in Norwalk, where he died 3 Feb. 1712–13. He reconveyed the mills, 31 Jan. 1712–13, during his last illness, to his father, who gave the fulling-mill to the widow, 28 Feb. 1712–13. No record of her death has been found.

II. Joseph Whitney, b. in Norwalk, Conn., I March 1678 [1678–9]; a mill-wright; married in Norwalk, 6 July 1704, Hannah Hoyt, "the daughter of Mr. Zerubbabel Hoyt," of Norwalk. I She was a member of the First Congregational Church in Norwalk, in 1725. After the death of his brother, John Whitney, he came in possession of the grist-mill, by deed from his father, stipulating to pay all of his debts, and give him one half of all tolls which the mill should earn during his father's lifetime. His will was dated 21 March 1740–41; and he probably died in Norwalk, in 1741.

His great-grandson, James Whitney, when eighty years old, wrote an interesting letter, in which he speaks of him as follows: "He was a very excentric man, and I heard many anecdotes of him. One was as follows; he was called upon to name a street running from the foot of Pudding Lanc to the bridge at the head of the harbor, by the mill; and this was his answer.-

From Hyatt's hill to Thacher's mill, Was once a lonesome valley: Since it's become a place of fame, We'll call it Petticoat Alley, and it went by that name when I was a boy, I believe over one hundred years later."

III. Henry Whitney, b. at Norwalk, Conn., 21 Feb. 1680 [1680-81]; a weaver; married, 14 June 1710, at Norwalk, Elizabeth Olmstead, 2 dau. of "the late Lieut John" and Mary (Benedict) Olmstead, of Norwalk, and g. dau. of Thomas and Mary (Bridgum) Benedict. His father had already given to him, 18 Oct. 1709, "my now Dwelling House, Barn and Home

Lott, containing four acres of land." He returned to his father, 19 Oct. 1709, a life-lease of the same, as follows:

For and in Consideration of Love, good will and Affection, which I have and do bear towards my Honoured and Well Respected Father, Mr. John Whitney, of the aforesaid Town and County, Do give and grant, and by these presents do fully & absolutely give and grant unto him, my said Father, John Whitney, the free use and Improvement of one half of ye now Dwelling House, Barn & Home Lott that he now dwells in & Improves, During ye Term of his Natural Life, as also, ye Improvement of Half of said House, & what convenience may be needful in ye Barn unto my Honoured Mother, if she survive my said father, During her continuance of Widowhood.

He sold this property, 8 July 1712, to his brother, John Whitney, subject to the foregoing lease; and removed, among the early settlers, to Ridgefield, Conn., where we find his ear-mark recorded I Dec. 1712. Here he was chosen townsman, 17 Dec. 1717; fence-viewer, 5 Dec. 1720, 19 Dec. 1723, 14 Dec. 1724, and 22 Dec. 1726.

The Townsmen Do Order that ye White Oak Tree standing near Henry Whitne's be recorded their Sign Post.

Recorded Janry 7th 1727-7, Per me THOMAS HAWLEY, Registr.

He died at Ridgefield, 26 April 1728, and was, doubtless, buried in the old graveyard, south of the village, where only two gravestones yet stand, neither of which is his. In exchanging land with Joseph Northrop, Sen., of Ridgefield, 26 Ap. 1727, he styled himself "Henry Whitne, Senr, of Ridgefield, in ye County of Fairfield, in ye Colony of Connecticutt, in New England, Weaver." Four days before his death, 22 Ap. 1728, he conveyed land to Rev. Thomas Hawley, and, probably on account of weakness, signed the deed by his mark. Many grants of land were made by the town, on his right, to his heirs, from 16 May 1729 to 1742, and, perhaps, even later. It is said that his widow lived to a great age, and died at Ridgefield, but no record of her death has been found.

The following diagram will indicate the position of his home-lot.

The main street in Ridgefield seems to have been laid eight rods wide; but encroachments have narrowed it in some places. The following, from "Description of Highways, 26 Dec. 1726," shows the location of three home-lots, occupied by children of John Whitney:

From ye South of Mr. Hawley's homelott begins ye Meeting house yard, and from Henry Whitne's Northwest Corner, to Matthew Saint-john's South East Corner of his Home lott is Sixteen rods; and from said Whitne's North Corner to his South Corner is Twenty rods, and from sd South Corner west across ye Street to Joseph Keeler's South east Corner is sixteen rodds, and from said Keeler's Corner to Matthew Saintjohn's South east Corner, or rather Joseph Keeler's North East Corner standing in Saintjohn's line is Twenty rodds.

IV. Elizabeth Whitney, b. at Norwalk, Conn., about 1684; married Joseph Keeler, a carpenter, son of Samuel and Sarah (St. John) Keeler; g. son of Ralph Keeler, and of Mark and Elizabeth (Stanley) St. John; and g. g. son of Matthias St. John, and of Timothy Stanley. He was born at Norwalk, about 1683. They settled at Ridgefield, where we find early mention of him.

At a Town Meeting held in Ridgefield Decembr 27th Anno Dom. 1715 it was voted by ye Majority yt Joseph Keeler shall have two shilling as money pr day for making and mending Conveniences for ye setting of Minister and people at ye house of meeting and yt he shall be allowed for Nails and what board will not do for after service.

He was elected lister, 19 Dec. 1716; sealer of weights and measures, 8 Dec. 1718, 21 Dec. 1721, 13 Dec. 1725, and 27 Dec. 1727; townsman, 21 Dec. 1719, and 20 Dec. 1722; surveyor, 21 Dec. 1721; toler, 13 Dec. 1725; a member of the "committee to run and finish ye Dividend Line between Norwalk and Ridgefield, according to agreement with Norwalk," 27 Dec. 1725; and, 5 Sept. 1726, one of "a Committee for the Town for the takeing care of, and carrying on the work of the meeting house by any necessary bargains, or laying out of the severall Sums and Taxes which from time to time shall be raised therefor, and that as their prudence and best discretion shall direct them and that till the meeting house be well compleated and finished." The building of this house was ordered 19 Dec. 1723. He made an agreement with the town as to which days he should grind for them, 7 Dec. 1733; was the town-miller 16 Dec. 1636; a Justice of the Peace as early as 1735, and for several years after that date. He took the freeman's oath 9 Dec. 1728.

Both died at Ridgefield; he, 29 Nov. 1757, according to the town record, (while his gravestone says 30 Nov. 1757), aged 74; she, 17 March 1763, aged 79 years. They were buried in Ridgebury Cemetery, where their gravestones were visible in 1875; but his, having been used in trapping woodchucks, was broken in pieces.

V. Richard Whitney, b. at Norwalk, Conn., 18 Ap. 1687; a millwright; married, 7 Ap. 1709, at Fairfield, Conn., Hannah Darling, dau. of John and Elizabeth (Beers) Darling, of Fairfield, where she was born about 1689. Their marriage is recorded also at Norwalk. His father gave him thirteen acres of land at Horse Pound Hill, and twenty-six acres at Drum Hill, with three acres of swamp east of Horse Pound Hill, seven acres of land to take up in the unsequestered land, and "one pair of stears past three years old," 18 Oct. 1700; and, at the same date, sold him three acres of land, with a house-frame thereon, at Belden's Hill. They dwelt at Norwalk for several years; then settled in that part of Stratfield Society, which lay in the town of Fairfield. He proposed to build a grist-mill on Sasco River, "where the sawmill stood," and asked the town to give him a small piece of land on which to set a house. His request was granted by town-meeting, 27 Ap. 1713, and a committee appointed to lay out the land and stipulate the conditions of the grant. Another town-meeting, 6 Aug. 1716, granted him liberty to flow so much of the town-commons as should be needed for the mill. His mill appears to have been built before 24 Aug. 1716, when the committee laid out, and, 12 Sept. 1716, formally conveyed to him, land on the east side of Sasco River, near to his mill, on his engagement "to keep a good and sufficient grist mill on said river, att or near the place where his now gristmill now standeth, when it can be done with labour; and to grind all sorts of grain for two quarts a bushell into good & sufficient meal, if the grain be good; and also to keep a sufficient house over said mill to secure all such grain as shall be brought to said mill, with a good lock and key continually to said house; and to grind all such grists of all sorts of grain as shall be brought by any Inhabitant of said town to said mill seasonably and before hee or they shall grind for a stranger." He was living at Stratfield as early as 18 Oct. 1714, when he sold land in Norwalk, to "William Jarvis of Huntington, on ye Island of Nassau," and again, 21 Jan. 1725-6, when he sold to his brother, Joseph Whitney, a "Fifty pounds Right of commonage" in the undivided lands of Norwalk. He was a juror, at Fairfield, 24 Dec. 1734. The date of his death has not been found. She died at Fairfield, 20 Oct. 1774.

VI. Samuel Whitney, b. in Norwalk, Conn., 1688; married, 18 Jan. 1721-2, at Stratford, Conn., Anne Laboree. He had previously bought a home-lot and dwelling-house of Samuel Hawley, in Stratford, to wit, 9 Jan. 1718-19; and he and his wife "owned the covenant" in the Congregational Church, in Stratford, 7 July 1723. He bought land at Woodend, in Stratford, 5 March 1735-6, of Rev. Samuel Johnson, for

of the place.

£26. His gravestone, in the old Congregational Cemetery, in Stratford, bears the following inscription:

Here lies buried the Body of Mr. SAMUEL WHITNEY who Departed this Life December ye 6th 1753, in ye 66th year of his age.

The date of her death does not appear; but she was living in Stratford, 23 Aug. 1754, as on that date she had recorded there a life-lease of part of a house and lot, given by Samuel Whitney, Jr., 25 Sept. 1751, to "his honoured father and mother Samuel Whitney, Senr., and Anne Whitney, Senr.," for "ye Consideration of Duty and affection," which lease was indexed in the name of Widow Ann Whitney. It is possible that she was a daughter of Dr. James Laborie, of Stratford, who died before 4 June 1741, when the inventory of his estate was presented by Thomas Salmon and Samuel Whitney.

VII. Anne Whitney, b. at Norwalk, Conn., about 1691; married, 13 Oct. 1709, probably at Norwalk, though the record is in Ridgefield, Conn., Matthew St. John, I a farmer, son of Matthias and (Bouton) St. John; g. son of Matthias St. John; and g. g. son of Matthias St. John, of Norwalk, where he was born about 1686. He was one of the company who bought Ridgefield of the Indians, 30 Sept. 1708; one of the petitioners for town privileges, 12 May 1709; and one of the original settlers

Dec. 27, 1715, voted at ye same meeting yt Matthew Saintjohn shall have for drumming ye Ensueing year, fifteen shillings as pay, in Case he Keep ye drum in good rigg ye Town finding heads.

He was chosen lister, 19 Dec. 1716; and surveyor, 20 Dec. 1722, in Ridgefield, where they dwelt till 6 Ap. 1723, when he sold the whole of his rights in that town and returned to Norwalk, settling at Pympawaug, which is now in the town of Wilton, Conn. They were members of the First Congregational Church in Norwalk, in 1725. He was appointed, 7 June 1726, one of a committee to call the Rev. Mr. Sturges to settle in the new parish of Wilton. Ensign Matthew St. John was appointed a committee of the society, 10 March 1729, to visit Hartford, and lay before the Legislature a complaint against the town of Norwalk. The earliest record of the church of Wilton is a list of those who were members, 13 Feb. 1732–3, at the ordination of Rev. William Gaylord, in which are the names of himself and wife.

See note to 573.

March 3 1730-31; Left. Matthew St. John was chosen for the Society Clark for the year Insewing, or untel ther is another.

He continued to fill this office till 1745, when he settled in Sharon, Conn., having bought, § March 1745, of Samuel Comstock, of Sharon, for £655, old tenor, a farm about two miles north of Sharon Village. The church record of his removal, dated June 1745, calls him Captain. Soon after his removal, he was chosen by the church of Sharon to be their third deacon.

They died at Sharon; he, 3 Aug. 1755, in his 69th year; she, 9 May 1773, aged 82 years; and were buried in the old cemetery, at the head of "Sharon Street," where their gravestones are yet legible.

VIII. Eleanor Whitney, b. at Norwalk, Conn., 27 Jan. 1693, O. S.; 6 Feb. 1694, N. S.; married, 13 June, 1717, Jonathan Fairchild, a fuller and cloth-dresser, of Norwalk, who was born 10 Oct. 1692. He owned a £50 right in the commonage of Norwalk, 4 Dec. 1721; and they were members of the First Congregational Church, in Norwalk, in 1725. His will, dated 2 June 1769, and proved 2 Dec. 1772, disposed of his home-lot, buildings, and fulling-mill, at the upper end of Norwalk, on Mill Brook, which, in the inventory of 12 Dec. 1772, were prized at £100; with fifteen acres of land at Toilsome, prized at £40; and four acres at New Dam Bogs. He died at Norwalk, 28 Nov. 1772. She died at Norwalk, 25 Jan. 1777, aged 81 years, 11 months, and 19 days; from which facts, the date of her birth has been computed. They were buried in one of the old cemeteries at Norwalk.

rates, 19 Dec. 1723; took the freeman's oath, 24 April 1733; and was one of the committee, appointed 27 Dec. 1715, to run and finish the boundary line between Ridgefield and Norwalk. Her death, which took place at Ridgefield, is thus recorded: "Sarah, ye wife of Mr Nor: Samll Smith dyed Octbr. 22d 1720." He married his second wife, Elizabeth——, at Ridgefield, 21 June 1722. He died at Ridgefield, 25 Jan. 1764, and was buried there. After the settlement of Ridgefield, he was always called "Norwalk Samuel Smith," to distinguish him from another settler, called "Milford Samuel Smith"—each from his former place of residence.

XI. Josiah Whitney, b. at Norwalk. Conn., date not known; married. 30 Oct. 1720, at Norwalk, Eunice Hanford, dau. of "Mr. Eleazer Hanford," and Hannah, his wife, and g. dau, of Rev. Thomas and Mary (Miles) Hanford, of Norwalk. They settled in Norwalk, where he died as early as 1750. He was of legal age to sell land as early as 25 Jan. 1721-22, and was named in the deed after his brothers-an indication that he was younger than they. No record of her birth or death has been found. She had £82 16s. 7d. from her father's estate, about 1737. In that year, 19 May, John Reed, "for and in behalf of his wife Hannah, and as guardian to his son-in-law, Eleazor Hanford, and his daughter-inlaw, Mary Hanford, minors," quit claim to Josiah Whitney, of Norwalk, and his wife Eunice, their shares in 58 acres of land "belonging to the estate of Mr. Eleazer Hanford, late of sd Norwalk, deceased, situate near Pimpewauge, above the Split Rock farm that was Mr. Joseph St. John's, late of Norwalk, deceased." Probably John Reed married Hannah, widow of Eleazer Hanford and mother of Josiah Whitney's wife. The final distribution of the dower of Eleazer Hanford's widow, I May 1759, shows that Eunice Whitney had already deceased.

I. John Whitney, b. at Norwalk, Conn., 4 March 1710-11, not 1711-12, as given in Hall's History of Norwalk, p. 202; a shoemaker; was called the "only son," 9 July 1719, when his father's estate was distributed and his mother appointed his guardian. He chose his uncle, Joseph Whitney, as guardian, 20 March 1729. His house was mentioned, 4 Ap. 1730, in a deed from Jonathan Fairchild to the town of Norwalk; and he witnessed the will of David Monroe, 18 March 1731-32. sold, 6 Ap. 1733, to Samuel Belden, a part of his home-lot in Norwalk, 3 roods, on which said Belden had already built a new house. Iosiah Whitney being witness. He sold, 12 Ap. 1733, 3 acres, 1 rood, and 31 rods of land on Mahoma-Chimmons Island, which was "laid out upon my Grandfather's and my father's deceased, their commonage." He sold land in Norwalk, 19 Feb. 1733-4. He quit-claimed, 16 Sept. 1734, "Unto my unkle, Joseph Whitne of ye aforesd Norwalk, . . . Right, Estate title or Demand what soever, as I the said John Whitney had or ought to have in or to a certain Grist or Corn Mill situate in sd Norwalk and standing upon the east side of ye falls of Norwalk River with the Dam and all other the appurtenances unto ve sd mill appertaining, or thereunto belonging, and the several tracts peices or parcels of Land, meadows and swamp land, and the stream of Norwalk River comeing to sd Mill, which by covenant between ye Planters of the Town of Norwalk and Mr. Henry Whitne, Late of sd Norwalk, Deceased, made May ye 6th 1669, and Renued by and between sd Planters Proprietors and proper Inhabitants of sd Norwalk, and Mr. John Whitne late of sd Norwalk Deceased on the 24th day of March 1706-7, was appropriated to sd Mill and to them their heirs and assigns, upon ye conditions terms and agreements in sd covenant expressed, Reference thereunto being had will fully show, being upon record in ye fourth Book of Publick Records in sd Norwalk, folio 51 & 52: Also ye Meadow called the pond lying in ye field on ye west side of Norwalk Harbour, formerly granted to ye aforenamed Henry Whitne, by ye Town of Norwalk, in consideration of ye Gate of that field being Maintained by him and his heirs, and Layd to ye Mill as his other land as appears by the vote of ye Town at their Meeting in Norwalk, February 20 1672;" Witnessed by Josiah Whitney.

At the same date, Joseph Whitney deeded to his nephew, John Whitney, one half of the above-described property, in consideration of the above deed, and also "in consideration of a final end put to all controvercies that have lately risen in law between me the said Joseph Whitne and my kinsman, John Whitne about ye said Mill, Land, and premises." He sold land to his uncle, Josiah Whitney, 30 July 1735; sold land at Silvermine, 14 Aug. 1735; and to his uncle, Jonathan Fairchild, 19 Nov. 1735; divided the mill-lands with his uncle, Joseph Whitney, 16 Ap. 1736; sold eleven acres near Five-Mile River, to Samuel Ketcham, 7 Oct. 1737; and another piece, the same day; sold his half of the mill and lands belonging to it, 21 Aug. 1740, to Josiah Thacher, of Norwalk, for £1000; and his half of the salt and fresh meadow, called Whitney's Pond, to his uncle, Joseph Whitney, 31 Jan. 1740–41.

No record of his marriage or death has been found; nor is it known whether he had, or had not, a family,

II. Hannah Whitney, b. in Norwalk, Conn., 5 Nov. 1707; married Daniel Keeler, a farmer, of Norwalk, son of John and Hittabel (Rockwell) Keeler, and g. son of Ralph Keeler, an early settler of Norwalk, and of John Rockwell, one of the first settlers of Stamford, Conn. They settled at New Canaan Society, in Norwalk, and were among the constituent members of the Congregational Church at that place, their names being the fourth couple on the list, having been recommended by Rev. Moses Dickinson, pastor of the First Church in Norwalk. His name often appears in the Norwalk Land Records, in the purchase and sale of land, chiefly in New Canaan. His will was made at Norwalk, 14 Nov. 1764, and he died soon after that date. She married (2d), 2 July 1766, at New Canaan, with Samuel Betts, of Wilton, in Norwalk; having made with him, I July 1766, a contract, by which, at his death, she and her heirs were to receive all goods which he received with her, and half of the linen and woolen cloth made by them, which should not be already worn or made into clothing. She probably went to Wilton, to dwell at his home.

JAMES FOWLER, Church Wardens. EDWARD HEXT,

Recorded by me, Elnathan Hanford, Register.

He was living at Norwalk, I May 1775, when he deeded forty rods of his home-lot, "for and in consideration of the parental love, good will, and affection which I have and do beare toward my Loving Son-in-law, Hanford Fairweather, and my daughter, Mary, his wife, of said Norwalk." So also, 11 Feb. 1788, when he gave another deed to "my loving daughter, Mary, wife to Hanford Fairweather."

The dates of their death have not been found.

IV. Thankful Whitney, b. in Norwalk, Conn., 1 March 1713-14; married Ebenezer Benedict, son of Capt. Thomas and Millison (Hyatt) Benedict, g. son of John and Phœbe (Gregory) Benedict and of Thomas and Mary (Sension) Hyatt, and g. g. son of Thomas and Mary (Bridgum) Benedict and of John and Sarah Gregory. They settled in the parish of New Canaan, Conn., where they were admitted to the church, Oct. 1733. -See Benedict Genealogy, p. 54.

V. Elizabeth Whitney, b. in Norwalk, Conn., 1717; married, 26 June 1735, at Norwalk, Miles Riggs, of Stamford, Conn., where they dwelt till four of their eight children were born.

His grandson, Miles Riggs, had an old manuscript book, in which was recorded the fact that "he was of Irish extraction, born in the Isle of Wight, 7 June 1687; followed the sea till late in life; then settled at Norwalk, Conn., where his son Miles was born 20 May 1748." Unfortunately, this book fell into the hands of a woman who had no love for "old things," and she burned it, within a few years past. Another tradition says that he was from Newark, N. J., and this seems to be supported by Mr. Samuel H. Congar's Genealogical Notices of the First Settlers of Newark, in Collections of the New Fersey Historical Society, Vol. 6, Supplement, p. 131,

i. e., Melicent.

which makes him traditionally the son of that Joseph Riggs, who died II Sept. 1744, aged 69, and was buried at Orange, N. J. His grandparents were, possibly, Edward and Mary Riggs, of Newark; and his great-grandparents may have been Edward and Elizabeth Riggs, of Milford and Derby, Conn. No record of his death has been found, but a deed in the Norwalk land records, Vol. XI, p. 185, shows that "Elizabeth Wriggs, widow, of Norwalk," joined her brothers and sisters, 5 Aug. 1754, in conveying land at the upper end of Clapboard Hills, to Ebenezer Benediet. One tradition affirms that he lived in Newark, N. J.; another says that he was a mariner, master of a vessel, and that, at the time of his death, he dwelt in New Jersey, near New York City; and that he was "supposed to have died in New York Harbor, and to have found a watery grave, about 1754."

She married (2d) Ensign David Rockwell, whose first wife, Elizabeth (Hyatt) Rockwell, died in Ridgefield, Conn., 13 Feb. 1758. He was born in Norwalk, 8 Oct. 1708, son of Jonathan and Abigail (Canfield) Rockwell, of Norwalk and Ridgefield, g. son of John Rockwell, Jr., of Stamford, Conn., and g. g. son of John Rockwell, Sen., one of the early settlers of Stamford in Dec. 1641. They settled at Ridgebury, in Ridgefield, where he died, 30 May 1788, in his 80th year, and was buried in Ridgebury Cemetery. She married (3d), about 1791, being then 74 years old, Agur Fairchild, who was her senior by six years. He died in 1797, after which she lived with her daughter, Mrs. Esther (Riggs) Rockwell, in Ridgebury, till she was 94 years old, then went to live with her son, Miles Riggs, at Norfolk, Litchfield Co., Conn., where she died in Aug. 1815, aged 98 years.

VI. David Whitney, b. at Norwalk, Conn., 24 June 1721; a mastermariner and miller; married, 11 May 1741, at Norwalk, Elizabeth Hyatt. dau. of Ebenezer and Elizabeth Hyatt, of Norwalk, where she was born 6 June 1718. They settled in Norwalk, where she died 28 Oct. 1798. aged, according to the gravestone, So years, 4 months, and 22 days, but really, from the change of style, eleven days less. The church-record of New Canaan, Conn., has the death, in "Nov. 1798," of "The wife of Mr. Whitney," which refers to her. He died at Silver Mine, in New Canaan, 16 Ap. 1816, and was buried in New Canaan. Tradition calls him a soldier of the Revolutionary War. It is said that they dwelt, many years, in Pudding Lane, about half a mile north of Norwalk Bridge, in a house which was torn down in the spring of 1865; and that he had charge of a grist-mill, in which his son, Ebenezer Whitney, succeeded him, "For many years he owned and commanded a sloop, in which he performed great service for the Continental Government in carrying despatches and supplies under the very guns of the British ships." An interesting account of his adventures was published a few years ago, in the New York Sunday Despatch, under the title, "Revolutionary Scenes. By T. R.

Whitney," from which it appears that when Norwalk was burned, in 1779, he ran out of the harbor with his sloop loaded with the families and goods of his neighbors, escaping the British, and safely reaching Stamford.

VII. Abraham Whitney, b. at Norwalk, Conn., 23 Feb. 1723-4; a tailor and farmer; married, 23 Dec. 1750, at Huntington, L. I., by Rev. Ebenezer Prime, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, to Anne Plumb, of Huntington. They settled in Norwalk, and there died; he, about 1804, or 1805; she, at the house of her son, John Whitney, in Pudding Lane, about 1806. They were buried in St. Paul's Churchyard.

II. Jerusha Whitney, b. in Ridgefield, Conn., 18 Dec. 1714, according to the town-record, but the true date was, probably, 1713; married, 29 Ap. 1736, at Ridgefield, Daniel Sherwood, a miller, who was born in Ridgefield, 21 Nov. 1714, son of Daniel and Ruth Sherwood, of Ridgefield. She and her husband received her part of her father's estate, f.47 IIs. Id., old tenor, 5 Feb. 1744-5. He bought land in Ridgefield, of his brother, Nathan Sherwood, 18 March, 1747. His farm lay in Ridgebury Society, next to the Colony line, and was bounded "east by the brook running through Mopoo's Bog." He sold portions of this land to his sons, Henry, Ebenezer and Daniel, 17 Jan. 1763; ten acres, for £7 each. He died before 10 Ap. 1770.

III. Henry Whitney, b. in Ridgefield, Conn., 29 July 1715; a farmer; married, 5 Dec. 1755, at Ridgefield, Elizabeth Lobdell, I dau. of Ebenezer and Rebecca (Benediet) Lobdell, of Ridgefield, where she was born 21 Sept. 1733. They settled in Ridgefield, and there died; he, 9 or 10 July 1794, of cholera morbus; she, 15 Aug. 1816, at the house of her dau. Rebecca (Whitney) Olmstead. They were buried in Titicus Cemetery. In 1873, one of his descendants said: "My great-grandfather.

Henry Whitney, while cutting wood in the morning before sunrise, heard music, and, looking up, saw some witches in a hog's trough, go sailing along over-head, singing: 'Hoity cock, hoity cock, day breaks on;"

and genealogists are compelled to read and consider many traditions and legends which are not better than this. Another tradition says that when he was eighteen years old, he was at Ebenezer Lobdell's house, saw a babe in the cradle, and said, "I will wait till this little girl is a woman and take her for my wife," a pledge which he redeemed when he was forty years old.

IV. John Whitney, b. in Ridgefield, Conn., 28 Jan. 1717; married, 15 June 1746, at Ridgefield, by Rev. Jonathan Ingersol, pastor of the Congregational Church, to Hephzibah Olmstead, dau. of Richard and Mary (Betts) Olmstead; g. dau. of John Olmstead and of Samuel Betts, of Wilton, Conn. She died in Ridgefield, 20 May 1753, of consumption, having been able to walk about the house the day before her death. He married (2d) Thankful Benedict, who was born 23 June 1727, youngest child of Benjamin and Mary Benedict. By the settlement of his father's estate, 28 March 1744, and a division made by him and his brother Daniel Whitney, 4 Feb. 1745, he had the south half of his father's homestead in Ridgefield, which he sold, 14 Feb. 1753, with "dwelling house, barn, shop, fruit trees and fences," to Abraham Betts, of Norwalk, for £1200, old tenor. A deed of 20 March 1771, shows that he then lived in Salem, Westchester Co., N. Y. He signed a deed, 14 Feb. 1793, in which he called himself of "the County of Serry Togue and State of New York." He lived, in the latter part of his life, with his son Ezra, at, or near, Johnstown, New York. He is known to have visited his son Samuel, in Paris, now Kirkland, Oneida Co., N. Y., about 1797, when he was eighty years old, but neither the place nor the date of his death, or that of his second wife, have been reported; but she died first.

V. VI. Daniel Whitney, b. in Ridgefield, Conn., 4 Ap. 1720, though the record says 1719; a farmer; married, 8 Aug. 1741, in Ridgefield, Thankful Burt, who was born in Ridgefield, I Sept. 1721, dau. of Benjamin and Sarah (Belden) Burt2. They settled in Ridgefield; their residence there can be traced by the births of their children to the latter part of the year 1752, and by deeds, almost continuously from 1744 to 1760. He joined with his four brothers in dividing their father's estate, 28 March 1744; divided the homestead with his brother John, 4 Ap. 1745, he taking the north half; deeded land to his four brothers, and took deeds from them, 18 Ap. 1750; had laid out to him by the proprietors, 23 Feb. 1750-51; bought and sold land, 30 March 1752; sold his house and land to Vivus Dauchy, 14 March 1753; had land laid out, 26 June 1753; sold all of his common and undivided land to James Bradley, for £28, 27 Ap. 1754; sold 19 acres of land to Rev. Jonathan Ingersol, 24 Feb. 1757; bought seven acres of land at Blacksmith Ridge, 5 March 1757; joined, 24 May, 1759, with his wife, Thankful Whitney, and her brothers and sister, Christopher Burt, Daniel Burt, Seaborn Burt, and Sarah Cornwell, of Ridgefield, and Benjamin Burt, of Warwick, Orange Co., N. Y., in dividing the estate "which our Honrd. father Benjamin Burt Deed, Died Seized of." He sold his land at "Blacksmith Ridge Bridge," 11 Jan. 1760, and soon moved to Warwick, Orange County, N. Y. Eager's History of Orange County, pp. 422-425, gives an account of Daniel Burt, and (after showing that he settled in Warwick in 1760) says: "When Daniel Burt returned to the county in 1760, Daniel Whitney came with him, married his sister, and located." We have seen that the marriage was nearly nineteen years earlier.

Daniel Whitney finally, at what time is not known, moved to Romulus, Seneca Co., N. Y., and there died in 1808, 1809, or 1810 (as variously reported), "aged over 80 years." He was really about 90 years old. His home was in the south-east corner of the town of Romulus, near Whitney's Landing, probably with his grandson, John Whitney.

VII. Richard Whitney, b. at Ridgefield, Conn., 29 March 1722; a farmer; married, 18 Dec. 1745, at Ridgefield, Esther Clark. They settled at Ridgebury, Conn., where he died, 18 Nov. 1772, "aged about 50 years," according to the church record, while the town record says, 18 Nov. 1773. She was married (2d), 1 Jan. 1777, at Ridgebury, by Rev. Samuel Camp, pastor of the Congregational Church, to Daniel Whitlock, of Wilton, in Norwalk, Conn. She died — Ap. 1810, in Westmoreland, New York.

VIII. James Whitney, b. at Ridgefield, Conn., 6 Dec. 1725; married Lydia—, of whose parentage nothing has been found, though a tradition among her descendants asserts that she was of Indian blood, and, as usual, fails to indicate any proof. She was appointed, 5 Sept. 1757, to administer his estate; and his children were living at Ridgefield, 20 March 1771. Before 6 May 1783, she had married (2d) Benjamin Kellogg, and had settled in "South East Precinct, in Dutchess" Co., N. Y. They were again living in Ridgefield, 8 Ap. 1793, since which, no record of them has and by one given 14 Ap. 1742, "for & in Consideration of that Paternal Love and fatherly respect we I have and do bear unto David Osburn & Rachel Osburn, my children." They dwelt in Ridgefield until after 1742, and finally settled at Starr's Plain, in Danbury, where he died about the beginning of the year 1750. She was appointed administratrix 5 Feb. 1749-50; the inventory, dated I March 1749-50, was presented by her 2 May 1750; and the estate was finally distributed 6 Ap. 1758, she taking her third as "Rachel the now wife of Mr. Lemuel Morehouse, being the late Widdow and Relict to the sd Deceised." She married (2d), 6 June 1750, at Ridgefield, Lemuel Morehouse. No record of their death has been found. His former wife Mary, who died in Ridgefield, I Nov. 1749, bore him nine children, one of whom married his step-son, Aaron Osborn.

II. Elizabeth Keeler, b. 18 Nov. 1708, probably at Norwalk, Conn., 31

though the record is in Ridgefield; married, 3 Sept. 1731, at Ridgefield, John Rockwell, a farmer, son of Jonathan and Abigail Rockwell, of Norwalk, where he was born in Ap. 1706, though the record was made in Ridgefield. Joseph Keeler, of R., deeded land to him, 23 Sept. 1743, "for & in Consideration of yt Love, Goodwill & fatherly affection which I have for & do bear to my Son in Law John Rockwell of sd Ridgfield." He was one of the eighteen constituent members of the Congregational Church in Ridgebury Society, the second church in Ridgefield, 18 Jan. 1769; and he and Jabish Smith were the first deacons, chosen 8 March 1770. The record of his election calls him Ensign John Rockwell. He died in Ridgebury, 4 July 1773, "aged about 67 years." His farm lay in Mopoo's Bogs, in Ridgebury Society, adjoining the Colony line.

Ensign John Rockwell married (2d), 22 Nov. 1769, at Ridgefield, Esther Hollebert. She survived him, and disposed of her dower to his sons John and Elijah Rockwell, both of Lanesborough, Mass., 8 Oct. 1773, and Daniel and Abraham Rockwell, both of Ridgefield, 31 Jan. 1774.

Lot Keeler, b. at Ridgefield, Conn., 26 Feb. 1719-20; had a gift 237 of land from his father, 14 Jan. 1742-3, "for & in Consideration of that fatherly Love and Respect yt I have & do bear unto my son Lot Keeler of sd Ridgfield." He settled in South Salem, Westchester Co., N. Y., where he was a member of the Congregational Church at the ordination of Rev. Solomon Mead, 19 May 1752. His wife, Elizabeth Keeler, was recommended to that church by Rev. Mr. Ingersol, of Ridgefield, before 21 July 1752. They moved from S. Salem, about 1783, to Lenox, Mass., and thence to Rutland, Vt., according to tradition, taking with them all of their children, except David. Tradition says that Lot Keeler's wife was named Elizabeth Coodenough before her marriage. Some of their descendants are supposed to be living in Rutland or Pittsford, Vermont. VIII. Paul Keeler, record of birth not found; was one of the "loving 244 sons" to whom Joseph Keeler, of Ridgefield, Conn., gave "all my right of commonage belonging to me in the Township of said Ridgfield," 12 March 1750. He m. - Smith, of Ridgefield, who died a few years after marriage, and he m. (2d), Sarah Wood. He settled early in South Salem, Westchester Co., N. Y., and was a member of the Presbyterian Church there when Rev. Solemon Mead was ordained, 19 May 1752, and his wife Sarah was recommended to that church by Rev. Mr. Ingersol, of Ridgefield, before 21 July 1752. He d. at South Salem, 27 Ap. 1787, where also "Widow Sarah Keeler" d., 30 May 1798.

IX. Silas Keeler, b. at Ridgefield, Conn., 3 Dec. 1724; married, 14 Ap. 1746, at Wilton, Conn., by Rev. William Gaylord, pastor of the Congregational Church at Wilton, to Abigail Elmer, I dau. of deacon Jonathan and Mary Elmer, of Wilton, where she joined the Congregational Church, 14 Nov. 1742. They lived in Ridgefield, probably in Ridgebury Society. By his will, dated 17 Ap. 1774, proved 17 June 1774, he gave to his three sons, Nathaniel Keeler, Lewis Keeler and Thomas Keeler, all of his "lands in the township of Stoe, lying by Onion river so called, a township lately granted by ye Governor & Council of the Province of New Hampshire." He died in Ridgefield, 2 May 1774, and was buried in Ridgebury Cemetery. Soon after his death, she went to live at North Salem, N. Y., with her dau., Lydia (Keeler) Keeler, and there married, about 1780, Jonah Keeler, of North Salem, the father of her daughter's husband. She died at North Salem, in 1789, aged 66 years. Her second husband, Jonah Keeler, died in 1799.

XI. Elijah Keeler, b. in Ridgefield, Conn., 17 March 1727 [? 1727-8]. He settled in South Salem, Westchester Co., N. Y., where he was a member of the Congregational (now Presbyterian) Church at the ordination of its first pastor, Rev. Solomon Mead, 19 May 1752. He married Sarah, who joined the same church 7 Oct. 1753. It appears from the land records, that he was of North Castle, Westchester Co., 28 Jan. 1755; of "Old Pound Ridge," in the same county, 21 Feb. 1755; of "Lower Salem" again, 24 Feb. 1787, when he bought land on "Pompion Ridge" in Ridgefield, on which he lived 26 March 1788, when he bought land adjoining it, "near Nod;" and was called "of Norwalk," 29 March 1790, at which date he sold the last two pieces. Nod district, now in Wilton, was then the northern part of Norwalk, next to the Ridgefield line. He was again called "of Ridgefield," 3 Dec. 1790, when he bought twenty acres of land east of the town street, paying Ebenezer Jones £74 3s. 1d. for the same.

III. Richard Whitney, b. at Stratford, Conn., 1 Sept. 1715; bap. at Stratfield, now Bridgeport, Conn., 22 Ap. 1716; married, at Stratfield, 4 Dec. 1750, Experience Beardsley, probably born in Stratfield, 26 Feb. 1724-5, eleventh child of John and Mary Beardsley. 1 Nehemiah Whitney's MS, says that he "settled in Fairfield, leaving no heirs." She died at Stratfield, 11 July 1780.

IV. John Whitney, b. at Stratfield, now Bridgeport, Conn., 17 Jan. 1719-20. His uncle, Benjamin Darling, for "Natural Love and affection," gave to him, 12 Dec. 1748, a part of his homestead in Greenfield parish, being one-fourth of an acre of land, which he sold, 15 March 1749-50, to Joseph Jennings Jr. He was married at Branford, Conn., 19 Jan. 1750-51, by Rev. Philemon Robbins, Congregational, to Deborah Smith. who was born at New Haven, Conn. He was a ship-carpenter, and lived at Stony Creek, in Branford, in a house that has been torn down; and later he lived near the landing, in a house which still stands, near what is called the "Dutch House Quarter," which, tradition says, belonged to his garden. He owned the baptismal covenant in Branford, 18 Feb. 1753; and bought eighty-six rods of land at Stony Brook, 11 July 1763, of William Barker, for £1 10s. He died in Branford, 29 March 1805, aged 85 vears.

He married (2d), Martha ——, whose maiden name has not been ascertained. Tradition says that he was a soldier in the Revolutionary war, and that he died in the early part of the war, being one of several who were killed by poison. It is said that he was buried in Stratford; possibly, he was a prisoner in New York at the time of his death. Mrs. Patty Whitney (as she was always called), after the death of her husband, lived a widow for many years, during fifteen of which she was mostly confined to her bed by consumption. It is said that she lived in Stratford, Huntington, or Newtown, Conn., perhaps in all of them; living at one time near the house of Landlord Jonathan Scott, who kept a public-house "on the road between Watertown and New Haven," about a mile south of Watertown Village. The date and place of her death are not known. She was a communicant in the P. E. Church.

He learned the arts of tanning and shoemaking, and settled in the parish of Middlesex, in Stamford, now Darien, Conn., in a house which he built in 1751, about half a mile north of the parish church, and which, in 1866, was torn down by his grandson, Charles E. Whitney, to make room for a new house for himself on the same spot. Tradition says that when he settled there he had only a foot-path to his house, that deer were yet very plenty, and that he often exchanged a pair of shoes for a bushel of wheat. They were members, and he was chosen a deacon, of the Congregational Church of Middlesex, now Darien. She joined by letter, 7 Oct. 1744.

He was appointed society's collector, 21 Jan. 1744-5; a committee, 16 Jan. 1748; was allowed "four pounds old tenor," 30 Jan. 1754, for "to sweep ye meeting House as often as needful for ye ensuing year," and was committee of the society from 1755 to 1760, inclusive. He was also school committee on the Stamford side, in 1756, and from that time to 1763. His ear-mark was entered in the Stamford records, 19 Jan. 1764. He was a man of great vigor, and retained his activity till near the close of his life, so that, when nearly one hundred years old, he would go to the woods to chop wood.

He was one of those who were taken prisoners, in the Middlesex church, on Sunday 22 July 1781, during public worship, by a party of British and refugees, and taken to Long Island. Some of the prisoners never returned; but he, more fortunate, found some acquaintances, through whose influence he was released and allowed to return. He and his wife lived together nearly seventy years, sixty-three of which were passed under one roof, and her death was the first that took place in the house. She died 4 Jan. 1814, aged 91 years, 4 months and 6 days, having then living (according to an obituary written at Stanford, 13 Jan. 1814) 7 children, 47 grandchildren, 83 great-grandchildren and 6 great-greatgrandchildren. He died in Darien, 17 May 1817, aged 100 years, 3 months and 3 days, allowing for change of style. A white stone, erected to their memory, was found in 1867, lying flat on the ground, in a field in Darien.

III. Eliakim Whitney, b. at Ridgefield, Conn., 13 Nov. 1718; a tanner, currier and shoemaker; married, 10 May 1744, at Stamford, Conn., "by ye worshipfull Samll Hait, Esquier, one of his majesties Justices of ye peace for ye County of Fairfield," to Mary Beachgood, dau. of John and Hannah Beachgood, of Stamford, where she was born, 18 Nov. 1721. They owned the covenant in the Congregational Church at Middlesex, now Darien, Conn., 30 June 1745. His ear-mark, "a slit in ye near ear, and a half-penny under the same," was recorded at Stamford, 29 May 1760. It is possible that she died at Stamford; for Eliakim Whitney, "of Stamford," married (2d), 15 Jan. 1775, in the P. E. Church, Mary Choram, or Gorum, of Stamford. They probably left Stamford at the close of the Revolutionary war; and deeds show that he lived at Saratoga, N. Y., in 1785 and 1786. He afterward lived in Milton, or Malta, N. Y., (perhaps in each), where his son Samuel went to see him in Oct. 1810, at which date he was called 93 years old, though only 92. He died about 1811 or 1812, in Malta, and was buried there.

- IV. Sarah Whitney, b. at Ridgefield, Conn., 25 Oct. 1720. No further records of her have been found; but a paper exists, containing a list of her father's children, in which she is called "Sarah boss," indicating her marriage with a man of that name.
- V. Nathan Whitney, b. at Ridgefield, Conn., 13 Aug. 1722; died young.
 - VI. Nathan Whitney, b. at Ridgefield, Conn., 11 June 1724; a farmer; was of the Manor of Cortlandt, N. Y., 1 May 1767, when he bought of Michael Mekeel and Milche, his wife, for £500, N. Y. currency, the north end of farm No. 4, of lot No. 4. "Nathan Whitney, Esq., of the Manor of Cortlandt," for £350, N. Y. currency, 13 June 1770, bought eighty acres of land at Amawalk, in Yorktown, N. Y.; it being farm No. 7, in east range of North lot, No. 5. He also bought land, 14 Ap. 1790, on the north side of Croton River, in Stephentown, Manor of Cortlandt, of Stephen Gage and Susanna, his wife, for £508 16s., N. Y. currency. No trace has been found of his family, unless one of his grandchildren was Nathan Whitney, who is remembered by General Bernardus Montross, of Yorktown, as a boy about his own age, born about 1790, and living in the east part of Yorktown.

VII. Seth Whitney, b. in Ridgefield, Conn., 8 Feb. 1726; married Sarah Mow, or Moe, who was probably from Greenwich, Conn. He was a tanner, currier and shoemaker, and the indenture of Ezra Mow, son of John Mow, of Greenwich, Conn., dated 23 Dec. 1758, as his apprentice to those trades, shows that he was then living in Cortlandt's Patent, now Crompond, in Yorktown, Westchester Co., N. Y., where he bought a fine farm, which is still owned by his descendants; and built a good house, yet standing after more than a century, and occupied by Gen. Bernardus Montross, who married his granddaughter, and yet keeps up its reputation for generous hospitality. His house was attacked during the Revolutionary war, by a party of tories who took all of his arms; soon after which they paid him another visit, headed by the notorious freebooter, Joseph Hueson, who tried to enter a back window, while his comrades kept watch outside. Whitney warned him to keep out or be killed, but Hueson, feeling sure that he had no arms, persisted in the attempt, and was stabbed in the breast with an old bayonet which Whitney had mounted on a stout staff. Hueson fell inside of the house, and his comrades forced the door and carried him away. They took Whitney into the yard, and not daring to use their guns for fear of alarming a body of American soldiers who were quartered at Crompond Church, a short distance from there, they struck him over the head with a horse-pistol, giving him a mark which he carried through life, and leaving him for dead. He had the satisfaction of hearing Hueson, as they carried him off, say, "the old rebel has killed me"; and so it was, for he only lived to ride a half-mile. The bayonet and staff are yet kept in the old house.—See Bolton's Hist. of Westchester County, II., 390.

His wife died at Yorktown, date not known, and he m. (2d), at Yorktown, 21 March 1787, Elizabeth Wright, Rev. Silas Constant, of Crompond, officiating. The date of her death does not appear. He married (3d), Anna Smith, whose first husband was _____ Jump, and her second, Capt. Trowbridge, of Bedford, N. Y. She signed a deed with him, 9 July 1802; another 21 May 1803; was mentioned in his will of 1 Jan. 1807; and died 29 June 1819, aged 89 years, 1 month and 19 days. She was buried in the Crompond East graveyard, where a stone marks her grave. He died in 1807, prior to 30 May, and was buried in the same yard, but nothing has been left to mark his grave, or those of his first two wives.

The diary of Rev. Silas Constant shows that, 4 Jan. 1786, he "rode to Mr. Whitney's, preached Matt. xxii, 5; conference in the evening." Also, "Jan. 4, 1797, rode to Mr. Whitneys; married John Travis and

Phebe Whitney.'

IX. Jeremiah Whitney, b., Ridgefield, Conn., 18 Sept. 1731; went with his father to Corthandi's Manor, now Yorktown, Westchester Co., N. Y., as early as 1747, but the exact date is not known. He lived in Westchester County, some of the time in Crompond, Yorktown, and is, perhaps, the same Jeremiah Whitney who bought ten acres of land in Bedford, adjoining his own land, 20 Aug. 1793. Tradition says that he also resided some time in Putnam County, N. Y. It is reported that he served in the Revolutionary war. He was a farmer; but his grandson, Isaac Lounsbury Whitney, who was born 26 March 1800, says: "He was a Methodist minister. I have been at his house a week at a time, and went with him to the church. He lived in a log-house on Connecticut Mountain; at that time I was only six years of age." He is said to have had two, or perhaps three, wives; but the name of only one, Eva Youngs, has survived, and owes its preservation to the circumstance that it was engraved on one of her pewter plates, which is yet, Jan. 1875, in possession of her granddaughter, Mrs. Horton. He died in 1810.

X. Uriah Whitney, b. in Ridgefield, Conn., 12 Nov. 1737; a farmer. He seems to have had two wives, but no facts respecting the first one have been discovered, save that her name was Sarah Platt. He bought a farm and dwelling-house in Simsbury, Conn., 6 Jan. 1773, and he was then called of Farmington, Conn.; but the Farmington records show nothing of him till 28 Ap. 1778, when he, then of Simsbury, bought of Anthony

Heart five acres and one rood of land in Northington parish, now Avon, Conn., at a place called "the old farm." This he sold, 29 Jan. 1781, to Iedediah Case, of Simsbury, who married Mary Hart, sister of Whitney's second wife. The farm which he bought in Simsbury contained sixty acres, and was "within the first Ledge of the West Mountain," and lay within the town of Canton as it was incorporated in 1806, but was set back to Simsbury, by act of the Legislature, in 1873.

He married (2d), in Feb. 1775, Martha Hart, dau. of Samuel and Elizabeth (Thompson) Hart, and widow of Daniel Owen, of Cider-Brook District, Northington Society, now Avon, Conn. She was born at Farmington, Conn., 31 July 1739. They removed, about 1795, to East Granville, Mass., and there died; he, 4 or 6 June 1816, aged 78 years; she, 5 March 1819. They were buried in East Granville Old Cemetery. Tradition says that he was a sailor in the early part of his life; and was captured at White Plains, while serving as a soldier in the Revolutionary War; and adds quaintly that, "being counted as the seventh son, he was often asked to touch for the King's-evil."

He was called "Samuel Smith 4th" in the record of the births of his children, except the youngest, in which he was called "Samuel Smith 3d"; but among his neighbors he was familiarly known as "Button Sam. Smith." in allusion to his short and corpulent figure; and he is better remembered by that name, than by any other, at the present time. His father gave him land in Ridgefield, valued at £500, 25 March 1751, to which he added so much during his life-time as to be called the largest landholder in the town. Yet in 1873, no parcel of his large landed property is owned by his descendants, except the Smith burying-ground, about four rods square, on the New Canaan road. He lived on West Lane, a little east of where Cyrus B. Grumman's house stands. His wife, Mary, died of small-pox, 26 Dec. 1781, and the same disease ended his life, 20 Jan. 1782. They were buried in Titicus cemetery.

SAMUEL HART, son of the preceding, was born in Farmington, Conn., about 1700; m., 5 Feb. 1729-30, Elizabeth Thompson. They lived in Northington, now Avon, Conn.

MARTHA HART, daughter of the preceding, STEPHEN HART, son of the preceding, was robably born in England; died in Farmington at 1689.

Thomas Hart, son of the preceding, was born in Farmington, Conn., 31 July 1739: m., 4 Feb. 1759, Daniel Owen, who died in Farmington, 7 Nov. 1759. She m. (2d), in Feb. 1775, Uriah Whitney.

II. Stephen Whitney, b. at Norwalk, Conn., 10 Feb. 1732-3; chose Jonathan Fairchild, of Norwalk, as his guardian, I Aug. 1749; settled in Derby, Conn., where he married Sarah Wheeler, b. at Derby, 27 Dec. 1737, dau. of Capt. James and Sarah (Johnson) Wheeler. She owned the covenant in the Congregational Church at Derby, 10 June 1759, died at Derby, 31 March 1764, and was buried in the old cemetery in Derby, where her gravestone sets forth her various relationships. He married (2d), at Derby, 5 Nov. 1764, Eunice Keeney. They owned the covenant in Derby, 6 Oct. 1765. She was probably a widow, and mother of William Keeney. He married (3d), Hannah Hull, widow of — Morse. She died in Derby, about 1793 or 1794.

He was largely engaged in the West India trade, and at the end of the Revolution, found that nearly the whole of his possessions consisted of a big chest nearly filled with paper currency, which had so depreciated that he could realize nothing from it. He then went at his business anew, and had gained a modest competence a second time, when the sinking of a brig, the cargo of which belonged to him, brought him to poverty once more; after which he made a living, in his old age, by trading in a small way in the towns about Derby. He came home from his last trip on a borrowed horse, having been, for three or four days, too ill to walk; and, on reaching home, was so ill that his family had to help him from the horse to his bed, where he died on the same night, at half past one o'clock, in June 1811.

They settled in Derby, and there owned the covenant in the Congregational Church, 11 Ap. 1762. She died in Derby, on Thursday, 21 Aug. 1794, aged 48 years. He died in Derby, 1 May 1811, "aged 75 years." They were buried in the old Episcopal Cemetery in Derby. An obituary notice of him quaintly says: "He was the founder of King Hiram's Lodge in Derby; he squared his life by the rules of Masonry, and, directed by the invariable compass of rectitude, he entered the harbor of rest; his Masonic brethren honoured his interment with the sprig of evergreen, emblem of that eternal life, the donation of the Grand Architect, who will hail with the voice of brotherly love every free and well-accepted Mason into the Grand Lodge above. He was many years an active and useful inhabitant of this town; he died much lamented and respected by his relations and acquaintance; he was a member of, and a communicant in, the Episcopal Church, and was buried according to the rites and ceremonies of that Church, in sure and certain hope of the resurrection to eternal life."

IV. Eliezer Whitney, b. in Norwalk, Conn., 7 March 1737-8; chose Phineas Hanford as his guardian, 3 Aug. 1756, and then lived in Norwalk.

V. Isaac Whitney, b. in Norwalk, Conn., 27 March 1741; was living 20 June 1763; was of Norwalk 13 Ap. 1756, when he chose Phineas Hanford as his guardian.

¹ Her sister, Eliza Clark, of Lyme Centre, married Joseph Hull, of Derby, in 1749, and became the mother of Gen. William Hull and grandmother of Commodore Isaac Hull. Their rather, William Clark, is said, in Clarke's Descendants of Richard Hull, p. 5, to have gone from Lyme to Derby in 1735, and to have been a descendant of Thomas Clarke, who is thought to have been mate of the Mayflower in 1620. Compare Clarke's Descendants of Thomas Clarke, p. 16. Hannah, wife of William Clark, died in 1801, aged 91 years, leaving 333 descendants.

FIFTH GENERATION.

Chil. of Hezekiah and Margaret (Harris) Whitney.

- I. Betty Whitney, b. in Norwalk, Conn., 24 Jan. 1733-4; said, by doubtful tradition, to have married James Beatty.
 - II. Abigail Whitney, b. in Norwalk, Conn., 14 May 1735; was mentioned in her father's will, 17 March 1785.
 - III. Ruth Whitney, b. in Norwalk, Conn., 3 Jan. 1736-7; was named in her father's will, 17 March 1785.
 - IV. Jeremiah Whitney, b. in Norwalk, Conn., 17 March 1739-40; probably died in early life, as his name is not found in his father's will of 17 March 1785.

V. Hezekiah Whitney, b. in Norwalk, Conn.; a carpenter; was mentioned in his father's will, 17 March 1785, place of residence not stated; was living in Bedford, N. Y., 19 Dec. 1789, when he bought "a certain Right of Land in Lot Number eighteen, in the first Division, in the Township of Wolcott, and State of Vermont, with the whole of the undivided land belonging to said right," from Rufus Herrick, of Washington, N. Y., for forty pounds, N. Y. currency; and soon after settled on his new purchase. He seems to have been in Wolcott even before this purchase, for he was appointed one of a committee to lay out and make a road through the centre of the town, 2 May 1789, with orders to have it completed by 1 Oct. 1789. At the same time, he undertook, with Levi Taylor, to build a saw-mill by the next November, and a grist-mill by November 1790; for each of which the proprietors gave them one hundred acres of land, with the mill-site, "in Lue of their Draughts." Later votes respecting these mills, 21 June 1791 and 14 July 1791, seem to show that they were not finished so soon as was expected. He was chosen moderator of the town-meeting, 31 March 1792, and first select-man at the same meeting. He was, for many years, collector of the town, and held other offices of trust. He married Sarah Taylor, dau. of Josiah and Thankful (French) Taylor, of Norwalk. She was probably born in Norwalk, Conn., 16 July 1744. Hall, p. 218, says "16 July 1741-2," an impossible date, VII. Peggy Whitney, b. in Norwalk, Conn., date not found; was bap., 19 June 1751, by the Episcopal minister of Stamford, as Margaret; married, 25 Jan. 1775, in Norwalk, James Beatty. Her name occurs in her father's will, 17 March 1785, and her husband was one of the executors named in it.

VIII. Sarah Whitney, b. in Norwalk, Conn., about 1755; married, 25 Nov. 1772, in Norwalk, Jesse Bedient. They settled in Norwalk, and there died, without children; he, 1 March 1821, aged 76 years; she, 15 Feb. 1824, aged 69 years; and were buried in Town-Hill Cemetery.

Chil. of Daniel and Hannah (Whitney) Keeler.

I. Daniel Keeler, b. in Norwalk, Conn., about 1730; a farmer; married Mary ——. They owned the covenant in New Canaan, Conn., 14 Aug. 1753, and were admitted to full communion, 6 Dec. 1768. His father gave him land at New Canaan, in Norwalk, 27 Feb. 1754, and five pounds more in his will of 14 Nov. 1764. He died in New Canaan, 24 Dec. 1803, aged 73 years.

II. Hannah Keeler, b. in Norwalk, Conn., date not found; married, 29 Dec. 1748, at New Canaan, Conn., Benjamin Bolt, who was born in Norwalk, 26 Sept. 1718, son of John and Elizabeth (Clemmons) Bolt, of Norwalk, and g. son of William Clemmons, of Stamford. She was mentioned in her father's will, 14 Nov. 1764, by her Christian name, as having received her portion before that date.

III. Dorothy Keeler, b. in Norwalk, Conn., date not found; married, 20 June 1750, in New Canaan, Conn., Abram Hoyt, a teacher and scrivener, who was born in Norwalk, 1 Oct. 1724, son of Deacon Daniel Hoyt, of Norwalk, by his first wife. She was mentioned in her father's will, 14 Nov. 1764, by her Christian name, as having already received her share of his estate. They settled at New Canaan Parish, in Norwalk, and there owned the covenant, 1 March 1752, and had children baptized till

Isaiah Keeler, b. in Norwalk, Conn., date not found; bap. in New Canaan, Conn., 5 Oct. 1735; he and his wife, Melicent , joined the church in New Canaan, 27 Aug. 1766, having owned the covenant 16 Nov. 1760. He was a weaver, and his father, in his will of 14 Nov. 1764, estimated the trade as worth thirty-five pounds.	469
95	V. Lydia Keeler, b. in Norwalk, Conn., date not found; bap. in New Canaan, Conn., 4 Dec. 1737; had fourteen pounds in her father's will, 14 Nov. 1764, and witnessed the marriage-contract between her mother and Samuel Betts, Esq., of Wilton, Conn., 1 July 1766.
96	VI. Jeremiah Keeler, b. in Norwalk, Conn., about 1740; bap. in New Canaan, Conn., 13 Ap. 1740; a tanner, currier and shoemaker; had fourteen pounds in his father's will, 14 Nov. 1764, in consideration of the same sum formerly given to his brother, Daniel Keeler, their trades being estimated at thirty-five pounds, each. He owned the covenant, in New Canaan, 21 June 1767, and was married, 15 June 1769, at South Salem, Westchester Co., N. Y., by Rev. Solomon Mead, pastor of the Presbyterian Church at South Salem, to Elizabeth Weed, dau. of Peter Weed, and born at Ridgebury, Conn. They settled in New Canaan, and there joined the Congregational Church, 29 May 1774; she having owned the covenant 4 Aug. 1771. After a few years, they moved to South Salem, where they joined the Presbyterian Church, 2 June 1787. They died in South Salem; she, 21 Dec. 1807, æ. 64; he, 14 Jan. 1818, æ. 78; and were buried in the Presbyterian Churchyard.	472
97	VII. Mary Keeler, b. in Norwalk, Conn., about 1742; bap. in New Canaan, Conn., 16 May 1742; married, 4 Aug. 1761, in New Canaan, her cousin, Joseph Riggs, who was born in Stamford, Conn., 18 May 1738, son of Miles and Elizabeth (Whitney) Riggs. The fact that she was not alluded to in her father's will, 14 Nov. 1764, while mention was made of her son, Daniel Riggs, indicates that she died before that date; and it seems probable that she died before 1 May 1763, at which date he joined the church in New Canaan. He married (2d), 18 Sept. 1764, in Wilton, Conn., Margaret Resseguie, both of Norwalk.	521
98	VIII. Dinah Keeler, b. in Norwalk, Conn., about 1744; bap. in New Canaan, Conn., 12 Aug. 1744; married, 29 Ap. 1762, in New Canaan, James Canfield, "so called, of Salem." Her father, in his will of 14 Nov. 1764, gave her £5 2s. 4d., which, with £22 4s. already given to her, 1 See Hoyt Genealogy, pp. 324 and 347.	476 made her portion equal to those of her sisters. Her husband was a soldier in the Revolutionary War. His parentage does not appear. Mary Canfield, of Salem, Westchester Co., N. Y., widow of David Canfield, lately deceased, in her will of 6 June 1783, called him "my adopted son, known by the name of, and commonly called, James Canfield," and gave to him and his wife, Dinah Canfield (whom, by her will, she also adopted), the use of all her estate, with remainder to their children, of whom she named nine, providing that any who might thereafter be born to them should share equally with those already living. They settled in South Salem, and died there.

She was born 17 Oct. 1746, and was dau. of Dr. Abner and Phebe! Hoyt, of New Canaan, where she was baptized, 16 Nov. 1746. They probably lived in New Canaan till 1770, then settled in Ridgefield, where they dwelt till age had made them infirm; then went to South Hero, Grand Isle Co., Vt., to live with their son, Abner Keeler, where they died and were buried.

XI. Elizabeth Keeler, b. in Norwalk, Conn., date not found; bap. in New Canaan, Conn., 25 Dec. 1748; had by her father's will, 14 Nov. 1764, £27 6s. 4d.; since which we have no knowledge of her. It seems possible that she went with her mother, in 1766, to Wilton, Conn., and that she was that Elizabeth Keeler, of Wilton, who married, 30 March 1768, at New Canaan, Samuel Northrop, of Ridgefield, Conn.

I. Ebenezer Whitney, b. at Norwalk, Conn., 8 Aug. 1742; a master-mariner and miller; married, 19 Dec. 1771, in Norwalk, with Ruth Raymond, born 15 Nov. 1756, dau. of Simeon Raymond. They settled in Norwalk, and after he had followed the sea for forty-five years, moved to Silver Mine, in New Canaan, Conn., where he bought and managed a grist-mill. He was of New Canaan, 11 Aug. 1806, when he sold his land, house and shop, in Norwalk, for $300, to Samuel Hoyt. He died in New Canaan, 2 Ap. 1808; the church-record says, "3 Ap. 1808, of apoplexy, aged 65 years"; a newspaper obituary says, "3 Ap. 1808, in his 66th year." He was buried in the cemetery above Silver Mine. She died in Norwalk, and was buried in the south part of the town, near Gregory's Point, where her gravestone bears the following inscription:

Widow of Ebenezer Whitney of Revolutionary memory deceased
who departed
this life
May 31, 1839,
Æ. 82 years 6 no.
Æ 16 days.
In life of a meek and quiet spirit in death serene.
Asleep in Jesus! O, for me,
May such a blissful refuge be;
Securely shall my ashes lie
Waiting the summons from on high.

Tradition says that he was a paymaster in the Revolutionary army; and his grandson, Edward Tompkins Whitney, says that he, and not his father, took the sloop-load of women and furniture out of Norwalk Harbor, when Norwalk was occupied by the British soldiers, in 1779.

The affair was found out, a guard set at Cow Pasture Shore, and he was taken a prisoner. The guard went up with him to his brother's store, when he set down for them a bottle of rum, with some cheese and crackers, and asked the privilege of going up stairs to change his shirt, which they granted. He opened a small back-window, leaped out into a field of corn, which was tall, just earing out, got into the woods and ran till he came to what was called the Bark Mill Brook, where he hid among the bushes under the bank, and heard them skirmishing all around to find The third night, he crawled out, called on a friend living three miles above, got him up, went down to Belden's Pond, found a boat, which they dragged over the beach to Cow Pasture shore, and rowed across the Sound to Long Island, where the British were encamped."

II. Stephen Whitney, b. at Norwalk, Conn., 20 Jan. 1754, not 1756, as Hall says; married Esther Jarvis, who was born in Norwalk, 4 Sept. 1759, dau. of John and Catharine (Raymond) Jarvis 1 He was a tailor, and settled in Kent, Conn., where he died, 25 Sept. 1830, "in 74th year" according to his gravestone in the Flanders burying-ground, but really in his 77th year. Persons who remember him say that he and his wife lived apart, and that, although he was a pleasant, accommodating neighbor, his children did not live with him; and he was cared for by strangers in his last days, after living alone and keeping his own house for many years, He first bought land in Kent 8 Feb. 1791, had a good property, and was a dealer to a considerable extent in land, and three days before his death, sold to his nurse, Betsev Dickerson, for $200, the house in which he lived. Dower was assigned to his widow, Esther Whitney, 25 Oct. 1830, and deeds show that she lived in Poundridge, Westchester County, N. Y., 15 Oct. 1832, though she was of New Canaan, Conn., 29 May of the same year. She died at Poundridge, 10 Aug. 1840, aged 80 years, 11 months, and 6 days, and was buried in St. Mark's Cemetery, in New Canaan. His grandson, Barzillai Watson Lockwood, says that he served in the Revolutionary War.

They lived in New Canaan, Conn., and of Norwalk.

- IV. Ann Whitney, b. in Norwalk, Conn., 27 Jan. 1758; probably died young.
- V. Susan Whitney, b. in Norwalk, Conn., 2 Jan. 1760; married Rich, and lived at Horse Neck, Greenwich, Conn. Possibly she was the Susan Rich, wife of Lemuel Rich, who joined the Congregational Church at Greenwich, 18 Oct. 1789. Nothing more is known.
- VI. Abraham Whitney, b. in Norwalk, Conn., 2 Ap. 1762. He probably died in infancy.

- VII. John Whitney, b. in Pudding Lane, Norwalk, Conn., 17 May 1764; a nail-maker and farmer; married in Norwalk, 5 Feb. 1791, Ann Fox, who was born at Wilton, in Norwalk, May 1765, "the year in which the meeting-house was built." They settled in Norwalk, where, on a very hot day in July 1813, he went to repair a field-gate near Old Well, now South Norwalk, and was so affected by the heat as to cause his sudden death. He was buried in St. Paul's (Episcopal) Churchyard. She died at the house of her grandson, John William Hobart, 224 (now 296) Livingston Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., 14 July 1858, aged 93 years and 2 months, and was buried, 16 July 1858, in lot 10658, section 93, Leafy Path, Greenwood Cemetery.
- 138 VIII. Sarah Whitney, b. in Norwalk, Conn., 27 July 1766; went to visit her brother, Samuel Whitney, at St. John, N. B., and there met, and married, Capt, James Crigor, a native of Scotland. They settled in St. John. where he died; whereupon she returned to Norwalk, and there spent the remainder of her life. Having no children, she first willed her property to St. Paul's parish in Norwalk, for the purpose of founding a school in which good boys might be educated for missionaries. She was persuaded by the rector of St. Paul's, Rev. William Cooper Mead, D.D., to change her will; giving $15000 to Trinity College, in Hartford, Conn., as a foundation for the Brownell professorship, $3000 to St. Paul's parish, Norwalk, and a residuary legacy, which realized $10000, to the Domestic and Foreign Missionary Society of the Protestant Episcopal Church, as a fund for the benefit of domestic missions. At her grave, near the front entrance of St. Paul's Churchyard, a handsome freestone monument, which also commemorates her sisters, Polly Whitney and Mercy Whitney, bears the following inscription: "In memory of a Christian woman, who gave herself and all that she had to Christ and the Church; Mrs. Sarah Grigor, born July 27, 1766; died April 6, 1855. 'She hath done what she could.'"

1. Daniel Sherwood, b. in Ridgefield, Conn., 21 Jan. 1736-7. He lived in Ridgebury Society, and joined his brother Ebenezer in buying land, 31 March 1769, and again 22 Feb. 1773, which last was the homestead of Jacob and Henry Elias, near the church in Ridgebury. He was there, 23 May 1775. He was loyal in the Revolutionary War, and his estate was confiscated. Being the eldest son, he probably received two portions of his father's estate, which was divided into elevenths, though there were only ten children.

- II. Ebenezer Sherwood, b. in Ridgefield, Conn., 15 Jan. 1738-9; married Sarah ———, who died in Ridgebury, 21 Sept. 1818, aged 78 years. He died in Ridgebury Society, 17 Nov. 1818, in his 80th year.
- III. Henry Sherwood, b. in Ridgefield, Conn., 18 Nov. 1741. He was living in the State of New York, 25 Feb. 1785, at which date his part, one eleventh, of his father's homestead was taken on execution and set off to the creditor, William Forrester, who was put in possession "by turf and twigg." He was of Catskill, N. Y., 29 March 1787, and was of Coxsackie, "in ye County of Albany," N. Y., 15 Ap. 1791, when he and Lois Sherwood sold to John Lee, of Ridgefield, five and a half acres of land, "being part of William Lee's Home Lott, late of Ridgefield, Decd." We infer that his wife was Lois Lee.

She seems to have been afflicted with mental incapacity, as Daniel Coley, "conservator of Ruth Sherwood of Ridgefield," sold her land, 24 June 1789. Perhaps she was the Ruth Sherwood of whose death, in Ridgefield, we find a record, under date of 7 Aug. 1792.

IX. Richard Sherwood, b. in Ridgefield, Conn., 21 March 1754. It was charged that he had "absconded and taken part with the British troops against the United States of America," and, by order of the Court, his property, six acres of land in Ridgefield, was sold, 9 Aug. 1787, to pay his debts and for the benefit of the State of Connecticut. A portion of his confiscated estate was sold, 19 March 1787, by the Judge of Probate.

X. Jerusha Sherwood, b. in Ridgefield, Conn.; married Nehemiah Barlow, of Brookfield, Conn. They were living there 5 June 1788, when they sold her share of her father's estate in Ridgefield.

married, 3 Feb. 1768, at South Salem, Westchester Co., N. Y., by Rev. Solomon Mead, pastor of the Presbyterian Church at South Salem, to Rebecca Morehouse. He was baptized, and she renewed the covenant, in the Presbyterian Church at South Salem in Oct. 1768. Her history is not known beyond the fact that she was the mother of all of his children, and must have lived later than 1792. They dwelt in South Salem as late as Oct. 1781, and probably till after June 1791, when their daughter Huldah was married there. We next find the family in Manlius, Onondaga Co., N. Y., in Jan. 1804, when their daughter Electa was married. About 1808 or 1810, he bought a farm in Pompey, N. Y., on which he lived till March 1825. Here his wife probably died, but the date has not been found. He married (2d), at Pompey, Sarah Osborn, widow of Daniel Chapin, and dau. of Daniel and Sarah (Osburn) Osborn, of Ridgefield, where she was born, 3 May 1756. She died in Dec. 1812, at Pompey, or Manlius, and was buried there. In March 1825, he moved to Henderson, N. Y., to live with his son Amasa, who went there at the same time. He died in Henderson, about March 1831, after an illness of only one day and one night, and was then called 85 years old. He was a man of stalwart proportions, about six feet and two inches in height, and of corresponding weight. He was a soldier of the Revolutionary War; was in the battle of Long Island, 27 Aug. 1776; at the capture of Burgoyne in Oct. 1777; and wintered at Valley Forge, in 1777-1778, excepting a short furlough in which he went home for food and clothing. While out with a party of men, observing the motions of a British vessel which was passing up the Hudson River, they were fired upon, and a part of the brim of his cocked hat was cut away by a grape-shot. This torn hat, with the sword and musket which he used, were carefully kept by him during his life, but the musket was overcharged and burst by his irreverent grandsons, 4 July 1834.

II. Samuel Whitney, b. in Ridgefield, Conn., 12 Oct. 1749; a farmer; married in Stockbridge, Mass., 3 Jan. 1775, Mary St. John, who was born in Sharon, Conn., 14 Jan. 1755, dau. of Mark and Anna (Gay) St. John. They lived for a few years, perhaps till after the Revolutionary War, in Stockbridge, Mass., after which he went with his family to the State of New York, living for a time in the large old town of Johnstown, Montgomery Co. (part of which is now in Fulton Co., part in Hamilton Co., and part in Montgomery Co.), also for a time in the town of German Flats, perhaps in that part which is now Warren, Herkimer Co., and possibly, also in Galway, Saratoga Co. In October, 1793, he settled on the Brothertown Indian lands, in Paris, now Kirkland, N. Y., where he bought one hundred acres of land from the State, a part of which lies in the present town of Marshall, the town-line crossing the farm, receiving his deed I Sept. 1795; and his grandchildren still own and occupy the farm, though the deed has not yet been proved, acknowledged or recorded. On this farm they died; he, 12 July 1822, aged 72 years; and she, 14 Feb.

160	III. James Whitney, lived at, or near, Johnstown, N. Y. Mrs. Anna (Whitney) Snow, of Henderson, N. Y., remembers that he visited his brother Samuel, at Kirkland, N. Y., and that two of his children also visited there; but she does not know the names of his wife or any of his children.
161	IV. Elizabeth Whitney, married in South Salem, N. Y., 17 Dec. 1778, Philip Wood. No record of her birth has been found, but tradition asserts that John Whitney had two daughters, and until more evidence is found, she is given a place here. Her husband was possibly the same Philip, son of Jacob Wood, who was baptized in South Salem, 15 March 1761.
Error Ac.	V. Benjamin Whitney, b. in Salem, N. Y., 23 Jan. 1758; a farmer; married in Otsego, N. Y., Ann Mercy Harris, dau. of Asa and Mary (Johnson) Harris, of Otsego. They settled at New Hartford, Conn., and, early in 1797, moved to Otsego; thence to Springfield Centre, N. Y., and from there to Mexico, N. Y., perhaps in that part which afterward formed the town of Parish, where he owned a farm. This he sold, when quite advanced in life, and went to Ellisburgh, N. Y., to live with his daughter. He and his wife were very worthy members of the Baptist Church. It is said that they became dependent, in their last years, through misplaced confidence in some near relatives. She died in Ellisburgh, 21 Aug. 1835, aged 74, and was buried in the "Fish neighborhood," near Deacon Lum's, in the south part of Ellisburgh. He is said to have died at Grand Rapids, Mich., or as another account says, at Plymouth, Mich., 15 Feb. 1847, aged 89 years; but there is great uncertainty as to these dates and places. It is supposed that he served in the Revolutionary War.	68

The year is worn away from the record, which calls her "daughter of Daniel and Betty Smith," but contains no other mention of this household, leaving nothing to fix her place in the family. Perhaps she was that Molly Smith who died at Ridgefield, 4 Aug. 1832, aged 83 years.
168	IV. Daniel Smith, b. in Ridgefield, Conn., 9 Sept. 1748; a farmer; married, 8 Dec. 1774, in Ridgefield, Rachel Perlee. ¹ They settled on his father's homestead in Ridgefield, where she died, 20 Dec. 1793, aged 39 years. He married (2d), 11 Jan. 1795, in Ridgefield, Esther Crane. A duplicate record of this marriage calls him "Daniel Smith, 2d," and he was known as "Daniel Smith, 3d," from 1775 to 1783. N. Y. They then settled at Wyoming, Penn., and were living there at the time of the battle of Wyoming, 3 July 1778, when they fled to Warwick. He afterward returned to Wilkes-Barre, to look after his property, took the measles, and died there. She supported herself and children at Warwick by teaching, till the end of the Revolutionary War; and in 1783 married Thomas Burrows, who was born in Coventry, England, and, when about twenty-one years old, came to America. He served in several campaigns, during nearly seven years, in the Revolutionary War, and at its close had reached the rank of Captain. Tradition makes him a member of "John Livingston's regiment," which we cannot find, and severely wounds him "at the taking of Ticonderoga," when nobody was hurt. Another tradition calls him a sea-captain.

After marriage, they settled in New York City, and the Directory notes him, spelling his name Burras till 1798, as boatman, Wine St., Bowery, 1794; shiprigger, same place, 1705; rigger, Bedlow St., 1798, 1799 and 1800; and seaman, Pump St., 1803; though tradition makes him a partner with Solomon Townsend, ironmonger, and says that he died of yellow fever about 1799 to 1801. She then returned, with her children, to Warwick, and, after some years, moved, with her daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth (Truesdell) Carpenter, to Elmira, N. Y., and there died. While in

New York, they attended St. Paul's Church.

V. Benjamin Whitney, b. in Ridgefield, Conn., I June 1750; a farmer; married, in Orange Co., N. Y., Sarah Ketcham. He lived in Warwick, N. Y., after 1760, until the close of the Revolutionary War, during which he was one of a company of militia, under Capt. Minthorn. They moved to Romulus, N. Y., and from there to Shelby, N. Y., where he died in 1825 or 6, and she in 1831—both at the house of their daughter, Mrs. Sarah (Whitney) Goldsborough. They were buried in Shelby, at Weatherwax Corners. Tradition tells of his mills and other property at Wyoming, Penn., having been burned at the time of the Wyoming Massacre, but he was then only eighteen years old.

VII. Abijah Whitney, b. in Warwick, Orange Co., N. Y., 10 or 11 July 1754; a weaver and farmer; married, 7 Aug. 1777, in Warwick, Elizabeth Elisworth, born in Brooklyn, N. Y., 4 July 1761, dau. of William and Sarah (Brower) Elisworth. They settled in Warwick, where he was a deacon. He died in Warwick, 24 May 1802, and was buried there. He had an ear-mark for his animals recorded in Ridgefield, 17 Ap. 1772, and 18 Dec. 1773. He married in Ridgefield, 11 Aug. 1773, Sarah Bundy, who was born in Ridgefield, 13 Aug. 1754, "only dau." of John and Sarah (Nichols) Bundy. Samuel Camp, pastor of the Congregational Church in Ridgebury, to David Cates, of the same place, a farmer, born in June 1753, possibly the youngest child of Samuel and Rachel (Hayes) Gates. They moved, about 1789, to Hinesburgh, Vt., where he died of consumption, 19 June 1793, and was buried in the Hinesburgh Cemetery. In 1797 she removed, with some of her children, to Paris, N. The farm was, in 1874, owned by two of his grandsons, and the old thatched barn was still standing, more than a hundred years old. She died in North Salem, 8 May 1795, in the 37th year of her age, and was buried in the North Salem Cemetery, near the Episcopal Church, where VIII. Josiah Anson Whitney, b. in Ridgefield, Conn., 18 Jan. 1762; 1 a millwright; served in the Revolutionary War, and though he was only thirteen years old when it began, tradition says that he served six years, and "held a Captain's commission under Gen. George Washington." He married, about 1786 or the beginning of 1787, at Danbury, Conn., Rebecca Olmstead. Perhaps Danbury was their dwelling place for the first ten years; but in the early part of 1797, they were living in Paris, N. Y., and, about 1800, they moved to Westmoreland, N. Y., where she died, and was buried. He married (2d), 20 Sept. 1802, Sally Leet, who was born in Guilford, Conn., where also the marriage took place.

They were buried in the North Salem Cemetery. An obituary, signed J. H. F., says: "She retained her faculties to the last, and in her last hour bore testimony to the value of our comforting form of faith. She had been a Universalist more than fifty years, and was a member of the lamented Hillyer's parish during his entire pastorate in North Salem, N. Y. She trusted in her Redeemer with childlike simplicity, and in her life bore testimony to the salutary influence of our religion. The funeral was attended in the Universalist church in North Salem, where the tearful eyes and mournful faces of the people revealed the affectionate regard in which the aged saint was held."

I. James Whitney, b. in Ridgefield, Conn., 28 May 1751. In the distribution of his father's estate, 20 June, 1763, he had a double portion, as the eldest son. He seems to have moved, with his mother, to the adjoining town of Southeast, N. Y., where he settled, with his wife Abigail ———, whose maiden name has not been reported. Tradition says that he died not many years after his marriage, leaving only one son, and that his widow married a second husband, named ———— Ganung, and had one daughter, Hannah Ganung, who married Benjamin Ruscoe, and had a son, Stephen Ruscoe, who married Phebe Ballard and was living at Danbury, Conn., in Feb. 1874.

II. Thomas Whitney, b. in Ridgefield, Conn., 19 June 1753; was of New Marlborough, Berkshire Co., Mass., 13 Sept. 1778, and then sold to Ezekiel Whitney, of Ridgefield, certain land in that town, "being the whole of my right or share in the Lands that lately belonged to my Honrd. father, James Whitney, Decd." Another deed shows that he was living at Greenburgh, N. Y., 8 Ap. 1793. He married, about 1786, at Danbury, Conn., Jemima Smellage, dau. of James Smellage, of Boston, Mass., where she was born, 20 Sept. 1763. He was a cabinet-maker, and, in his later life, a farmer. They dwelt in Danbury, Conn., Tarrytown and Haverstraw, N. Y.; and, lastly, at Huntingridge, in Stamford, Conn., where he died, in Dec. 1818, and was buried. She died at Claypits, in Huntington, L. IV. Ezekiel Whitney, b. in Ridgefield, Conn.; a shoemaker; had a share in the distribution of his father's estate, 20 June 1763; was living at Ridgefield 17 Sept. 1778 (when he bought his brother Thomas Whitney's share of his father's land), and 6 May 1783, when he quitclaimed certain land to proprietors of Ridgefield. The records also show that he was living in Dutchess Co., N. Y., 15 Ap. 1793. Next, we learn from his descendants that he married Patience Bailey, of Danbury, Conn., and after living for some years at, or near, Ezeriel Whiley Danbury, moved into Dutchess Co., N. Y.; and finally to Saugerties, Ulster Co., N. Y., where she died, 2 Sept. 1832, aged 68 years, and was buried in Saugerties Cemetery. He afterward went to live with his son, David Whitney, on the "Kauters Kill." in Catskill, N. Y., about five miles west of Catskill Village, where he died, aged 98 years, 6 months, and 12 days, and was buried on his son's farm, in a private cemetery. His family-record was destroyed many years ago, in the burning of the light-house at Saugerties Creek, of which he was the keeper. He served in the Revolutionary War, and enjoyed a pension for his service. He was probably born about 1755; but none of the family have been able to give the date of his birth or death. The census of 1840 reported him as living with his son, David Whitney, in Catskill, at the age of ninety years, which appears to be too large.

III. Mary Whitney, b. in Ridgefield, Conn., date not found; had a share of her father's estate, distributed 20 June 1763; married, 27 Feb. 1777, at Ridgebury, Conn., by Rev. Samuel Camp, pastor of the Congregational Church at Ridgebury, to Silas Pearce, "of Philips Patent," N. Y. They were living at Danbury, Conn., 17 Sept. 1778, and in Southeast, Dutchess Co., N. Y., 6 May 1783. She is again mentioned, 13 Aug. 1793, as Mary Dickens.

Chil. of David and Rachel (Keeler) Osborn.

I. Richard Osborn, b. at Ridgefield, Conn., 4 Aug. 1727; and probably died young, as his name does not appear in the distribution of his father's estate, 6 Ap. 1758, in which his brother, David Osborn, was called the eldest son.

II. David Osborn, b. at Ridgefield, Conn., 25 Sept. 1729; a farmer; married Hannah Mead, I sister of Joseph Mead, and settled, before 4 Feb. 1768, at Starr's Plain, in the west part of Danbury, Conn., where his grandson, Richard Osborn, lived in 1875. He married (2d), Abiah Wilson, dau. of Benjamin and Deborah (Bennet) Wilson,2 of Ridgefield, and widow of Nathaniel Selleck. She was born at Ridgefield, 4 March 1740-41, and died there, 14 Feb. 1832, aged nearly 91 years, though the town-record called her age 94 years. He died in the Spring of 1807, at 208	VII. Elijah Rockwell, b. at Ridgefield, Conn., 30 March 1745; married at Ridgefield, 18 Nov. 1767, Eunice Cray, who died at Ridgebury, Conn., 2 June 1769. His father gave him a part of his homestead in Mopoo's Bogs, Ridgefield, 26 Feb. 1772, when he was of Ridgefield; but he was of Lanesborough, Mass., 8 Oct. 1773 and 1 Feb. 1774. He visited Ridgebury after 1820, when an old man, but our informant could not tell where he then lived.

209	VIII. Sarah Rockwell, b. at Ridgefield, Conn., 24 July 1747; married at Ridgefield, 8 Dec. 1768, William Forrester, who was born at Coleraine, in the North of Ireland, son of Frederick and Jane (Gault) Forrester, grandson of William, and great-grandson of Rev. William Forrester, who went from Berwick-upon-Tweed to Londonderry, Ireland. He sailed from Coleraine, with his brother Arthur Forrester, 29 Aug. 1762; arrived at New Castle, on the Delaware River, 27 Oct. 1762; went to New York City, 7 Nov. 1762; and thence to Ridgefield, Conn., in Nov.	907

He married (2d) Sarah Smith, who was born in Ridgefield, 8 Dec. 1740, dau. of John and Sarah Smith. He sold his Ridgefield home to his brother, Josiah Keeler, 24 May 1774, when he was of Cortlandt's Manor, N. Y.; where he was still living 30 Aug. 1783. They had their home in North Salem, N. Y., 1 Feb. 1787, 4 Ap. 1789, and for some years after, certainly till 5 May 1797; and were of Milton, N. Y., 28 June 1803, when they sold an undivided fourth part of seven acres and twenty rods of land in the "Old Asproom lot," in Ridgefield, which she inherited from her mother, Sarah Smith, of Ridgefield.	922
220	II. Josiah Keeler, b. in Ridgefield, Conn., 10 or 22 June 1741; married Elizabeth Stebbins, who was born in Ridgefield, 10 Aug. 1746, dau. of Benjamin and Elizabeth (Olmstead) Stebbins. They settled in Ridgefield, west of the north end of Mamanasco Pond, where he died, between 1 Jan. 1776 and the making of his father's will, 2 Feb. 1778. She married (2d), 3 Sept. 1786, at Ridgefield, Benjamin Barbery (or Barber, the name occurring in both forms), by whom she had one child, Ira Barbery, born in Ridgefield, 9 Dec. 1786. She died in Ridgefield, 28 Oct. 1799, in her 54th year, and was buried in Titicus Cemetery.	924

He died, without children, before 10 June 1773; his estate of £197 1s. 3d., was ordered to be distributed to his six brothers and sisters, 5 Ap. 1774, and the distribution approved by the court, 7 March 1775.
231	II. Daniel Keeler, had a share of his father's estate, 23 Oct. 1765; was living at Limestone, in Ridgefield, in 1799; had a son Stephen, to whom he deeded land in Ridgefield, 6 Aug. 1802, making his will at the same date, in which he named his wife Abigall———, and six children. He and his wife Abigail, then of Ridgefield, sold to Ezra Dann, of Ridgefield, 25 Nov. 1793, "land which was Distributed unto ye said Abigail, as Dower in ye homelot of John Richards, of said Ridgefield, Decd." His will was presented in court 5 June 1806, and his widow received her dower 12 May 1807. She seems, at her marriage with Keeler, to have been the widow, or possibly the daughter, of John Richards.	938

names are unknown, died when she was an infant, and she was adopted by her aunt, who married Thomas Baxter.

They dwelt in Ridgefield till the close of the Revolutionary War; then moved to Galway, N. Y.; and from there, in 1812, to Fenner, N. Y., where she died, 2 Ap. 1834, and was buried. He married (2d), about 1838, "a widow Stephens." He died at Fenner, 30 Sept. 1853, aged nearly 96 years, and was buried in Fenner. His widow died not long after, in the south part of the State of New York. He was a soldier in the Revolutionary War, and for many years enjoyed a pension for his service. He was a deacon of the second Baptist Church in Fenner; and often held town offices in Galway.

VII. Lewis Keeler, b. in Ridgefield, Conn., 4 Ap. 1760; served in the Revolutionary War. A short time before his death, he went back to Ridgefield, and visited among his friends for about three months, and his testimony at that time enabled some of his old comrades, and the widows of others, to prove their services and secure pensions. Some who saw him say he was then "a little dried-up old man, nearly ninety years old, and lived in New Jersey with his daughter." The census of 1840 seems to duplicate him; showing that Lewis Keeler, aged 82 years, lived in the family of Mary Burk; and Lewis Keeler, aged 81 years, in the family of Stephen Lawrence; both in Franklin, N. J. He died, it is said, in 1849, aged 89 years. About 1849–50, his nephew, Rev. Horace Doolittle, of Pompton, N. J., hearing that he was living at Goffle, a hamlet six miles north of Paterson, in the town of Manchester, N. J., went to see him, and found that he was already dead, and his widow away from home. His wife's name does not appear.

261

VIII. Thomas Keeler, b. in Ridgefield, Conn., 8 Ap. 1762; enlisted in 1776, when 14 years old, and served through the Revolutionary War, till the army was disbanded at Newburg; married, and had six children born in Ridgefield; then moved to Spencertown, Columbia Co., N. Y., and performed a tour of duty in the war of 1812, and on his way home, in 1814, sickened and died. He was at the siege of Yorktown and capture of Cornwallis.

IX. Mary Keeler, called "Marah" on the town-record, b. at Ridgefield, Conn., 26 May 1764; named in her father's will, 17 Ap. 1774; married, 14 Nov. 1784, at North Salem, N. Y., Reuben Doolittle, a tanner and shoemaker, son of Joseph and Abigail (Rockwell) Doolittle, of Ridgebury, Conn., where he was born 19 Ap. 1761. They settled, in 1787, in what is now the town of Malta, N. Y., which was their home until his death, which occurred 10 Aug. 1830, while visiting his son, Rev. Horace Doolittle, at Harlingen, N. J., where he was buried. After that, she dwelt with her son, Henry Doolittle, at Ballston, N. Y., and there died, 12 Dec.

1852, aged 88 years, 6 months and 16 days. She was buried at Malta. He held a commission in the Revolutionary army, and she enjoyed a pension for his services. He was a deacon, till his death, of the first church that was formed near his home in Malta. I She is remembered as a remarkably consistent Christian, and a lovely woman, retaining all her faculties till the close of her life. A notice in the New York Observer, of 20 Jan. 1853, from the pen of Rev. Nathaniel S. Prime, D. D., says: "In her 21st year she became hopefully pious, and made a profession of religion, from which time she maintained a character not only free from reproach, but of singular excellence and uniform consistency. About the same time, she was united in marriage with a man of great moral worth, strictly puritanical in his views and habits, and in the strict observance of the Sabbath, and the maintenance of family worship and parental instruction, particularly in the good old form of catechising. They reared a family of seven children, all of whom arrived at adult years, walking in the foot-steps of their parents. She has always been remarkable for a peculiar evenness of disposition under all the varied circumstances of life. A look of impatience never darkened her brow; nor did a hasty or fretful word drop from her lips."

X. Rhoda Keeler, b. at Ridgefield, Conn., 30 Dec. 1766; was named in her father's will, 17 Ap. 1774; married Abraham Ambler. They seem to have lived at Spencertown, N. Y., and at Nassau, N. Y., where she died about 1811 or 1812. He married (2d), in 1814, at Sharon, Conn., Rowena Boland, eldest dau. of John and Betty (Keeler) Boland, and niece of his first wife.

Joseph and Thankful (Hamblin) Bangs. He was born at Harwich, Mass., 31 Dec. 1739; or, according to his family-record, 1 Jan. 1740. They dwelt in Stratford, Conn., till about 1782; in Fairfield (Poquanock Parish), Conn., till 1791; in Stamford, N. Y., till 1809; then moved to Grand River, Upper Canada, where she died, 4 or 24 Feb. 1812. He died, 9 May 1824, at the house of his daughter, Mrs. Sarah (Bangs) Smith, with whom he had lived since Jan. 1818, on the Genesee River, about two miles above Portage Falls, in the town of Portage, and, probably, in the present town of Genesee Falls, N. Y. By his first wife, —— Hall, he had five children. He was a commissary in the French War, and an adjutant in the Revolutionary War. He was a communicant of the Protestant Episcopal Church, to which he was strongly attached, in which he had all his children baptized, and in which he frequently officiated as lay reader. They were confirmed in St. John's Church, Bridgeport, Conn., 22 Sept. 1785.

III. Freelove Keeler, b. in Ridgefield, Conn., 12 Jan. 1754; bap. at South Salem, N. Y., 31 March 1754; married Jacob Nash, who was born in Ridgefield, 30 Aug. 1751, son of Abraham and Rhoda (Keeler) Nash. They settled in Ridgefield, where she died before the Revolutionary War. He married again, moved to Ballston, N. Y., and at the beginning of the war, left from fear of the Indians, returned to Norwalk, Conn., and was there killed by the British, at the burning of Norwalk, 11 July 1779. He was buried at Ridgefield. His widow and her daughter, it is said went west, after the war.

II. Silas Whitney, b. at Fairfield, Conn., "July ve 16th 1742;" bap. at Fairfield, 21 July 1742; married "december ye 4, 1766," Esther Sherwood, who was "born march ye 2, 1745." They settled in North Stratford, Conn., where he died in little more than a year after his marriage, as Daniel Sherwood, of Fairfield, Conn., was appointed administrator of his estate, 23 Feb. 1768; and the inventory, dated 18 Feb. 1768, amounting to £151 19s., was presented in Court, 24 Feb. 1768. She married (2d) Timothy Sanford, 1 b. at Reading, Conn., 8 Feb. 1733-4. son of Joseph Sanford; and settled at Umpewaug, in Reading, where he died in 1784, aged 50 years, according to his gravestone in Umpewaug grayevard. During her second widowhood, she applied to the Court for the distribution of her third of the estate of her first husband, Silas Whitney, which was done, 3 Ap. 1786, more than eighteen years after his death. She married (3d) Josiah Stebbins, who died; and she, after a third widowhood of many years, died in Umpewaug, 10 March 1826, and was buried by the family of her second husband. Her gravestone bears his name, calling her age 80 years, though it was really 81 years, lacking 3 days, if her birth-record was made in the old style.

III. Peter Whitney, b. at Fairfield, Conn., 6 Jan. 1743-4; bap. at Fairfield, 8 Jan. 1743-4; was, in early life, a seaman, then captain of his own vessel, and later in life, a trader in Southport, Conn. He is said to have been pilot of a sloop of war, built by the State of Connecticut, in the Revolutionary War. He married, 27 Ap. 1788 [his daughter's familyrecord says, I May], Grace Bulkley, born about 1769, dau. of William and - (Burr) Bulkley, of Green's Farms, Conn. He made a will 28 Oct. 1790, and again 31 Oct. 1790; and died at Southport, 7 Nov. 1790, of "black jaundice," according to the record of Rev. Philo Shelton, Episcopal, who buried him, 9 Nov. 1790, in the old graveyard in Fairfield, where his gravestone still stands.

His widow was married (2d), at Fairfield, 2 Sept. 1792, by Rev. Philo Shelton, to Ephraim Robbins. She died in Fairfield, 7 Oct. 1820, of fever, and was buried by the side of her first husband, Capt. Whitney, whose

IV. Aaron Whitney, b. at Fairfield, Conn., 25 Sept. 1745; bap. at Fairfield, 29 Sept. 1745; a weaver (for which trade he was taxed, while he lived in Connecticut), farmer, miller, and trader; married at Stratfield, now Bridgeport, Conn., Hannah Turney, dau. of "Old Capt. Turney and Mary, his wife," of Bridgeport. She was born at Stratfield, and was only fifteen years old when married. They dwelt, for some years, in Fairfield; then moved to Stratford, Conn., where he paid to Jonathan Nichol £71 13s., for 21 acres and 125 rods of land at Shaganewamps, 30 Nov. 1784. He also bought land, 22 Ap. 1785, in Stratford, "a little above Long Hill, on the west side of Newtown road;" and again, 20 Oct. 1786, in the same neighborhood, "a little above Long Hill, in North Stratford Parish." He was then called, "of Stratford." They settled, in 1790, in that part of Frederickstown, which is now the south-west part of Kent, N. Y., where he owned a farm that was thought to contain a silver mine. About 1800, he moved to the north-west part of Southeast, in the same county, about three miles west of Dykeman's Station, on the Harlem Railroad, where he owned a saw-mill, grist-mill, and ashery, and was a partner in a country store. About 1805, he moved to Delaware Co., N.Y., where he lived about three years, and returned to Fishkill, N. Y., where his wife died in March 1809, and was buried in the old Gilead burial-ground in Carmel, Putnam Co., N. Y. He then went to Patterson, N. Y., to live with his son, Silas Whitney; and afterward married Sarah Kelly, dau. of Jonathan Kelly, and widow of Daniel Gay. He died at the house of his son Silas, half a mile west of his own place, 20 Jan. 1824, and was buried beside his first wife, in the old Gilead graveyard. Their graves are unmarked. His second wife died at the house of her son, Abner Gay, in Patterson, and was buried in the Ellis burial-ground, in Southeast. He is said to have served in the Revolutionary War; but another account says that his service was vicarious, as he hired a substitute to do his fighting.

V. Amy Whitney, b. at Fairfield, Conn., 6 June 1747; bap. at Fairfield, 22 June 1747; married, 3 Nov. 1768, Silas Haynes. She was living so late as 1817, at Weston, Conn., and was then the wife of Josiah Lyon, but is thought to have had no children.

VI. Nehemiah Whitney, b. at Fairfield, Conn., 9 Aug. 1749; bap. at Fairfield, 3 Sept. 1749, and was there 8 Jan. 1778; but nothing more has been ascertained.

VII. Sarah Whitney, b. at Fairfield, Conn., 16 May 1751; bap. at Fairfield, 19 May 1751; married at Fairfield, 10 Jan. 1769, John Barlow. They settled at Ridgefield, Conn., but moved to Ballston, N. Y., about 1802, and died there. All of their children, except the eldest, went with them to Ballston; but most of them finally settled near Springfield, Ohio.

VIII. Ransford Whitney, b. at Fairfield, Conn., 10 March 1753; married, at Derby, Conn., 26 Sept. 1773, Ruth Canfield, dau. of Joseph and Sarah Canfield, of Derby. The following is a copy of the original record in the docket of the officiating Justice: "Be it Remembered that, on the 26th day of September, A. D. 1773, mr. Ransum Whitne and mrs. Ruth Canfield was married together by me, Joseph Hull Jr., Justice of Peace." They settled in Derby, where he was chosen surveyor of highways, 10 Dec. 1781 and 9 Dec. 1782. He was living at Watertown, Conn. 11 Feb. 1793, when he bought land there; and also 25 Dec. 1797, when he sold three acres of it. He sold his interest in a saw-mill in Watertown, 20 Feb. 1794, to Noah and Eleazer Judd, for £13; and his farm of forty acres. 2 Jan. 1800, to Truman Smith, of Woodbury, for $500. He was probably identical with the "Captain Whitney," of Watertown, whose wife joined the Cong. Church there in February, 1800, and was dismissed by letter, date not recorded; and who is said to have had a daughter of remarkable beauty.

288 IX. Lyman Whitney, b. at Fairfield, Conn., 22 Oct. 1755; died 25 Jan. 1756.

- X. Levi Whitney, b. at Fairfield, Conn., 11 July 1757; died 24 Jan. 1777. Tradition makes him a soldier in the Revolution, and a prisoner in the New York Sugar House; and it is stated that he so suffered from hunger as to gnaw the flesh from his own arms, and died after the first meal that he ate after his release.
- 290 XI. Ebenezer Whitney, b. at Fairfield, Conn., 10 Nov. 1758. Possibly he went to Dutchess Co., and married Martha Sherwood.
 - XII. Walter Whitney, b. at Fairfield, Conn., 23 Jan. 1760, according to family-record, while the town-record says, 3 Feb. 1760; served from 1 Ap. 1777 to 15 Dec. 1779, in a company of artillery, and was, in later life, a school-teacher and farmer; married, 21 Ap. 1784, at Fairfield, Anah Wells, who was born in Connecticut, 23 Aug. 1759. They dwelt at Fairfield, till 1788; at New Milford, Conn., till Oct. 1789; then settled on the Helderberg Mountains, in the present town of Bern, N. Y., after which they dwelt in Bethlehem, N. Y., New Scotland, N. Y., and, in June 1796, at Watervliet, N. Y.; then, for several years, in Meredith, N. Y., till about 1825 or 1828, when they settled in Albany, N.Y. There they died; she, at 16 Jackson Street, 30 Jan. 1845, aged 85 years, 5 months, and 7 days; he, at 26 DeWitt Street, in consequence of a fall, 18 July 1846, in his 87th year. They were buried at the head of State Street, but now rest in one grave, in lot 159, section 92, on Long Ridge, in Albany Rural Cemetery, covered by a large slab of marble, which, besides the usual inscription, bears the American Eagle, the motto "E Pluribus Unum," and various military insignia, to commemorate his service in the Revolutionary War. They were members of the Presbyterian Church. The census of 1840 exaggerates his age to 87 years.

XIII. Josiah Whitney, b. 1 Aug. 1762, at Fairfield, Conn., where we find him living, 1 June, 1796; a teacher; lived at Southport, and is said not to have married. This is probably an Josiah Whitney, of Greenfield, married Hannah

Steele, dau. of Capt. Bradford and Mary (Perkins) Steele, of Derby, Conn., where she was born 4 Aug. 1766. The record of the Congregational Church of Derby, Conn., shows that Josiah Whitney married Hannah Steele in March 1785. He was capt. of a military company at Greenfield Hill, Conn., in Oct. 1793. She was living in Derby 28 Nov. 1804, perhaps a widow, as her husband was not mentioned.

II. John Whitney, b. at Branford, Conn., 13 Ap. 1754; bap. there, 19 May 1754; was a freeman of Branford, in 1799; a shipbuilder and captain of a vessel in the West India trade, at a time when more vessels, in that trade, were owned in Branford, than in New Haven. Tradition says that he served on a privateer in the Revolutionary War, was captured, and enjoyed a pension for his services. He was married in Branford, by Rev. Philemon Robbins, Congregational, 18 Dec. 1776, to Amy Howd. She joined the Congregational Church at Branford, 27 June 1784; and died in Branford, of apoplexy, 24 Oct. 1809, aged 55 years. He married (2d), at Branford, 26 June 1810, Hannah Lamphier, widow of Rosewell Chidsey, of East Haven. They joined the Branford Cong. Church, under the ministry of Rev. Timothy P. Gillett, 6 Jan. 1822. He died in Branford, 8 Sept. 1835, "aged 82." She died in Branford, "of Fitts", 15 July 1844, "aged 90." They were buried in the old graveyard at Branford, near the gate, about a quarter of a mile east of their house.

- III. Sarah Whitney, b. at Northford, Branford, Conn., 10 Dec. 1757; 295 bap, at Northford, 10 July 1758; married at Branford, 1 Jan. 1797, Eber Hotchkiss, of Guilford, Conn., and had no children.
- IV. Joseph Whitney, b. at Branford, Conn., 9 Aug. 1759; bap. at 296 Branford, 11 Nov. 1759; and was probably drowned when young.

V. Enos Whitney, b. at Branford, Conn., 10 Aug. 1761; bap. at Branford, Conn., 16 Oct. 1763; a blacksmith; served for six months in the Revolutionary War; enjoyed a pension for his service, and delighted in keeping till the end of his life the old musket which he carried. He married in 1787, at Wallingford, Conn., Eunice Avery, born in Wallingford, 22 May 1760, dau, of Abner Avery. They settled in Northford Society, in Branford, where he had bought, 30 Aug. 1785, two acres of land, which he sold 31 May 1798. He bought two acres of land, 7 Jan. 1796, in Northford Society, in the south-east part of the town of Wallingford; and ten acres, 24 May 1808, in the south-westerly part of Wallingford-which last he sold 17 Sept. 1818, calling himself of Gibson, Susquehanna Co., Penn., whither he had moved from Wallingford, in 1817, settling near Gelatt Hollow, I

She was baptized, and joined the Congregational Church in Northford, 25 Aug. 1799; and on removing to Gibson, took a letter of recommendation, and became one of the constituent members of the Congregational Church at Union Hill, in Gibson, which was formed 21 Nov. 1818, and adopted the Presbyterian form of government, in October 1833. He also became a member of the Presbyterian Church after they moved to Pennsylvania. She died at Gibson, 20 Oct. 1838, aged 78 years; and was buried in Union Hill Cemetery, in Gibson. In 1840, when nearly eighty years old, he returned to Connecticut, driving his team of three horses, with his Pennsylvanian waggon, and made his farewell visit to his relatives and old friends. He married (2d), in 1843, at Mount Pleasant, Wayne Co., Penn., Mrs. Mary Hiscox, a widow, who, as "Widow Enos Whitney," was dismissed, 17 Jan. 1847, from the church in Gibson to that at Mount Pleasant, where she died a few years later. He died at Gibson, 8 Oct. 1846, and was buried there, 11 Oct. 1846, Rev. G. N. Todd, Presbyterian, preaching the funeral sermon.

the Revolutionary War by a British armed vessel, and had his share of suffering in the Jersey prison-ship, being nearly naked on his release. He married at Branford, 14 Sept. 1790, Sarah Rogers, born 13 July 1772, dau. of David Rogers, a soldier in the Revolution. She joined the church in Branford, under the ministry of Rev. Lynde Huntington, 6 Nov. 1796. They lived in Branford till late in life, and then went to live with their son, William Whitney, at Georgetown, D. C., where they died; he, 7 Jan. 1828; she, in 1831; and were buried in the old Presbyterian Cemetery.

Attached to her family-record, in her handwriting, is the following prayer: "O, Father of mercy, have mercy on these Thy creatures, who will have no mercy on themselves: Thou hast told us so in Thy Word, and Thy unworthy hand-maid has found it to be a truth, and feels it and sees it to be true. I have no good thing that is in my flesh: Thou knowest I have nothing but what I received from Thee, that is good; and no one man knoweth but him that receiveth it. These are my dear children, whom Thou hast trusted to my care. Thou knowest what has been my mind and chief desire, and so I expect to be judged."

VIII. Margaret Whitney, b. at Branford, Conn., where she was baptized, 3 July 1768; married at Branford, George Farrell, a ship-builder, who was born in Rhode Island. They settled in Guilford, Conn., where he died and was buried. She married (2d), 13 Dec. 1807, Sylvester Redfield, born at Killingworth, 13 May 1744, youngest child of Daniel and Elizabeth Redfield. They settled at Killingworth, now Clinton, Conn., and there died; he, 9 Sept. 1823, in his 80th year; she, date not given. They were buried in Clinton.

III. Daniel Whitney, b. at Stamford, Conn., 10 May 1754; bap. there, 2 June 1754; a cooper; married by Abrm. Davenport, Assistant, at Stamford, 19 June 1776, to Hannah Selleck, born at Stamford, 29 March 1761, dau. of Peter and Martha (Whiting) Selleck. They lived, during the whole of their married life, about two miles west of the village of Stamford, in a house occupied by Widow John Selleck in 1868. He was a soldier of the Revolution, and enjoyed a pension, as did his wife after his death, for his services. He died, on Sunday morning, 6 Aug. 1826, aged 72 years, 3 months and 2 days. His widow, who was a remarkably vigorous woman, and able, when over eighty years old, to walk from Stamford Landing, two and a half miles, to her home, died in Stamford, 24 Feb. 1849, aged 87 years, 10 months and 24 days; and was buried near her husband, in a graveyard south of the village, near the river and the railway, where their gravestones may still be found, by one willing to encounter the weeds and mosquitoes. She was a communicant in the Episc. Church.

V. Darling Whitney, b. at Stamford, Conn., 25 Sept. 1758. It is said that he enlisted, when eighteen years old, in the American army, and served at West Point, and later, went with a tory to whom he was apprenticed, to Long Island, and remained there, never finishing his trade, but settling as a farmer, at East Woods, now the village of Woodbury, Oyster Bay, L. I. The records of St. George's Episcopal Church at Hempstead, L. I., show that Darling Whitney, of Hempstead, married, 14 Jan. 1779. Sarah Valentine, of Oyster Bay, born 29 Dec. 1757, daughter, it is thought, of Robert Valentine, of Oyster Bay, and great grand dau. of Richard Valentine, who came from Lancashire, England. She died at East Woods, 3 July 1821. He married a second wife, Catharine date not given, who survived him, and died, it is thought, at Albany, N. Y. He was a Major in the War of 1812, and was for some time stationed at Fort Greene, in Brooklyn, N. Y., under Gen. Johnson. In May 1819, he sold his farm to his son, and removed to New York City, where he engaged in trade as a grocer. He died at the corner of Attorney and Stanton Streets, New York, 14 Nov. 1834, and was buried in Fountain Hill Cemetery, Oyster Bay, L. I.

III. John Whitney, bap. in Stratford Episcopal Church, 16 March 1767; a mariner; unmarried; went from home on a voyage and never returned; and never returned; some of the family think he perished at in Algiers. He was a sea, and others that he was captured, and died in Algiers. He was a soldier in the Revolutionary War.

IV. Hannah Whitney, bap. in the Episcopal Church, in Stratford, I March 1769. Tradition says that she married — Wright, and settled in Huntington, Conn., whence they moved to Harwinton, Conn.; and that they had several children, among whom were Polly, who married — Castle, Sally, Nancy, Samuel, Isaac, the youngest, and at least one more; but no records have been discovered. Another tradition says that she married — Weakins, and lived on Long Hill, Conn. There was a Long Hill in Stratford.

V. Sarah Whitney, b. in Stratford, Conn., about 1771; bap. in the Episcopal Church in Stratford, I Aug. 1775, though the record gives not her name. Tradition says that she was the most beautiful girl in Newtown, Conn., and was engaged to be married; but died before the intended nuptials, of consumption, in Newtown or Huntington, Conn. Although the descendants of her brothers, James and Isaac Whitney, had lost all knowledge of each other, at the time of our inquiries, each branch had a distinct tradition of her name and history.

VI. Isaac Whitney, b. in Stratford, Conn., about the latter part of 1773; bap. in the Episcopal Church in Stratford, I Aug. 1775, though his name is not stated in the record; a farmer; went to Claverack, N. Y., to learn the shoemakers trade, but did not continue at it; married, 15 Jan. 1798, at Watertown, Conn., Susanna Bryan, who was, it is thought, of Milford, Conn. She was daughter of David and Jane Bryan. Her children say that her mother's name was Jane Buckingham, of Old Milford, Conn.; but it seems quite probable that this name came not by birth, but rather by a second marriage, with Hon. Gideon Buckingham. They settled in Watertown, Conn., where he bought, 13 Ap. 1805, of Jonathan Scott, one acre of land, "about one mile south of the Presbiterean meeting house in said Watertown." Here he dwelt till his death, of "the lake fever", 14 Jan. 1807, aged 33 years. He was buried the next day, in the old cemetery, in Watertown, directly opposite his house, where his gravestone was standing in 1873. She was baptized and admitted to the Congregational Church in Watertown, in September 1807, and had her three children baptized at the same time. As guardian of her children, properly authorized, she sold their place in Watertown, 28 Oct. 1816, and taking from the church a letter of dismission, the date of which does not appear, moved with her little family, in Nov. 1816, to Westerlo, N. Y., where she dwelt till the Autumn of 1828. She then went to live with her daughter, Mrs. Sally (Whitney) Snyder, at Clarkson, N. Y., where she died, 16 March 1861, and was buried in the cemetery of the Presbyterian Church at Clarkson Corners. She was a very intelligent woman, a kind mother, and an exemplary Christian.

In Feb. 1793, they left Stockbridge for Brown's Settlement, on the "Boston Purchase," with a portion of their children, in company with their son, Ezbon Slosson, and his family. They reached their destination, 4 March 1793, and began their settlement, on the east bank of the creek, near the present site of Sprague's grist-mill, in their son's bark-covered shanty, which was the first dwelling erected in the village of Newark Valley, Tioga Co., N. Y. The First Congregational Church of Newark Valley, then called the "First Church in Tioga," was organized 17 Nov. 1803, and she joined it on Sunday, 20 Nov. 1803, by a letter from the church in Stockbridge, dated 2 Oct. 1803, her name being the first in the list of admissions. She died. 10 March 1819, in her 81st year; he died, 21 Feb. 1827, in his 94th year. They were buried in the old Brown Cemetery, in Berkshire, 1 Tioga Co., N. Y.

383	I. Mary Whitney, b. at Stamford, Conn., 21 Feb. 1744-5; bap at Middlesex, now Darien, Conn., 31 March 1745; married Jarvis, and is said to have had, in 1808, two sons, Samuel Jarvis and Noah Jarvis, who were then living in New York.
384	II. Sylvanus Whitney, b. at Stamford, Conn., 25 Jan. 1746–7, according to the town-record, while the family-record says, erroneously, 25 Dec. 1747; bap. at Middlesex, now Darien, Conn., 15 Feb. 1747; died at Stamford, 31 Jan. 1748, according to the family-record, while the town-record says, 31 Jan. 1746–7. The last cannot be true, according to the date of baptism.
385	III. Sylvanus Whitney, b. at Stamford, Conn., 3 Feb. 1748-9, O. S., according to the town-record, and 14 Feb. 1749, N. S., according to his family-record; bap. at Middlesex, now Darien, Conn., 12 March 1749; a trader; married, 30 Sept. 1772, at Norwalk, Conn., by Rev. Jeremiah Leaming, D.D., Episcopal, to Betty Hoyt, dau. of Nathan and Elizabeth (Lockwood) Hoyt, of Norwalk, where she was born 7 May 1751, according to her family-record, while the Hoyt Genealogy, p. 381, and Hall's History of Norwalk, p. 224, say 16 June 1751. He first settled in the parish of Green's Farms, Fairfield, Conn., where he built a house, which he sold, 12 Oct. 1773, to Gideon Gray, for £57. He was living at Stamford in 1775; and remained loyal. Sabine's Loyalists of the American Revolution, II., pp. 425-6, says: "In June, 1775, he was arraigned before the Committee of that town,1 charged with the offence of buying and selling tea. He made a written confession of the fact, delivered up the tea remaining in his possession, and was allowed to depart. As the reader may be curious to learn how the Whigs sometimes disposed of this obnoxious article, the following account of the destruction of that received of Mr. Whitney is here given: 'About eight o'clock in the evening a gallows was erected in the middle of the street A large concourse of people soon collected, and were joined by a number of the soldiery quartered in the town. A grand procession soon began to move. In the first place, a large guard under arms, headed by two captains who led the van, with the unfortunate Tea hung across a pole, sustained by two unarmed soldiers. Secondly, followed the Committee of Observation. Thirdly, the spectators who came to see the great sight. And after parading through part of the principal streets, with drums beating and fifes playing a most doleful sound, they came to the gallows, where the common hangman soon performed his office to the general satisfaction of the spectators. As it was thought dangerous to let the said Tea hang all night,	1402 under it, which soon reduced it to ashes; and, after giving three loud huzzas, the people soon dispersed to their respective homes, without any bad consequences attending. Mr. Whitney was present, during the execution, and behaved himself as well as could be expected.' He removed to St. John, New Brunswick, at the peace, and was a magistrate, and one of the aldermen of that city," from 1804 to 1807, and from 1812 to 1818.

His wife died, 8 Dec. 1808, at Carleton, St. John, N. B., and was buried there. He was married (2d), 21 Feb. 1810, at Carleton, St. John, by Rev. Roger Viets, rector of Digby, N. S., to Sarah Sniffen, born at Rye, N. Y., 2 March 17—, widow of Abraham Wetmore, of Rye, and St. John, N. B., who died in New York, 6 Feb. 1790. They died at Carleton, St. John; she, 18 Dec. 1818; he, 24 Aug. 1827; and were buried there.

His descendants say that he dwelt at Lloyd's Neck, Oyster Bay, L. I., N. Y., in the latter part of the Revolutionary War. Tradition also says that he was one of the leaders of the party which took his father and neighbors prisoners, at the Middlesex Church, on Sunday 22 July 1781.

IV. Sarah Whitney, b. at Stamford, Conn., 25 Feb. 1752; bap. at Middlesex, now Darien, Conn., 29 March 1752; married Benjamin James, a cooper, whose origin has not been learned, beyond the fact that he was born in Connecticut. At the close of the Revolutionary War, they settled at St. John, N. B., and there died at unknown dates. Tradition says that they dwelt in Darien, till they went to St. John.

V. Platt Whitney, b. at Stamford, Conn., 11 May 1754; bap. at Middlesex, Conn., 26 May 1754; "died young."

VI. Rhoda Whitney, b. at Stamford, Conn., 28 Oct. 1756; bap. at Middlesex, 31 Oct. 1756; married in St. John's (Episcopal) Church, Stamford, 24 Sept. 1775, Robert Escot, "resident in Stamford, an Englishman from London." They afterward resided in New York City. She died at Darien, Conn., at the house of her brother, Josiah Whitney, 16 Aug. 1829, in the 73d year of her age. She was buried in Darien, and her gravestone bears the name "Rhoda Scott." They had no children.

VII. Hannah Whitney, b. at Stamford, Conn., 21 Jan. 1760; bap. at Middlesex, now Darien, Conn., 27 Jan. 1760; married, 18 Ap. 1779, at Stamford Episcopal Church, Joseph Smith, "late of Huntington, Long Island"; married (2d) at Stamford, 18 or 26 Ap. 1787, Nathaniel Slason, farmer, son of Deliverance and Hannah (Hait) Slason, of Stamford, where he was born 2 Jan. 1744–5, O. S., or 13 Jan. 1745, N. S. They settled in Darien, and there died; he, 1 May 1835, in his 91st year; she, ¹This may have been a second marriage; as it Nov. 1771, with Abijah Nash, of Norwalk, is is possible that she was the same Sarah Whitney, recorded in the register of St. John's (Episcopal) of Stamford, whose marriage at that place, 5 Church, Stamford.

III. Ezra Whitney, b. in Yorktown, N. Y.; was never married; lived in Yorktown, with his brother Seth; was for many years paralytic; and the date of his death is not on record.
IV. Abijah Whitney, b. at Yorktown, N. Y.; settled near his father, and kept an inn, and was also a farmer, his house being on the corner west of his father's house, where the road turns north to Hallock's Mills; married Melicent Hyatt, dau. of Nathaniel and Mary (Merritt) Hyatt. Rev. Silas Constant, of Crompond, noted in his diary a visit, "26 Feb. 1794. At Bijah Whitney's." He sold to his brother Seth, 3 March 1797, fiftyeight acres of land, being a part of a farm that he bought of his father, Seth Whitney. He died in Yorktown, about 1803. His wife joined the church in Crompond, 11 July 1802; and at the same place, in 1810, she married (2d) John Lounsbury.	1472
V. Seth Whitney, b. at Yorktown, N. Y., 3 May 1765; married at Yorktown, by Rev. Both traditions may, however, refer to the same place, as Carmel, Kent, Patterson and Southeast were all formed from the old Frederickstown, 7 March 1788. It is also said that he lived in Fishkill, N. Y.; he certainly dwelt in its vicinity, possibly in Kent or Patterson. He died, and was buried, in Dutchess Co., N. V. Elias Whitney, b. at Crompond, Yorktown, N. Y., 15 Aug. 1770; went, when eighteen years old, to Fishkill, N. Y., and in 1815, moved to Poughkeepsie, N. Y., where he spent the rest of his life. He was a weaver and gardener, which last business he continued to pursue till the last year of his life. He married, 17 Jan. 1792, at Fishkill, Judith Wood, dau. of Isaac and Martha (Way) Wood, who lived four miles south of Fishkill Village, on the mountain, where she was born, 5 Feb. 1774; and, for nearly sixty-eight years, they lived happily together, till his death, 8 June 1860. An obituary notice says of him: "Mr. Whitney had been married for 70 years, and was the father of ten children, the grandfather of forty-seven, the great-grandfather of eighty-seven, and the great-grandfather of six children." He made a profession of religion and was baptized by immersion, when 88 years old. His widow survived him until 3 May 1863. They are interred in the Baptist burial-ground in Garden Street, Poughkeepsie.

"She was very attentive," writes a grandchild, "to all the duties of church, and though quite deaf during the latter years of her life, she was at the prayer-meeting regularly, unless the weather was too stormy. When able to hear scarcely a word, she used to say, 'I always like to be there, you know, Elias, for if I cannot hear much, I can fill my place.' Dear, good, kind grandmother! I trust she 'fills her place' beside the Master, now."

V. Henry Whitney, b. at Derby, Conn., 30 July 1772; bap. in the Congregational Church at Derby, 2 Aug. 1772; a merchant in New York City; was married on Saturday evening, 30 July 1808, by Rev. Dr. Abeel, Dutch Reformed, to Mary Suydam, dau. of Hendrick and Phœbe (Skidmore) Suydam, of Hallett's Cove, L. I., where she was born 5 Sept. 1780. They dwelt, in 1809 and 1810, at 3 Stone Street, New York, directly opposite the house of his brother, Stephen Whitney; in 1811, at 75 Broadway, where he died, at 6 o'clock, on Saturday morning, 12 March 1812, of a malignant croup, which attacked him on the previous Thursday. He is buried in the Whitney Mortuary Chapel, Greenwood Cemetery.

He was a member of the honorable and highly respected firm of Lawrence and Whitney, shippers, of New York City. They were, as we learn from the City Directory, at 12 Burling Slip, in 1793; cor. of Front Street and Burling Slip, 1794; 176 Front Street, 1795; 181 Front Street, 1796; 180 Front Street, 1797; 178 Front Street, 1798–1800; 182 Front Street, 1801–1803; 167 Front Street, 1804; 85 South Street, 1805–1806; 185

The general estimate of his character may be inferred from the following obituary notice, which appeared in The Evening Post: "In the lamented death of this worthy and excellent man, society has sustained no common loss. He was endowed with a penetrating and judicious mind, and his heart was the abode of every amiable and social virtue. To an invincible integrity, and elevated sense of honor, that rendered him one of the brightest ornaments of the mercantile profession, he united a philanthropy of disposition, and suavity of manners, which justly acquired him the affectionate esteem of all who had the pleasure of his acquaintance. To his chosen friends, he was peculiarly dear; he gave them his whole heart, and received their unlimited affection in return. Perhaps a more pure and ingenuous spirit never animated the human form. In the fortieth year of his age; in the meridian of usefulness, and vigor of health, he was suddenly arrested by a most formidable disease, which baffled the efforts of medical skill, and, in about 36 hours, terminated his life. The excruciating agonies of his disorder he endured with the magnanimity of a man. and submitted to his fate with the meekness and resignation of a Christian. He has left behind him 'a sadly pleasing name, a name ever to be remembered with a sigh.' To a fond wife, the loss is irreparable; the hearts of an affectionate sister and brothers must long smart under the bereavement, and our city will deeply sympathize with them in this afflictive dispensation."

He had two children, the first of whom died at birth. The second, born in Ap. 1812, three weeks after the father's death, lived only seven hours, dying, apparently, from the same disease of the throat which proved fatal to him.

They were buried in the family vault on Ocean Hill, in Greenwood Cemetery—of which beautiful resting-place of the dead he was one of the original incorporators and, throughout his life, a director. The vault is now covered by a mortuary chapel, erected by his executors.

He came to New York City when he was about 18 or 20 years old, with no other advantages than those that always accompany industry, ability, and good conduct; and engaged himself, as a clerk, to the firm of Lawrence and Whitney, shippers, in which his brother Henry was a partner. Showing remarkable energy and intelligence, he was soon sent to the West Indies as supercargo, and, by some fortunate ventures during these voyages, acquired the means of going into business on his own account. In 1800 he formed a copartnership with John Currie, a Scotchman. They carried on a wholesale grocery trade at 15 Coenties Slip, under the name of Currie and Whitney, until 1800, when the partnership was dissolved. apparently by the death of Mr. Currie, leaving Mr. Whitney to continue the business alone, at 19 South St. He dealt principally in brandy and Malaga wine, of which he had almost the monopoly, many stores being filled with his importations of these articles. "At the breaking out of hostilities in 1812, large sums were due to him from commercial houses in the Southern States, and, unfortunately, they were in no condition to pay. Cotton, indeed, they had in abundance; but of what use was cotton, when there were no longer any vessels to convey it over the ocean, nor any ports to which it could be sent? But Mr. Whitney thought that cotton. however cheap, was better than nothing. He sent agents to all his Southern customers, with instructions to take cotton where they could not get cash; and the merchants of Georgia and Louisiana were, no doubt, delighted at being let off so easily. Having thus secured a very large amount of the almost worthless article, Mr. Whitney sent it to Amelia Island, then under Spanish sway; and from this place, it was shipped to Europe in neutral vessels. The returns were so satisfactory as to induce repeated investments in the commodity, all of which took the same course. Thus Mr. Whitney, who, at the beginning of that short contest, was almost a bankrupt, found himself wealthy at its close." During the attack on New Orleans by the British forces, under Sir John Packenham, in 1815, he had immense quantities of cotton in the city—all of which depended upon the issue of the struggle, whether it should change hands, or continue his property. The result of the attack is known; the British troops were repulsed, and New Orleans saved.2

A few years after the termination of the war, about 1818, he abandoned his former business, removed his office to 46 Front Street, and entered into the shipping trade, building many fine ships, and sending them, laden with cargoes of his own, to all parts of the world, especially to China and the Dutch and English possessions in the East Indies. He also owned a large interest in the Kermet line of packets plying between New York and Liverpool. He invested extensively in real estate, principally in the first and seventeenth wards of the city; and the rapid rise in values added considerably to his wealth. He was among the projectors and founders of the great lines of railways and canals, which have done so much to increase the prosperity of New York, being largely interested in the New Jersey Railroad Co., the Delaware and Hudson Canal Co., the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Co., and many others. He was a director in the Bank of Commerce, the Bank of America, and several other banks and monied institutions. The last thirty years of his life were devoted entirely to the care and improvement of his property, which, soon after his death, was appraised, by the executors of his will, at $4,419,422.

The following extract from an obituary notice, which appeared in the Journal of Commerce at the time of his death, contains a correct estimate of his character: "One quality, always apparent, was the remarkable evenness of his temper, which shielded him alike from undue elevation with good fortune, or depression with bad fortune. This calm, unruffled temper, aided by the strictest integrity, enabled him to comprehend clearly any enterprise or investment, and endowed him with a remarkably correct foresight. As he rarely formed erroneous estimates of measures presented for his consideration, and carefully avoided all schemes merely speculative, he uniformly secured favorable results. His intelligent simplicity enabled him to view men and measures without gliding into impetuous conclusions; but rather, coolly and deliberately determining on his plans, he adhered to them with uncommon tenacity of purpose. His course was always frank and straightforward. Discountenancing all devious ways of obtaining desired results; especially abhorring all schemes and subsidies employed by designing men, and enjoining, almost with his last words, against all concession to terrorists or tempters, he patiently awaited results from causes obviously proper. Hence, he always turned from projects which created large indebtedness, and spurned the devices so often employed by capitalists to delude parties and disguise the true condition of things. In accumulating his wealth, he co-operated in the great improvements of the day, and never sought to build up his own property by breaking down, or injuring, that of others.

"Though Mr. Whitney was not conspicuously liberal to objects wholly benevolent, yet he generously contributed to the erection and support of the late Rev. Dr. Alexander's church, in which he worshipped, and of the church for the soldiers on Governor's Island, erected by the efforts and devotion of Rev. Dr. McVickar." His intimate friends know that he subscribed largely, though almost always anonymously, to many other religious and charitable institutions and objects. "His charities were dispensed with system and studiously without show; and the judicious provision he, for a long time, has made for several dependent relatives and friends, attests his thoughtful and affectionate regard for the wants and welfare of others.

"In his social and friendly relations, he was a pleasant and profitable companion. Those who have sat with him in a Board of Directors, cheerfully testify to his urbanity, and his intelligent and mature opinions on the subjects discussed, mingled with pleasant vivacity and humorous anecdotes, and the decided, though tolerant, opinions which he formed on every subject.

"Possessing an extensive knowledge of the transactions and actors of the present century, especially in the city of New York, his biographical memories of the eminent men who have departed this life during the last fifty years, were copious and discriminating, and full of eventful interest. His narratives of this kind, and remarks on the progress of local improvements in the city of New York and the country at large, added much to the charm of his familiar conversation. These, with the amiability and cheerfulness which also characterized him, made him an agreeable, as well as most valuable, associate and friend; and when he formed his friendships, they were firm and truthful to the furthest extent. His memory will be cherished in sweet remembrance by those with whom he had such a free and confidential intercourse, for they found in him the useful citizen and the genial companion in the public and private walks of life. His name will occupy a lofty niche in the columns of the wealthy dead; but particularly in the circles in which he was most active, will his absence long be felt with melancholy regret; while their agreeable associations with him will ever animate the hearts of relatives and friends with most affectionate emotions "

Mr. Whitney was a short, spare man; remarkably vigorous in mind and body, down to the moment of his death; scrupulously neat and unpretending in his dress; courteous, urbane, and modest in his manner; devotedly attached to church, home, and family; accurately informed in all matters connected with commercial enterprise in its larger sense, and therefore well acquainted with geographical discovery, and the development and political economy of new countries; passionately fond of natural scenery and the attractions of the country; and of the most unswerving integrity.

VIII. Archibald Whitney, b. at Derby, Conn., in March 1780; baptized in the Congregational Church at Derby, 14 May 1780; a wholesale grocer in New York City, where he married, 2 Sept. 1801, Nancy Brower, dau. of Theophilus and Mary (Bogart) Brower, 1 of New York, where she was born 29 Jan. 1785. In 1802, he formed a copartnership with Elijah Humphreys, which continued under the name of Humphreys and Whitney, until 1814. From 1816 to 1825, he was a partner with his nephew, Giles Marlborough Whitney, in the firm of A. & G. Whitney. The City Directory shows that his place of business was at 22 Burling Slip, 1802-8; at 175 Front Street, 1809-10; at 169 Front Street, 1811-14; at 35 Water Street, 1815; at 50 Front Street, 1816-19; and at 59 Front Street, 1820-5; while he resided, in 1802-4, at 31 Frankfort Street; in 1805-9, at 43 Frankfort Street; in 1810, at 14 Vandewater Street; in 1811-14, at 23 Frankfort Street; in 1816-7, at 5 Bridge Street; and in 1818-24, at 17 Bridge Street. He then moved to Derby, where he died of apoplexy, 28 (gravestone and church-record say, 18) Sept. 1842, and was buried in the old Episcopal Cemetery. She joined the Congregational Church at Derby. 29 May 1831; the record calls her "Mrs. Ann Whitney". She died, 22 Nov. 1860, at Derby, and was buried near her husband.

Y., a few miles north of New Paltz Landing, where he died, "about four weeks before 4 Nov. 1845." She went to live with her son, Hezekiah Parsell, and died a few years later.	1606
443	II. Thankful Whitney, b. 7 March 1766; died young.
444	III. Jeremiah Whitney, b. in Conn., 29 Aug. 1767; married, in 1788, Elizabeth Underhill, of Oswego Friends Meeting, in Dutchess Co., N. Y., who was born at Somers, N. Y., 5 Oct. 1772, according to the family-record, while the records of the Marlborough Monthly Meeting of Friends say "15th of 10th mo., 1762". He was a farmer, and lived in several places; at one time, in Rosendale, N. Y., but principally at Modena (before 1820) and Plattekill Forest. He dwelt in Plattekill, N. Y., from 1830 to 1837, when he moved to Shelby, N. Y. He settled on a fine farm, near the east border of the town of Shelby, about a mile south of Millville. He died 4 Ap. 1843, and was buried, 6 April, in a Friends' Cemetery at Millville; and has since been moved to a Friends' Cemetery just east of his farm, on the opposite side of the road. His widow returned to Plattekill, and lived for several years with her daughter, Prudence Whitney, but finally went back to Western New York, and died at the house of her son, Jesse Whitney, in Fairport, N. Y., in December 1852, aged 80 years, and was buried beside her husband, in the Friends' Cemetery at Shelby. She was a very acceptable preacher in Friends' meeting.
445	IV. Zadok Whitney, b. 9 Feb. 1769; married Polly Colden; and settled in Wolcott, Vt., where his father, 16 Aug. 1792, for "parental goodwill and affection," conveyed to him the north part of his home-lot, with a house and barn thereon, being about fifty acres of land, "extending as far southerly as within two Rods of ye Bank on ye north side of ye River Lamoil." This land he sold, 20 Dec. 1796, for three hundred and forty dollars, to Thomas Taylor, of Wolcott. He was administrator of the estate of his father; and as such, 29 March 1804, then living in Elmore Vt., he sold the dower-lands of the estate, with the mills and other buildings thereon, for three hundred and sixty dollars, to William Whitney, o

Wolcott. Soon after this sale, he moved to Plattekill, N. Y., where he was living 22 Dec. 1808, at which date, for himself, and as agent for Jeremiah DeGraff, he sold a portion of his father's estate, which had been set out to them in the division. His home in Plattekill was about half a mile north of Modena village; and there he died about April, 1813, of bilious colic. It is said that he was buried about a quarter of a mile west of his house; but a careful examination of the old graveyard, 6 Nov. 1873, failed to disclose any inscription to his memory. He had sold his property with the design of returning to Vermont, which his sudden death prevented. He is remembered as a pious and earnest member of the Methodist Church at Modena. His widow married a second husband. One account says that he was Daniel Soper, who went to Buffalo, N. Y.; while, according to another, he was David Soper, who settled in Avon, N. Y., and there died. Her descendants do not know the time or place of her death, but think it occurred about 1835 or 1836.

VI. Nathan Whitney, b. in Norwalk, Conn., 24 Jan. 1772, according to his father's record; a shoemaker, and, in later life, a farmer; went with his father to Wolcott, Vt., and from there, about 1797, to Esopus, N. Y., where, in the Autumn of 1801, he married Anna York, born in Esopus, 20 July 1769, dau. of John and Eve (Lyths) York. They dwelt in Esopus till 1832, when they moved to Poughkeepsie, N. Y., to live with their son, Elisha Miller Whitney. She went to New York City to visit her daughter, at 118 Perry St., and there died, 23 June 1841, of an abscess of the bowels. He died, 22 July 1858, of old age and debility, while on a visit to his daughter at Lake Hopatcong, in Roxbury, New Jersey. They were buried in Poughkeepsie Rural Cemetery, where a monument has been erected to their memory.

VII. William Whitney, b. 4 Jan. 1774; a farmer, shoemaker and cooper; bought of his father, for £3 12s., 1 Oct. 1795, about twenty-four acres of land in Wolcott, Vt., "being so much of the second division lot, on the original right of Rufus Herrick, as lay on the south side of the River Lamoille." He bought, after his mother's death, so much of his father's land and mills as had been set apart for her use, making the purchase from his brother, Zadok Whitney, the executor, 29 March 1804, for three hundred and sixty dollars; and sold the same property, 17 Sept. 1805, to Barney Peck, for three hundred dollars. He was frequently a town officer in Wolcott. He was married, 25 Dec. 1792, at Wolcott, by Thomas Taylor, justice of the peace, to Sally Batterson, dau. of William Mather and Grisel (Blackman) Batterson, of Norwalk, where she was born, 6 Oct. 1776. This was the first marriage in the town of Wolcott. They settled in Wolcott, and there died; he, 3 or 5 March 1856, aged 82 years; she, 15 Jan. 1868, aged 91 years, a consistent Christian of the Methodist

H., 11 Nov. 1787, dau. of James and Sarah (Hunt) St. Clair. She died in Morristown, 6 March 1812, and was buried there. He then removed to Montpelier, Vt., where he married (2d), in 1813, Mary Doyne, who died at Montpelier, in the Spring of 1815, without children. After the death of his second wife, he went west, living in Pittsburgh, Penn., Covington, Ky., and Cincinnati, Ohio; and, in the latter place, married (3d), about 1825, Hannah Judd, of Kentucky. He returned to Batavia, N. Y., in 1826; went from there, in April 1828, to Eagle Harbor, in Gaines, N. Y., where he lived till the Spring of 1834; then moved to Washington, Illinois, where his wife died about 1839; after which he went to Newstead, N. Y., and lived, for a year, with his daughter, Mrs. Electa (Whitney) Cobb. In the Spring of 1840, he returned to Washington, Ill., where, in 1841, he married (4th) Mary Pires, of that place. He died, 16 July 1845, of dysentery, after four days of illness, aged 66 years, at Washington, and was buried there. His widow was thought to be still living at Washington, in 1873.	1640

He sold his lot of land, and a log-house, in Hyde Park, 8 Feb. 1808, for twenty-five dollars; after which he went to Cambrige, Vt., thence to Essex, Vt., and at last to Colchester, Vt., where he died of quick consumption, 26 May 1821; and was buried in Colchester. He was in the service, as a volunteer, for a short time in the war of 1812. He and his wife were members of the Methodist Church. He married Judith Flood, who was	1652

After the death of her husband, she moved to Fairfield, Vt., settling in a little log-house; and by her industry in spinning, weaving, and teaching school, she succeeded in keeping together, and bringing up, her family of seven children, all who were living out of eleven. When her youngest child was old enough to provide for herself, she gave up housekeeping, and went to live among her children. In 1853 she was living at Buskirk's Bridge, Washington Co., N. Y., with her daughter, Julia (Whitney) Wilcox; and in the Autumn of that year, went to Rutland, Vt., with her daughter, Elvira (Whitney) Walbridge; and the first of Aug. 1854, started for Fairfield, Vt., to visit her friends; stopped to see her sister at St. Albans, Vt., where she became ill, and died 27 Aug. 1854, and was buried at St. Albans. She was a member of the church from the age of twenty years, and bore the reputation of "a good mother, a kind neighbor, and a devoted Christian."

surveyor; married, 4 Ap. 1807, at his father's homestead in Norfolk, by Rev. Thomas Robbins, Congregational, to Annis Clark, dau. of Marshall and Rhoda (Webster) Clark, of Burlington, Conn., where she was born 15 Sept. 1789. They settled on the homestead, and there dwelt for the rest of their lives. He died, 20 Oct. 1846, aged 66; she, 29 Feb. 1864; and they were buried in the South End Cemetery, Norfolk. He represented the town of Norfolk in the Conn. Legislature, in 1827; was judge of probate for the district of Norfolk, in 1842; justice of the peace for twenty-eight consecutive years, and for several years county surveyor. He was an earnest, thoughtful man, whose scientific attainments excited the admiration of his neighbors; one of whom wrote an obituary, which was published in the Hartford Weckly Times, of 26 Dec. 1846, containing the following passages: "Although the memory of the deceased will never be obliterated from the minds of hundreds of surviving friends, yet it is proper to make mention of the many virtues and ennobling qualities of the venerated dead, and to hold them up for the imitation of the rising generation. The subject of these remarks was a man of no ordinary attainments. Possessed of strong powers of mind and particularly of a memory which seemed to treasure all that was truly valuable, he had accumulated a mass of information of which few men can boast, and which eminently qualified him to enliven and instruct any circle into which he was thrown, and so general was his information, that few subjects were ever discussed in his presence on which he could not throw some rays of light. In a word, he was kind and courteous to all, and those who knew him best, will ever remember, how in the noble impulse of his heart, he seemed to clasp in his embrace the whole human family, and made them all his brethren; that his benevolence was of the most expansive kind, multitudes who were the recipients of his bounty will never forget, and the blessings of those ready to perish, came upon him. received his diploma, in May 1812; continued with his preceptor till Oct. 1812; then went to Philadelphia, Penn., and attended a course of lectures by Dr. Benjamin Rush; and in Ap. 1813, settled in Vernon, N. Y., where he married, 26 March 1814, Fanny Olmstead, dau. of James and Mary (Beaumont) Olmstead, of Hartford, Conn., where she was born 6 July 1787. He remained in Vernon, with a constantly increasing practice, till 1818, when he moved to Homer, N. Y.; and there his wife died, 3 Jan. 1862, and was buried. He married (2d), 8 Aug. 1862, at Tecumseh, Mich., Sarah Burke, widow of Zenas Lilley, of Homer, and dau. of Zenas and Dorcas (Van Deusen) Burke. She was born at Salem, N. Y., 6 Jan. 1802; and was living at Homer in Feb. 1876. He was postmaster at Homer, for 12 years, and was a member of the 27th Congress, 1841-1843, from the 22d District of New York. He died at Homer, 7 Nov. 1870, in his 82d year, and was buried in Glenwood Cemetery. Republican, published at Cortlandville, N. Y., contained a long notice of him, including the following: "He possessed a stout heart, sinewy muscular frame and iron will; and a determined, persevering energy. With these valuable characteristics, he entered hopefully upon the practice of his chosen profession. He often underwent great fatigue in prosecuting his extended rides through the country, with almost impassable roads, or on foot by marked trees through the wilderness; and even pioneered by a guide bearing a torch-light through the most impenetrable darkness, to the cabin of the most destitute and even profligate of our race. It was not gain alone that prompted him to the most unwearied attention upon the sick. He regarded it as a duty, a positive necessity. He possessed a clear, discriminating judgment, and was rarely mistaken in a disease, or its appropriate remedy."

into which he moved 30 March 1828, and had a son born next day. The house was long since made into sidewalks. About 1834, he laid out into building lots a part of his farm, on the west side of the Black Fork, in Sharon, which was the beginning of the flourishing village of Shelby, containing, in 1874, about two thousand inhabitants. She died in Shelby, 22 Jan. 1847, on the same farm where they first settled, and was buried there. He married (2d), 20 Nov. 1848, Sarah Johnson, from Vermont, who was born in 1805, dau. of Charles and Sarah Johnson. She was living at Shelby, in 1873. 617

III. James Whitney, b. in Pudding Lane, Norwalk, Conn., 22 Jan. 1794; the town-record says 1793, which is inconsistent with the preceding records of the same household; a boot and shoe maker; left Norwalk in 1812, for New York City, and served as a soldier in the war of 1812, for which he has since received a pension. He passed three months in Fort Greene, Brooklyn, and, in 1874, was the only survivor of his company of 93 men. In the Spring of 1814, he went to Albany, N. Y., which has since been his home. In a familiar letter, written in 1873, in which he compared portions of his own life with that of his contemporary, Peter Cooper, he spoke of his early life thus: "From the great total eclipse of the sun in 1806, to 1815, when I got married, I believe I went through more trials, hardships, accidents, and difficulties, twice-told, than Peter Cooper ever knew or experienced; and how I escaped them and lived, has been a wonder to myself to the present day. . . . I do not know how my sun will go down, but I have made up my mind to distil from the labor, sorrow, and perplexities of a past life all the joy, happiness and contentment that I can." He was married, 18 July 1815, in Albany, N. Y., by Rev. John Ayers, to Nancy Mascraft, only child of John and Hannah (Whitney) Mascraft, of Albany, where she was born 23 March 1705. After a wedded life of fifty-seven years, she died at Albany, 10 July 1872, of paralysis, in the 78th year of her age, and was buried in the Albany Rural Cemetery. Since her death, while his home has remained in Albany, he has lived with his daughters, and was yet in perfect health and vigor, in March 1877. His house was 173 Hamilton Street, and later 136 Hamilton, or 124 Beaver Street. On Saturday, 26 Sept. 1874, he visited his native town, Norwalk, with the following result, as given by himself: "After diligent inquiry, I could not find a person, male or female, whom I ever knew. Splendid mansions, the houses doubled, the inhabitants diminished, the enterprise gone-and I left the place with sorrow and sadness."

I., where he was born 13 Sept. 1796. In the Autumn of 1826, he ¹ Benjamin King Hobart first married, 3 June 1798, Sarah Pierson; and second, 16 Oct. 1803, Abigail Willis.	2136 began a voyage, which lasted four years and seven months, during which he twice circumnavigated the earth; after which they dwelt in New York, till 1832; and finally settled in Norwalk. The following extract from The New York Fournal of Commerce, of 22 Oct. 1846, tells the story of his death: "Missing Vessel. Schooner Nassau, Capt. Watlington (formerly of Ship "Camilla"), of and for this port, sailed from Charleston, 3d October 1846, with cargo of lumber, and has not since been heard of. There is no doubt she was lost in the gale of 9th Oct., with probably all on board." The widow moved in 1855, with her children, to Brooklyn, E. D., N. Y., living at 7 Washington Place till 1857; at 44 Clymer Street till 1859, and at 35 Rush Street till her death, 11 Jan. 1864. She was buried in the Norwalk Cemetery, at Norwalk, Conn. In 1865, her daughters moved to 59, now 193, Baltic Street, Brooklyn, where they were living in March 1877.

Autumn of 1828, moved to Ancaster; and thence, in 1830, to Hamilton, U. C., where he established the business which is still conducted by the well-known firm of D. Moore and Co. He was also a partner in extensive firms at Chicago, Ill., and at Toronto, Port Hope, and London, in Ontario, Canada. He was one of the earliest directors of the Gore Bank, the first established at Hamilton, and gave a willing and effective support to every effort for the advancement of the city. He joined the Wesleyan Church in 1833, and remained an active and consistent member till his death, which took place at his residence in Maiden Lane, Hamilton, Ont., on Sunday, 14 July 1872. She died, 5 May 1875, at Hamilton, and was buried there with her husband. A volume, published at the Methodist Book Room, Toronto, Ont., in 1876, entitled Memorials of the Life of Edward and Lydia Ann Fackson, shows more fully than can here be done the story of their well-spent lives, and their faithful labors in the cause of Christ and Christian education, resulting in their giving fifty thousand dollars, near the close of life, for the endowment of a chair of theology in Victoria College, and for other benevolent purposes, It says: "His integrity and veracity were of the highest order. Every man who dealt with him knew how safely he might rely on his conscientious regard for the rights of others. His power of directing others made him acknowledged leader wherever he appeared, and was, doubtless, one important cause of his success in life. She was a woman of great energy and tireless industry. Excellent taste, a keen sense of propriety, and a knowledge of human nature, which almost infallibly discerned the motives of those with whom she had to deal, combined to guide her own works to almost invariable success, and to make her the most valuable friend in counsel we have ever known. She was a woman of the deepest domestic affections, and of the most kindly social disposition. She had inherited all the stern morality of her Puritan ancestors, and to her, duty was inviolable law. Such a nature, so strong, earnest, active, and yet womanly, we seldom find."

684	IV. Lydia Whitney, b. in Otsego, N. Y., 5 Jan. 1798; married, 12 Sept. 1822, at Mexico, N. Y., George Washington Finney, a blacksmith and farmer, born at Paris, N. Y., 23 June 1795, son of Sylvester and Rebecca (Rice) Finney, of Henderson, Rom which he moved to Mexico, N. Y., working at his trade till nearly forty years old; when, feeling that he was called to preach, he was licensed by the Black River Association, 3 Feb. 1835, and ordained by the same body at its next annual meeting at North Adams, N. Y. He preached at Litchfield, N. Y., about a year; then at Holland Patent, in Trenton, N. Y., for two and a half years, ending 3 Sept. 1838, when "the church-committee felt impelled to bear witness that he had 'labored most indefatigably to discharge his responsibility, and that his labors had not been in vain in the Lord." He then resided for some time in Newark and Bloomfield, N. J., acting as an anti-slavery agent, and continuing "to preach the gospel of Christ, and to assist his brethren in revivals of religion. In these revival labors he was often richly blessed." "In the year 1842, he was called to take the charge of the Winter Street church in Haverhill, Mass. His ministry was attended with revivals, and he was highly esteemed as a faithful, bold, and earnest preacher. He was pastor of this for some three years." He labored much in the temperance cause, in 1845 canvassing Essex Co., Mass., and speaking with great effect in every school district. In 1846, he carried on the same labors in New Hampshire; in 1847, he was agent of the Vermont Temperance Society, and in 1848 he labored in Middlesex Co., Mass. "In 1851, the N. Y. State Temperance Society employed him to canvass a portion of that great field. Abundant testimonials remain of his great success and power as a lecturer on Temperance. They speak of the lectures as full of instruction and of interest." "At the close of these temperance labors, he was appointed City Missionary in Charlestown, Mass. His work was short. After seven months, he was laid by w	2390

Calais and its vicinity, in the State of Maine. Able to resume his full work, he resumed it in the region which had become peculiarly his home. For a year and a half, and with great success in winning souls, he served the Church at Salisbury Point, Mass." In Dec. 1859, he went to California, where he continued his labors, taking long and wearisome journeys in behalf of temperance, preaching for several weeks at Oroville, organizing the Congregational Church in El Dorado, and preaching, for more than a year, in Redwood City. He died on Sunday afternoon, 16 Ap. 1865, at Oakland, California, of an abscess of the liver, "aged 69 years, 9 months, and 23 days," and was buried on Tuesday, 18 Ap., from the First Congregational Church in Oakland. The discourse which was delivered at his funeral was printed in The Pacific, at San Francisco, 27 April 1865; and from it the preceding extracts have been taken. He was a brother of Rev. Charles Grandison Finney, D. D., of Oberlin, Ohio, for many years President of Oberlin College. She resided, in 1874, at Oakland.

Martin and Mercy (Benedict) Kellogg, who died, 15 Oct. 1795, at Brookfield, in her 29th year. He married (2d), at Brookfield, Abigail Combes, dau. of John and Eunice (Towner) Combes, who died at Brookfield, 20 Sept. 1813, aged 37 years. He married (3d), Lucinda Hoyt, widow of Thaddeus Hodge, and dau. of John and Triphena (Clark) Hoyt,2 of Danbury, Conn., where she was born 25 Dec. 1765. He died at Brookfield, 30 March 1835, "aged 74 years, 8 months, and 24 days," and was buried, as were his first two wives, in Pinchgut Cemetery, in the south part of New Milford. Some years after his death, his widow died at New Fairfield.

- II. Elizabeth Osborn, b. at New Milford, now Brookfield, Conn., 18 Oct. 1761; married, 22 Sept. 1780, Lewis Lobdell, a farmer, son of John and Elizabeth Lobdell. He was born at Brookfield, 7 March 1760; settled in Brookfield; and there died, 13 Jan. 1813. She died, 12 May 1851, aged 89 years, 6 months, and 24 days, at Brookfield, and was buried there, on the next day, near her husband, in Prickback Cemetery. The church-record calls her 90 years old.
 - III. ——— Osborn, died in infancy; name not yet reported.
- IV. Hannah Osborn, b. at New Milford, now Brookfield, Conn., 9 Oct. 1763; married David Baxter, of North Salem, N. Y., who was born 4 Nov. 1763. They settled at North Salem, and there died; she, 27 Oct. 1825, aged 62 years and 18 days; he, 21 Nov. 1825, aged 62 years and 17 days. They were buried in North Salem Cemetery.
- V. David Osborn, b. at New Milford, now Brookfield, Conn., in 1765; a farmer and carpenter; married Matilda Northrop, who was born in Feb. 1770; settled in Brookfield, where the railway buildings now stand at Brookfield Junction, about two miles south of his father's homestead. There they died (she, 23 Oct. 1844, aged "74 years, 8 months;" he, 4 July 1847, in his 82d year), and were buried near Brookfield Centre.
- VI. Lewis Osborn, b. at New Milford, now Brookfield, Conn., 9 Sept. 1768; married Mary Northrop, who was born in Kent, or New Preston, Conn., about 1780. They settled in Brookfield, and died there (he, 8 Sept. 1825; she, 9 Sept. 1866, aged 86 years), and were buried in Prickback graveyard. The parish register buries her a day before her death.
 - VII. Richard Osborn, b. at New Milford, now Brookfield, Conn.; married Citty Harder, who was of Dutch extraction; and settled at Hudson, N. Y., where he died a few years ago. They had several children, whose names have not been ascertained. Another account says that he was a

II. Levi Osborn, b. at Danbury, Conn., in June 1763; a shoemaker and farmer; enlisted in the Revolutionary army, served as assistant to a surgeon, and was a pensioner after the war; married, 10 March 1784, at Danbury, Miriam Dibble, dau. of John and Lydia (Ferry) Dibble, of Stony Hill, Danbury, where she was born in Feb. 1765. She died in Danbury, 12 Nov. 1833, the day before the great meteoric shower. He married (2d) Urania Knapp, widow of _____ Judd, dau. of Benjamin and Mercy (Wildman) Knapp, and g. d. of Jacob Wildman, of Danbury, where she was born 19 March 1776. She died in Danbury, about 1844. He died in the same place, 8 March 1851, of old age, in his 88th year, according to the town-record, while the monument raised to their memory in Wooster Cemetery, by the church to which he ministered, places his death at "March 8th, 1850, aged 88 years," and that of his first wife at "Oct." 1833, aged 69 years." These dates appear in the Collections (in M.S.) of the Disciples' Church as "8 March 1851," and "30 Oct. 1833." He is remembered as a humble, sincere Christian, who always practised what he preached, never fastened his door at night, and never refused to give any man a meal at his table, or a bed in his house.

"In the year 1774, Ebenezer R. White, colleague with his father over the Presbyterian Society called the New Danbury Church, came out with a number of others, who felt the necessity of a reformation in the church, and formed a little society walking more according to the primitive simplicity of the gospel. About this time, Robert Sandeman, a zealous reformer of the abuses of Christianity, in some of its aspects, came from Scotland, and united himself with them. He was a son-in-law of Mr. Glass, who wrote several books upon the principles of reform, which were considered standard works by the Society here; hence they were called Glassites, or Sandemanians,

"They continued to increase till 1798, when some questions arose respecting the propriety of Christians increasing in wealth, and the weekly observance of the Institution of the Lord's Supper; the former being permitted, and the latter omitted by them.

"The investigation of these subjects resulted in another separation; Mr. White, with twelve others, again seceded, and formed another Society, who now felt that they were walking in all the commandments of the Lord.

"But the spirit of reform was yet among them. A few became convinced that immersion only is Scriptural baptism, and doubted the propriety of bringing infants to that institution. This the remainder of the body strongly contended for.

"In 1817, Levi Osborn and Uz. Wildman, with their wives, left the Society, to which they were very strongly attached; their love for the truth overbalanced every other consideration, and they took their stand alone. The same year, Levi Osborn, hearing of a society in [Greene Street] New York, calling themselves Disciples, and following the ancient practice of immersing believers upon a confession of their faith for the remission of sins, visited that church and was immersed by Henry Errett.

"He then returned and administered the Institution to his wife, and to Uz. Wildman and his wife. They then commenced holding meetings at his residence, and attended the Apostles' Doctrine, the fellowship (or contribution), the breaking of the loaf, and the prayers every Lord's Day, as did the primitive disciples of Jesus Christ, as related by Luke; Acts, 2, 42.

"Mr. Levi Osborn, either by special appointment, or by general suffrage, on account of the relation he held to the church, as its originator and spiritual father, officiated as an elder or overseer, sometimes in conjunction with others, until his death. He was highly esteemed in love, for his work's sake, and his increasing devotion to the truth, and the simple primitive Gospel and institutions of the New Testament." I

III. Sarah Osborn, b. at Danbury, Conn., about 1767; married, at Danbury, Ira Taylor, a hatter, son of Gilead and Jenny (Hopkins) Taylor, of Danbury, where he was born. They settled at Danbury, and there died (he, when about 80 years old; she, 24 Feb. 1816, aged 40 years), and were buried in the old Episcopal Cemetery, at the south end of the village, where her gravestone yet stands.

IV. Elnathan Osborn, b. at Danbury, Conn., 12 June 1769; a tailor; married, 14 Feb. 1793, at Danbury, Sally Jarvis, dau. of William and Mary (Wright) Jarvis, of Danbury, where she was born 19 Aug. 1772. They dwelt at Vergennes, Vt., till 1795; and then settled at Cooperstown, N. Y., where she died, 16 Dec. 1831. He died at Greene, N. Y., in Ap. 1853. They were buried in Lake-side Cemetery, Cooperstown. Going to his father's house, at noon, 26 Ap. 1777, he found dinner on the table, the family gone, and the house occupied by British soldiers, who asked: "What are you doing here?" He replied, boy-like: "This is my home, and I want my dinner." They called for cider and apples, which he brought; and, after being refreshed, they left without injuring the house.

VI. Mary Osborn, b. at Danbury, Conn., 26 March 1776; married, 20 Nov. 1796, at Danbury, Abner Curtis, son of Reuben and Silence (Allen) Curtis, of Danbury, where she was born 15 Dec. 1776. They dwelt at Danbury till 1801; then moved to New York City, where, after a severe course of training for political life in the business of a butcher, he was intrusted by his discerning fellow-citizens with the dignities and responsibilities of clerk of a court, and chief of police—to the great profit, it need hardly be said, of the city. He died in New York, 14 May 1827, and was buried "east of the Bowery, in, or near, North Street." She died in Brooklyn, N. Y., in Aug. 1852, aged 76 years, and was buried in Greenwood Cemetery.

II. Jeremiah Rockwell, b. at Ridgefield, Conn., 19 July 1756; a farmer; went, in early youth, with his father, to Lanesborough, Mass.; married Anna Stearns, who died 15 Aug. 1801, in her 47th year, at Cornwall, Vt., and was buried there; married (2d), about 1803, Lucy Eaton (widow of ____ Day), from Massachusetts, who died 21 Sept. 1833, in her 66th year, at Cornwall, and was buried there; married (3d), 17 July 1834, at Cornwall, Vt., a niece of his first wife, Abilene Stearns, born in Oct. 1795, widow of Otis Smith, of Lanesborough, and dau. of Ebenezer and Anna (Hyde) Stearns. He dwelt in Lanesborough till 1789, when he bought a farm in Cornwall, Vt., where he dwelt till his third marriage; after which he lived at Stanbridge, C. E., till the Autumn of 1846, and in Parishville, N. Y., till the Spring of 1847, when he bought a small farm in Brandon, N. Y., on which he died, 28 Aug. 1852, in his 97th year. His widow bought a small place in the village of West Bangor, N. Y., where she died 13 May 1861, and was buried near her husband, in the West Bangor Cemetery.

He was a soldier of the Revolutionary War, beginning at Bunker Hill, and, in the latter part of his life, enjoyed a pension for his service. He is described as a short, thick-set, and remarkably robust, healthy man, with light complexion and silvery hair, who never knew a day of sickness till the last few days of his life, and whose death was the result of age.

III. Nathan Bangs, b. at Stratford, Conn., 2 May 1778; a clergyman of the Methodist Episcopal Church; married, 23 April 1806, at Edwardsburgh, Upper Canada, Mary Bolton, born at Terrebonne, L. C., 23 Dec. 1787, dau. of Henry and Margaret (Lateur) Bolton, of Edwardsburgh. He went to Upper Canada, in May 1799, when twenty-one years old; taught school and practised surveying for two years; joined the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1800, and was licensed to preach, in Aug. 1801. He travelled on the Niagara Circuit till 1 Dec. 1801, and on Long Point Circuit till June 1802, when he joined the New York Annual Conference on trial, and was assigned the Bay of Quinte and Home District, which he travelled till June 1804. He then attended the meeting of the Annual Conference, at New York, where he was received into full communion, was ordained a deacon, and, two days later (instead of two years, the usual time), was ordained an elder, and assigned the River Thames District, which seems to have been almost boundless, including part of Michigan and Ohio. There he travelled till winter compelled him to leave, and finish the year among his old friends in the Niagara District. In 1805 he was assigned the Oswegatchie Circuit, with Sylvanus Keeler; in 1806, Quebec; in 1807, Niagara; and he had gone about ten miles on his way, when the presiding elder turned him back to labor in Montreal, for the year. In 1808, he returned to New York, and was appointed to the Delaware Circuit, where his parents were then living; in 1809, to Albany, N. Y.; and in 1810, to New York City. The year 1812 found him without a charge, as the war prevented his intended return to Canada, whither he had been assigned as pastor and presiding elder in Montreal. He dwelt, a part of the year, in Troy, N. Y., and the rest in Bedford, N. Y.; in 1813, was presiding elder of Rhinebeck District; and, in 1817, went to New York City. There he served as pastor of the Duane Street Church, from 1817 till 1819; presiding elder of New York District, till 1820; book agent, till 1828; editor of The Christian Advocate and Journal, till 1832; general editor of books, till 1836; resident corresponding secretary of the Missionary Society, till 1841; president of Wesleyan University, till Sept. 1842; pastor of the Second Street Church, New York, till 1844; of the Greene Street Church, till 1846; of the Sands Street Church, Brooklyn, till 1848; presiding elder of New York East District, till 1852; when, after having taken fifty consecutive annual

A life so rich as his cannot be portrayed in a genealogy. The following extracts from the first chapter of the Life and Times of Nathan Bangs, D.D., by Abel Stevens, LL.D., a volume of 426 pages, must suffice:

"Dr. Nathan Bangs was not only a public but a representative man, in the Methodist Episcopal Church, for more than half a century. During nearly sixty years, he appeared almost constantly in its pulpits. the founder of its periodical literature, and of its 'Conference course' of ministerial study, and one of the founders of its present system of educational institutions. He was the first missionary secretary appointed by its General Conference, the first clerical editor of its General Conference newspaper press, the first editor of its Ouarterly Review, and, for many years, the chief editor of its Monthly Magazine and its book publications. He may be pronounced the principal founder of the American literature of Methodism; a literature now remarkable for its extent, and of no inconsiderable intrinsic value. Besides his innumerable miscellaneous writings for its periodicals, he wrote more volumes in defence or illustration of his denomination than any other man. He became its recognized historian. He was one of the founders of its Missionary Society, he wrote the Constitution and first Circular Appeal of that great cause, and through sixteen years, prior to the organization of its secretaryship as a salaried function, he labored indefatigably and gratuitously for the Society, as its vicepresident, secretary or treasurer. During more than twenty years, he wrote all its Annual Reports. After his appointment as its resident secretary, he devoted to it his entire energies, conducting its correspondence, seeking missionaries for it, planning its mission fields, pleading for it in the Churches, and representing it in the Conferences. It will be monumental of his memory in all lands to which its beneficent agency may extend, and if no other public service could be attributed to him, this alone would render him a principal historic character of American Methodism, if not, indeed, of American Protestantism. He was, withal, a man of profound piety, of universal charity, and much and admirable individuality."

IV. Elijah Keeler Bangs, b. at Stratford, Conn., 4 June 1780; a master-mariner; married, 29 Oct. 1807, in Philadelphia, Penn., Esther Stackhouse, dau. of Amos and Mary (Powell) Stackhouse, of Philadelphia, where she was born 17 Oct. 1787. They settled in Philadelphia, and there died; she, 27 Sept. 1819; he, 13 Sept. 1856. She was buried in the Friends' Cemetery, at the south-east corner of Fourth and Arch Streets; and he, in Laurel Hill Cemetery. He had command of a vessel before he was twenty-one years old. He was captured by the French in 1808, and by the British in 1811, for having traded with the French; and was wrecked on the coast of Holland, about 1820, each time losing the whole of his worldly possessions. In his last years, he was completely crippled by gout, so that he could not stand, or help himself; and was kindly cared for by his daughter, Mrs. Rebecca (Bangs) Steel; with whom he dwelt from the time of her marriage, till his death. No record has been obtained of his first marriage, though page 311 of the Memoir of Rev. Nathan Bangs, refers to Miss Stackhouse as his "second wife."

V. John Bangs, b. at Stratford, Conn., 8 Aug. 1782; a blacksmith and, for many years, a clergyman of the Methodist Episcopal Church; married, 2 Jan. 1804, at Stamford, N. Y., by Rev. Mr. Fenn, Presbyterian, of Harpersfield, N. Y., to Mary Rickey, dau. of Capt. Andrew and Mitty (McCrany) Rickey, I and g. dau. of Capt. Thomas and Nancy McCrany. They dwelt at Kortright, N. Y., about 40 years, and then moved to Harpersfield, N. Y., where she died, 12 March 1845, aged 72 years, and was buried. He married (2d), 7 Oct. 1845, at Maryland, N. Y., Arethusa Rice, widow of Ezekiel Palmer, of Maryland, and dau. of Elijah and Annie (Miller) Rice, of Dummerston, Vt., where she was born 12 Oct. 1788. She died at Butternuts, N. Y., at the house of her son-in-law, Rev. Wm. Burnside, 18 June 1874, and was buried at Butternuts. After his second marriage, he dwelt in Maryland, and there died on Sunday, 4 Feb. 1849. He was buried at Harpersfield.

He began to preach about 1811, as a local preacher; was ordained deacon at Albany, N. Y., by Bishop Asbury, 20 May 1815; joined the New York Conference, on trial, 1819; was in full connection, 1821; and was ordained elder, the same year. He was appointed, Sharon, N. Y., 1819, 1820; Jefferson, N. Y., 1821, 1822; Delaware Circuit, 1823, 1824; supernumerary, 1825, 1826; Coeymans, N. Y., 1827, 1828; Jefferson, 1829, Durham, N. Y., 1830, 1831; surpernumerary, 1832; Broome, N. Y., 1833; Jefferson, 1834, 1835; Bloomville, N. Y., 1836; supernumerary, 1837, till his death. The Conference Minutes say: "During the time he traveled as an effective preacher, about three thousand souls were received into the Church by him and his associates in the vineyard of the Lord. For sixteen years he was incessant in his efforts to do good; preaching holiness to others, and enjoying its exalted felicity himself. He freely sacrificed ease and earthly interests, that he might bring honor to God in the salvation of men. He presented himself, and all that he had, as a sacrifice to the Lord. Brother Bangs was a man of strong views and feelings, of undaunted courage, of pure intentions, and of a tender, warm, and friendly heart."

In 1846, he published his Autobiography, a book of 319 pages.

After one or two years, he bought thirty acres of land, near the top of the mountain, about a mile and a half farther east. Here he built a small house, with its door within six feet of a fine spring of water; and in this home, after a life of comfort and contentment, they died (he, 15 Dec. 1852, aged 74 years and one month; she, 28 May 1873, in her 82d year), and were buried in Highlands Cemetery, two miles southwest of their house. He lived in Umpewaug, in the west part of Reading. Conn., about half a mile east of the Danbury and Norwalk Railway, and	3689 about a mile south of West Reading Station, where he bought eleven acres of land, 5 Ap. 1788, of Elijah Burr, for £18. He also bought of Aaron Barlow, 22 Dec. 1788, for £75, fourteen acres of land in Reading, which he sold, 13 Feb. 1790, for £45, to Josiah Stebbins and Esther his wife, who were his step-father and mother. The first piece, he sold, 27 Jan. 1802, to his half-sister, Mary Couch, wife of Thomas Couch, Jr., of Reading, and then called himself, "of Fairfield, State of Vermont." It is uncertain when he went to Vermont, as the land-records of Fairfield, Vt., seem to show that he was there, 24 Sept. 1789, 14 Ap. 1792, 2 Ap. 1795, and 12 Sept. 1803; while old residents of Reading, Conn., distinctly remember him as living in Reading about 1795 to 1800. It seems most likely that, after living for some time in Vermont, he returned to Reading, and lived there for a few years. He died in Fairfield, Vt., 28 Feb. 1848, aged 80 years; and his wife died in the same place, 23 June 1851, in her 80th year. They were buried about two and a half miles south from the centre of the town.

He was of a delicate constitution, quiet and gentle in appearance, of a studious habit, with a mind well stored by constant reading. One of his granddaughters says that she "scarcely remembers him otherwise than sitting in his easy chair, poring over a book or newspaper," and that, in his later years, "he seldom left the house, except, occasionally, to go to the Episcopal Church, of which he and my grandmother were exemplary members "

Benjamin Rowland, of Sherburne, N. Y., with Elijah Chandler, a farmer, born in Vermont, 10 July 1790. They settled in Columbus, where he treated her unkindly, and deserted her when their youngest child was a babe, never afterward providing for her or her children. She last saw him at the burial of their second child, in Feb. 1835. She dwelt, for many years, at Whitesborough, N. Y., where she died, from falling down stairs, 3 May 1871, and was buried. She was, for forty years, a member of the Baptist Church, and highly esteemed for her piety and amiability.	3723

V. Nehemiah Whitney, b. in Bethlehem, N. Y., 15 June 1795; a marble-cutter; went in 1813, to Meredith, N. Y., where he married, 20 March 1816, Phebe Stilson, dau. of Cyrenius and Sarah (Baldwin) Stilson. of Meredith, where she was born 8 Jan. 1706. They dwelt in Meredith. till 1827; then moved to Stamford, N. Y.; and thence, in the Autumn of 1834, to Ogdensburgh, N. Y., where she died, I July 1852, and was buried "in the new cemetery." He married (2d), in 1853, a widow Fitts, from whom he separated after two or three years. In 1858, he moved to Buffalo. N. Y., where he dwelt till 1864. In 1865, he was living at La Salle, N. Y., and was postmaster at that place. In March 1866, he dwelt with his son, Nathan Stilson Whitney, at Edwardsville, Ill.; and in Nov. 1866, went to Mich., and resided sometimes with his son, Lyman Whitney, in Lansing, and at others, with his son, Walter Whitney, in Flint. But, finally, a feeling of dependence, which his children could not overcome, led him to apply for admission to the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers, at Dayton, Ohio, 3 Sept. 1869; and while temporarily stopping there, he died, 12 Sept. 1869, and was buried in the cemetery of the Home. He had suffered from paralysis for about eight years. He was, for eight months, a soldier in the war of 1812.

VII. Samuel Whitney, b at Branford, Conn., 28 Ap. 1793; a clergyman; joined the church at Northford, Conn., 27 March 1812; was dismissed, about 1817, to the church in Yale College, where he studied for two years; married, 3 Oct. 1819, at Pittsfield, Mass., Meroy Partridge, dau. of William and Jemima (Bidwell) Partridge, of Pittsfield, where she was born 14 Aug. 1795. The A. B. C. F. M. having accepted his offer of service as a missionary to the Sandwich Islands, they embarked at Boston, Mass., 23 Oct. 1819, in the brig Thaddeus, and arrived at Kailua, Hawaii, 4 Ap. 1820. He was licensed by the Hawaiian Association, 28 Feb. 1823, and ordained by the same, at Kailua, 30 Nov. 1825. They settled at Waimea, Kauai, where she was yet living in 1868. He died, 15 Dec. 1845, after 25 years of devoted service, at Lahainaluna, in the Island of Maui, and was buried there. The Friend, a newspaper published at Honolulu, Sandwich Islands, 15 Jan. 1846.

"The Rev. Samuel Whitney was born April 28, 1793, in Branford, near New Haven. Little is known by the writer of his childhood and youth. His mother died when he was about 14 years old, at which time he went to Northford to live with an elder sister, mother of the Rev. Eli Smith, missionary to Palestine.

"He probably had little religious instruction up to this period, as neither of his parents was pious. He had the joy, however, of hearing, several years before the death of his aged father, that he had become a Christian, and at last approved of his son's choice in devoting himself to the work of foreign missions. Through the influence of his pious sister and her husband, he was preserved from many of the rocks on which unguarded youth make fatal shipwreck, and drawn insensibly to the paths of virtue and religion. Some time about the year 1813, when he was about 20 years of age, he was hopefully converted to Christ, and he united with the church of Northford. Not long after this, he had an interview with Mr. John Maltby, now pastor of the Hammond street church of Bangor, Maine, which led him to resolve to seek an education and prepare himself for the gospel ministry. This he undertook with his wonted zeal. In 1817, he entered Yale College, where he was noted for his consistent, pious deportment and zealous application to study. He had prosecuted his studies in that institution for only two years, when, hearing that the A. B. C. F. M. were seeking men to establish a mission at the Sandwich Islands, and that they found much difficulty in getting the requisite number, he volunteered to go, and pursue his theological studies on heathen ground. His offer was accepted; and on the 4th of October, 1819, he was married to Miss Mary Partridge, at Pittsfield, Mass. On the 23d of the same month, they embarked at Boston, on board the Thaddeus, with the other pioneer missionaries to these Hawaiian shores. On the way, he narrowly escaped being drowned. One day, while with a smooth sea and favorable breeze, the ship was going six or eight miles an hour, as a recreation amid the tedium of sea life, he joined the first mate, who was engaged in painting the outside of the ship. Having previously examined the rope by which he was to hold, and found it securely fastened to a pin on the side of the ship, he took his stand on the stage; and holding to the rope with one hand, painted with the other. While thus engaged, one who hated the name and office of missionary, slyly unloosed the rope by which he held, and he was precipitated into the ocean. Providentially there was a bench on deck that day, though it had not been brought on deck before during the voyage. Mr. Hunnewell, the second mate, afterwards merchant at Honolulu, threw this overboard, and Mr. Whitney was so fortunate as to reach it and get on it. He was left almost out of sight before the ship could be brought to. During this time of suspense and peril, he renewed the solemn dedication of himself to the Lord, and vowed that, if he would save his life, it should be henceforth devoted to his service. His prayer was heard, his life was preserved, and the bench on which he supported himself during his peril is still at Waimea, his late residence, where it has ever borne the title Mr. Whitney's life-boat.

"On the 4th of April, 1820, he, with the rest of the missionary band, went on shore at Kailua, Hawaii, where the rulers of the land were assembled, and after about a week's delay, they obtained permission to prosecute their labors on these shores.

"In the distribution of this little band, Messrs. Whitney and Ruggles were located on the island of Kauai, where they were allowed the distinguished privilege of scattering the first rays of Gospel light among the benighted people. Their trials, physical and spiritual, can never be fully appreciated by their successors. The whole population were sunk in the lowest abyss of licentiousness, and besotted with drunkenness, ignorant of the true God and of every sentiment that ennobles man. The new teachers were treated with indifference, and often with scorn and contempt. At one time, when the subject of this article was riding not far from Koloa, at evening twilight, two robbers suddenly sprang to his side and seized his horse by the bridle, but being sharply spurred he broke from their grasp and carried his rider with such speed, that, though pursued, he was not overtaken. One of them, finding pursuit in vain, threw a spear at him but missed his aim. Thus was he rescued from the robbers by the same hand that had pulled him out of the deep waters.

"On the 28th of February, 1823, he was licensed by the Hawaiian association to preach the Gospel, a work ever dear to his heart.

"The acquisition of the language by the pioneers was a great work, and a work not accomplished suddenly. The language had never been reduced to writing. Close attention to what seemed to be unintelligible jargon, was the only means of access. All was crude chaos, and it was nearly three years before our departed friend and brother had so reduced his observations to order and mastered the intricacies of the language, as to be able to preach his first sermon in the Hawaiian tongue. Meanwhile, he, in common with his fellow-laborers, had been engaged in teaching the English language to such as he could induce to attend on his instructions, and in preaching through the medium of such interpreters as he could employ.

"The death of Kamualii, the king of Kauai, in 1824, was followed by a rebellion of the people against the Kamehameha dynasty, and it was found necessary for their safety that the missionaries and their families should flee from the field of battle. They accordingly embraced an opportunity that offered, and sailed to Honolulu. The rebellion was soon quelled, and Mr. Whitney returned to his post, and with renewed zeal sought to bring the late warlike inhabitants to bow to the Prince of peace.

"On the 30th of Nov., 1825, he was ordained to the office of the Gospel Ministry, at Kailua, Hawaii, by the Hawaiian association. Not long after this event, several who had attended on his instructions, giving cheering evidence of conversion, were organized into a church, a light shining in a dark place. Under the smiles of the Great Shepherd of the flock, this little church continued to prosper, and it was gradually enlarged, and continued to be the only church on the island for eight succeeding years.

"During the years 1833-4, and again in 1838, precious revival seasons were enjoyed, during which very many turned to the Lord, who have since proved by their fruits the sincerity of their profession. It was here that he spent most of his life as a missionary. He occasionally visited other parts of the islands, and as he went, he preached the Gospel. He spent most of the year 1817 at Honolulu and Hilo; he was also one of those who went on an expedition to the South Seas in 1832, to explore the Marquesas Islands as a field of missionary labor. A detailed account of his labors would swell this notice beyond its prescribed limits. It is moreover unnecessary, as they are already known and read of all men. As a preacher, he was solemn, earnest, and impressive. It was manifest to all his hearers that he felt deeply the importance of what he declared to them. He was accordingly very successful in winning their attention and arousing in them the feelings with which he was animated. In his parochial visits, he was dignified and affable, and while he commanded the respect and esteem of all, he won their hearts. He was untiring in his work—in preaching the Gospel—in teaching school—in tours around the islands of Kauai and Niihau. Were any of the people perplexed in their affairs, he was their counsellor—were they oppressed with a load of guilt, he pointed them to the Lamb of God, who taketh away the sins of the world—were their bodies sick, he was their physician. He was a father, counsellor, and friend to the whole people, high and low, and long will he live in their 'When the ear heard him, then it blessed him; and when the eve saw him, it gave witness to him, because he delivered the poor that cried, and the fatherless, and him that had none to help him. The blessing of him that was ready to perish came upon him; and he caused the widow's heart to sing for joy.' He shrank from no duty because it was arduous or attended with danger. His tours to preach the Gospel and establish schools often led him into perils. Many a time the ocean seemed ready to swallow him up, as he traversed it in canoes or small schooners, on errands of mercy. More than once, an unseen hand delivered him from the knife of the assassin. He, in whose service he had enlisted, was with him alway, even unto the end. We shall find this abundantly confirmed during his last sickness, and while he was engaged in the last conflict.

"He was taken ill on the island of Kauai, on the 21st of September last. His symptoms, from the first, indicated a disordered liver. After trying a change of air at his summer retreat at Hanapepeluna and employing various remedies, he, with his family, sailed on the 21st of October for Honolulu, where he arrived in three days, very much exhausted by bilious vomiting and diarrhea, which continued for several weeks to pull down his strength. It then received a temporary check, and for a little while he was better; but soon a renewed attack of vomiting and diarrhœa prostrated him again. From this, however, he partially recovered, and he was induced, by an earnest invitation, to come to Maui, to try the effects of a residence at the cool and elevated retreat of Mount Ball, above Lahainaluna, He and his family (wife and daughter) accordingly sailed for Maui, Dec. 1st, and in less than twenty-two hours were at anchor at Lahaina. After getting ashore, he was very feeble, but the next day he was rather more comfortable, and in the afternoon he rode up as far as Mr. Peck's, his old Kauai friend and neighbor, where he spent the night. Early the next morning, he rode up to my house at Lahainaluna. When he arrived, he was quite fatigued, and he was ever afterwards confined mostly to his bed. He now rapidly wasted away under the influence of disease, though his friends generally hoped he would soon begin to mend. He seems to have understood better than they the serious nature of his dis-Almost a week before his death, he said one morning, 'I am sinking, and if you have anything more to do for me, you must do it during the few remaining days of this week.'

"On Thursday he said, 'My work here is probably done—and oh that it had been better done! Yet I know that the great aim of my life has been to serve my Lord and Master. I have a strong belief that I shall be saved. I think I may say with Paul, "I have fought the good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith, and henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, will give me in that day." Christ is the Rock on which I rest. How can I doubt? I have often thought with pleasure of Bunyan's tall pilgrim, who, as he was crossing the Jordan, looked round on his comrade and said,

"Courage, brother: I feel the rock."

"On Friday morning, he was distinctly informed that his physician did not think he would recover, and when Mr. Baldwin, who had watched with him the night previous, came to take his leave, he said, 'I am sinking,' to which Mr. B. replied, 'Well, perhaps your work is done, the Lord only knows.' He added, 'Yes, my work is done, and on some accounts I rejoice. What is there worth living for?' He soon requested that he might be left alone with his wife, and commenced with calmness to deliver his dying commands; and as he could not converse long at a time, he repeated the request to be left alone with her several times during the day. Though weak and languid, his mind was vigorous and active, and nothing of importance in his affairs was overlooked. When he had finished giving directions about his temporal concerns, he rallied all the power of his mind to look into the state of his soul. He did not, at first, possess that clear evidence of a personal interest in the Redeemer that he desired, but he thought it was owing to the disease of his body. He said that perhaps he was deceived in regard to his interest in Christ. When he looked to the creature, he saw much imperfection and his hopes were obscured, but when he looked to Christ, all was bright; that there was an infinite fullness in Him, and notwithstanding all his sins, he hoped they were pardoned. At another time he said, 'I may be deceived about my personal salvation, but not about my loving the kingdom of Christ. I am not so clear in my views of Christ as my Saviour, as I could desire; but as to His kingdom, I have no doubt. If I love anything, I love His kingdom. I love to see it advance and to hear of its prosperity.' He then repeated the lines,

'I love Thy kingdom, Lord,' &c.

In the course of the day, he sent for his domestics (a man and woman, who had lived with him nineteen years) and said to them in the Hawaiian tongue, 'The physicians have just told me that I am about to die. Here is my dying charge to you. Take care of her (pointing to his wife); she will act as my successor; obey her as you have obeyed me.' As they sat weeping, he continued, 'Jesus Christ is the Rock on which to build our hopes of everlasting life. He is the immovable foundation. His blood cleanses from all sin. I have been a great sinner, but I think I am forgiven.' He told the man, who was not a professor of religion, that God required him to give Him his heart, and exhorted him to do it without delay. To the woman, who was a professor, he said, 'Follow me in the things in which I have followed Christ, but wherein I have departed from His example, do not follow me there.' He exhorted them both to seek religion as the great object of pursuit, and not to be eager after worldly gain, assuring them that nothing but an interest in Christ would sustain them in a dying hour. He said much to this effect, and sent a like message to the people of his charge on Kauai. 'I wish them all,' he said, 'men, women, and children, to meet me where Christ is.' At another time, he requested his dying, affectionate farewell to be given to all his flock, among whom he had labored and over whom he had been placed as a shepherd, to feed and guide them, naming with much tenderness various individuals.

"Being asked by his wife whether he had any message to send to his surviving brothers and sisters, and to his own dear children in America, he answered, 'Yes,' and lying for a few moments apparently in deep thought, he said, 'Those dear children of Mr. Chamberlain, remember me affectionately to them. I little thought, when I parted with them, that it would be the last time I should ever see them. Dear children!—how I love them!' He had lodged in Mr. Chamberlain's family, while at Honolulu, and had ever manifested a deep interest in his children. It would seem that the tender recollection of these dear little ones made him forget his own children, or perhaps he was exhausted by the effort he had made. On a subsequent occasion, however, he did send a message to his children in the United States, saying, 'Tell them to repent and serve the Lord, Jesus Christ, to give Him their hearts, and serve Him as long as they live. He is the sun and center of the universe. An interest in Him is worth infinitely more than all the wealth in the United States. I would not exchange my interest in Him for all the United States. Tell them not to seek after the world, its wealth and its vanities. The world can do them no good. It is a vain, deceitful world. Tell them to serve Christ, and all will be well.'

"On Saturday morning, when Mrs. Whitney came to his bedside and asked him how he was, he replied, 'The conflict is almost over.' Mr. Hunt, who stood by, said, 'Brother Whitney, you are going to meet many friends in heaven; you will leave some behind, but join more.' He replied, 'Christ will be there.' He often spoke of himself as a great sinner in the sight of God, but always seemed to feel that there was an infinite fullness in Christ. His blood could cleanse from all stain.

"On the same morning, I asked him, 'If it be the will of God now to take you hence, do you feel resigned to His will?' To which he replied, 'Yes. His time is the best. I am ready to go, though not so ready as I could wish. Still, I feel that the Saviour is with me, and though I walk through the valley and shadow of Death, I will fear no evil, for Thou art with me. Twenty-six years ago, when I consecrated myself to the work of mission, I felt courage in view of the Saviour's promise, "Lo, I am with you alway, even to the end of the world." This promise He has kept good. He has been with me in all my journey-with me amid all my labors, and joys, and sorrows, and temptations, and trials; and how can I doubt that He will be with me now? No, He will never desert me. He has ever been a precious Saviour to me, and now when all other props begin to fail, he is increasingly precious.' He then added, 'Our friendship, and that of our families, has been intimate and sweet. Many precious seasons have we had together. How pleasing the prospect that this friendship is soon to be renewed in heaven. It surely will be sweeter there.'

"In the evening, his wife said to him, 'I have often thought that you would outlive me, but you are about to go first and leave me behind.' He replied, '"Even so, Father, for so it seemeth good in Thy sight."' She added, she thought it would not be long before she should follow him, and hoped they should have a happy meeting in heaven. To which he replied, 'Watch unto prayer. What I say unto you, I say unto all, veatch.'

"Saturday night, the night previous to his death, the north-east storm, which had been blowing for several days, increased to a gale and filled the air with dense clouds of dust, which added much to his suffering. But within, all was calm and peaceful. He enquired how long I thought he would last. And being told that the doctor thought he might yet live thirty-six hours, he replied, 'I think I shall go before thirty-six hours have rolled round.' When informed that his physician had proposed to administer morphine to him, to calm his bowels and alleviate his pain, he earnestly objected, saying, 'Would he send me intoxicated to my Heavenly Father's arms? I want to go with a clear mind.'

"After midnight, as the storm was raging, he was told that the Sabbath had arrived. 'Blessed Sabbath,' he said, 'type of the rest above! Here it is dark and stormy; how sweet the contrast there! Peace and joy are there, and no pain, and there I will soon be. Yesterday I had some clouds, but now all clouds are brushed away. All is light and peace.'

"As he gradually failed, under the influence of his disorder, he at length thought he was dying, and calling one of his attendants to him, requested that he might be raised up. Then throwing his arms around him, he said with great emphasis, 'And is the victory won? Glory, glory, glory! Hail, glorious immortality! Can it be that this is death? That I, a poor wretch, who all my life have been afraid of death, have come to this? Here all is peace, and light, and joy. The Saviour has me by the hand, leading me along. I shall soon be in heaven.' His attendant remarked, 'There is a blessed assembly of friends there.' 'Yes,' he said, 'and more than all that, Fesus is there. He has never forsaken me—He is near-He is with me now.' He then lay down, much exhausted, but soon engaged in audible prayer and praise, the great subject of which was thanks to the Saviour for his wonderful love. His attendant, alluding to what he had said about Bunyan's tall pilgrim, said, 'Brother, you are now crossing Jordan-tell me, do you feel the Rock?' 'Yes,' he promptly replied, 'I am on it. Jesus Christ is the Rock.' Then, looking one of his attendants in the face, with a countenance beaming with affection and triumph, grasping his hand with one of his, and with the other pointing to heaven, he said, 'Jesus Christ is the brightest star in heaven. Look at that star, follow that star, and it will guide you safely amid the storms without and the storms within, amid the storms of life and the storms of death, and conduct you to a haven of everlasting rest. Neglect it, and you are lost! Iesus Christ is my hope, my life, my all.'

"In about an hour, he called me to him and said, 'Brother Alexander, tell the brethren for me, when you go to general meeting, to preach Christ, Christ Jesus, and Him crucified. This is all that will do us or our people any good. Tell all the brethren and sisters and the children of the mission, to cling to Christ. Tell the children of Punahou, and Mr. Chamberlain's children, and all the children, that you saw me die, and that I expected to go to heaven, and that I want them to love and obey Christ, that they may come there too.'

"Towards morning, on receiving some little attention, he said, 'How kind you all are! I am under great obligation to you all.' To which was replied, 'We esteem it a great privilege to take care of you, on your way to your Father's house,' when he said with much energy, '"Bless the Lord, oh my soul, and forget not all his benefits."'

"When suffering intense pain toward morning, he said, 'Oh this pain, this pain! But it is nothing to what my Saviour suffered for me.'

"On Sabbath morning, when Mrs. Whitney asked him how he had been during the night, he said, 'Death is fast finishing his work. I shall probably not be with you twenty-four hours longer. But Jesus is precious.'

"After getting relief from a severe fit of vomiting, he said, 'It is hard work to die. This close union of soul and body, which has so long existed, is hard to dissolve.' After which he prayed thus, 'O Saviour, precious Saviour, come quickly! Come and take me away from this world of sin! Come quickly!'

"He bid farewell to his native man, enjoining upon him to prepare to meet him in heaven, saying he wished all his domestics and all the people of his charge to meet him there, that he was going soon, and it had been his desire all night to depart and be with Christ.

"During the Sabbath, he suffered increasing pain, and was sometimes delirious, when his thoughts seemed like those of one dreaming. At such times, it was pleasing to find that, however incoherent his thoughts on other subjects, when reference was made to Jesus Christ, he rallied his powers, and all was clear.

"He waited all day with eager expectation of being allowed to depart and be with Christ. At one time he said, 'His chariot wheels are longer in coming than I had expected.' Being told that perhaps the Lord intended to try his patience a little longer, he said, 'It is all right—His time is best.'

"During the day, he often expressed his gratitude to those who were attending him, and would often add, 'God bless you.'

"He said at one time, 'Satan is trying to make me think that heaven is not a place for such a wretch as I am.' And after a pause, added,

"In my hand no price I bring, Simply to Thy cross I cling."

And who is there on earth or in hell, that can turn me from it? No one. Christ has promised that all whom the Father hath given him He will keep, and no one is able to pluck them out of His Father's hand.'

"In the afternoon, he remarked again, 'I had hoped to go to Jesus before the Sabbath was over, but I fear I shall be detained here. However, His time is the best.' One who stood by remarked, 'I think He will call you home before this Sabbath is ended.' To which he replied, 'All hail! Glory, glory, glory to God in the highest! Bless the Lord, bless the Lord, oh my soul, and forget not all His benefits! I want to enter the threshold, and see Jesus.'

"Soon after this, he repeated those words of our Saviour, 'In my Father's house are many mansions; if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you.' 'And why,' said he, 'would He have told them? Because He loved them. Now, He has never come back to say the room is all occupied. No—no such message has ever reached our fallen world. There are many mansions there. There is room there for me."

"When his physician, who had attended him with tender solicitude, went to bid him farewell, he grasped his hand and said, 'Doctor, Jesus Christ is the star of the universe; He is my hope, my life, my all. Thirty-six years ago I set my affections on Him, and nothing has ever made me swerve. Nothing can separate me from Him. The devil has tried to baffle me, but Jesus Christ is near to help me, Jesus Christ is here.' Then, looking him full in the face, still holding his hand in both of his, he asked, 'Doctor, do you love Jesus Christ?' He replied, 'I hope I do.' He then said, 'That's right; then I shall hope to meet you in heaven. God bless you, Doctor.'

"In the evening, he said to Mr. Emerson, 'Will you read that beautiful hymn, commencing,

"There is a fountain filled with blood."'

After he had read it, he requested him to pray with him. A few moments afterwards, he raised both hands and, in a clear, full voice, made a short prayer. He requested prayer to be offered several times during the evening. And several hymns, to which he was particularly attached, were sung.

"About an hour before his death, his wife went to his bedside, but as his sight seemed to have failed, he did not at first notice her; but when told who she was, he raised his arms, and clasped them around her neck, and pressed her to his bosom. She said, 'My dear, you have got almost over Jordan; do you feel the Rock firm beneath you?' He replied, 'Yes; I have no doubt on that point.' She continued, 'Is Jesus precious to your soul?' He answered, 'Yes.'

"Two or three times before he died, he raised his arms, as if to embrace his Saviour, and repeated with warmth,

"Jesus, lover of my soul, Let me to Thy bosom fly."

A little while before he bid adieu to earth, Mr. Emerson came in, and surprised at finding him still living, asked him, 'My dear brother, are you yet in the flesh?' To which he replied, 'O yes.' Mr. E. continued, 'Do you still find Christ precious to your soul?' He confidently and promptly replied, 'Yes; He is precious.' These were his last words. In a few moments, he turned over on his left side, and one hour and a quarter after the earthly Sabbath had rolled around, he sweetly breathed his last, without a struggle or a groan, and entered into the enjoyment of his Lord, which he had so earnestly desired.

"Well may we say, 'God is our Rock and Strength, a very present

Help in time of trouble.'

"We cannot mourn for him. Let us rather praise God, who made him to triumph, through our Lord, Jesus Christ—and let us take courage from it to cling to the Rock of our salvation.

"Our departed friend and brother was blessed with a robust constitution and generally enjoyed good health, which enabled him so constantly to perform the great amount of labor which he kept up during more than a quarter of a century.

"He also possessed a strong intellect, a well-balanced mind, and a sound judgment, united with firmness of purpose. He never engaged in visionary schemes; his projects were generally wise and well-digested, and with steadiness of purpose carried into execution.

"He had a warm heart. His friendship was ardent. He was a whole soul man. In whatever he engaged, all his energies were summoned. What his hands found to do, he did with all his might. No trait in his character was more prominent than that of enlarged benevolence-a benevolence bounded only by his ability to confer happiness. It was this that prompted him to abandon friends and country, and all the blessings of Christian society, and cast in his lot with a little band, who purposed to carry the Gospel of Jesus to the darkened savages of Hawaii. It was this which led him so often to strip himself of comforts and bestow them on his friends whom he thought more needy than himself. Few have become acquainted with him, who have not received substantial tokens of his kindness and friendship. Most of the permanent houses of public worship on the islands contain a deposit from his benevolence. Few have been found more ready than he, to deny themselves, in order to do good to He embarked in the missionary work as a work of self-denial, and cheerfully adopted the resolution that he would engage in no business for the purpose of private gain. His whole life was an illustration of this resolution, and on his dying bed he charged his wife, saying, 'You will remember, we own nothing at Waimea. The house, herd, &c., are, all, the property of the American Board.' His treasures were amassed where moth and rust do not corrupt, and where thieves do not break through and steal. There he set his affections, and thither his aspirations ascended to the last.

"Confidence in God sustained him amid all the trials through which he passed. He was calm and unmoved, however dark the clouds that overhung the horizon. This confidence was the legitimate fruit of walking with God. He told his daughter, on his dying bed, that from the time that he first covenanted to be the Lord's, he had never, for a single day, neglected prayer. That God whom he had honored in secret, rewarded him openly, and took him up from us in triumph to His rest above.

"While we mourn his loss to his family and to the church, we would rejoice in his blessed triumph, and would gather encouragement from his victory to banish the fear of death and trust in the same almighty hand that gently led him across the Jordan, hoping that we too shall come off more than conquerors through Him that hath loved us and given Himself for us. Let us, therefore, follow in the bright path which he trod; and ere long, we too shall win the victory.

"'Mark the perfect man and behold the upright; for the end of that man is peace.''

1246	VI. James Lewis Whitney, b. in Newtown, Conn., 23 May 1789; a blacksmith; married Maria Cass; settled at Watkins, N. Y., where they died and were buried.	4100
1247	VII. Sarah Whitney, b. in Newtown, Conn., 23 Aug. 1790; married in 1810, at Newtown, Amason Washburn, a blacksmith and farmer, who was born in Newtown, 21 May 1789, son of Zenas and Dinah Ann (Botsford) Washburn, of Hanover, Conn. They settled in Newtown, and after the birth of two children, removed to Southbury, Conn., and thence, in 1819, to Vermilion, Ohio, settling in the virgin forest and cutting out a home. There she died, 13 Ap. 1859, and was buried in Maple Grove Cemetery. He married (2d), 22 Oct. 1860, in Huron, Ohio, Mary Ann Rose, widow of John Hunter. They were still living in Vermilion, in Sept. 1874. He was twice in service in the war of 1812, at New Haven, and New London, Conn. The Firelands Pioncer, Vol. I, p. 43, says that he "possessed a vigorous constitution, and by persevering industry and frugality, and the good luck of locating on an iron-bed, obtained a competence."	4103
1248	VIII. Philo Whitney, b. in Newtown, Conn., 27 Ap. 1792; a black-smith and farmer; married, I Oct. 1815, in Newtown, by Rev. Daniel Burhans, Episcopal, to Jerusha Wheeler, who was born in Newtown, 16 Oct. 1796, dau. of Abram and Marcia (Botsford) Wheeler. They settled in Newtown, where she died of fever, 21 Sept. 1829, and was buried in the Newtown Cemetery. He was married (2d), 14 Dec. 1829, at Newtown, by Rev. Daniel Burhans, Rector of Trinity Church at Newtown, to Aurelia Wheeler, who was born in Newtown, 23 July 1792, sister of his first wife. He was accidentally and instantly killed, 6 Ap. 1830, by a fracture of the skull, and was buried in the Newtown Cemetery. His widow was still living, in September 1874, with her step-daughter, Mrs. Emily (Whitney) Fairchild, in Newtown; having married (2d), 11 June 1837, Benjamin Curtis Glover, and (3d), 15 Jan. 1845, Zachariah Clark.	4112
1249	IX. Ezra Whitney, b. in Newtown, Conn., 18 Sept. 1793; married, and had children; "lived in York State," and is said to have died in Danby, Tompkins Co. Another story says that he lived and died in Enfield, N. Y.; and a third, that he died and was buried in Newfield, N. Y. Probably the last is true.	4120

1251	XI. Ethiel Whitney, b. in Newtown, Conn., 6 May 1796, his name on the town-record being Eathel, while the most common form given by his family is Eathiel; a blacksmith and farmer; went, at eighteen years of age, to live in Southbury, Conn.; thence, in 1819, to Hector, N. Y., where he married, 29 March 1823, Elizabeth Leonard, who was born in "Charlotte," probably a former local name for some part of Davenport, N. Y., 23 Dec. 1803, dau. of Benjamin and Effie (Berget) Leonard. They lived in Covert, N. Y., in 1824; moved across the lake to Genoa, early in 1825; thence, in 1826, to Danby, N. Y.; and, in 1832, to Spencer, N. Y., where they lived till 1837. They then moved to Cannon, Mich., which was their home till 1865, when, having become nearly blind and quite deaf, he gave up business, and lived with his son, Zerah Whitney, in Plainfield, Mich., where they were living in Oct. 1873. He served in the war of 1812.	4130
1252	XII. Abel Whitney, b. in Newtown, Conn., 23 Sept. 1797; a black-smith; married, I Oct. 1821, at her father's house in Bridgewater, Conn., by Rev. Abner Brundage, pastor of the Congregational Church in Brookfield, Conn., to Elvira Tryphosa Beecher, who was born in Bridgewater, 28 March 1802, dau. of Raphael and Hannah (Ruggles) Beecher. They lived in Newtown (where he was an assessor, in 1847) till 7 May 1849, and then moved to Wakeman, Ohio, where they were living in Sept. 1875.	4136

VII. Laura Hyde, b. at Sharon, Conn., 22 March 1786; married at Auburn, N. Y., in 1802, Daniel Kellogg, a lawyer, son of Samuel Kellogg, of Williamstown, Mass., where he was born, 19 Ap. 1780. He was a student in Williams College for about two years; and studied law with Abraham Van Vechten, Esq., of Albany, N. Y., where he was admitted to practice in Oct. 1800. He settled in Auburn, N. Y., in the Spring of 1801; and moved, in the Spring of 1803, to Skaneateles, N. Y., where he resided till his death, 4 May 1836. Clark's Onondaga, pp. 301 to 305, contains, besides an engraved portrait of Mr. Kellogg, a sketch of his life, by Phares Gould, Esq., from which the following is taken: "Though always taking a lively interest in important public questions, he never sought political preferment; yet, besides holding several offices of minor consideration, he was appointed, in 1813, to that of District Attorney for the counties of Cayuga, Chenango, Cortland and Onondaga; the duties of which he discharged, with characteristic ability, for three years.

"In 1818, he was elected to the Presidency of the Bank of Auburn, which station he held at the time of his death. For eighteen years, he had the principal direction of the financial affairs of the bank, which he found in a state of almost inextricable confusion. His talents and habits of business were admirably suited to the duties of the station; and he soon succeeded in restoring its affairs to order, and in establishing its credit on a sure and enduring basis. His mind, clear and comprehensive—tenacious of its convictions, and only yielding to the force of reason—profound rather than brilliant, was never satisfied short of the most thorough and searching scrutiny. To a mind thus constituted, he added habits of untiring industry, a love of order, observable in the minutest details, and an integrity almost proverbial. Such qualifications could not fail to raise him to the first rank in his profession, to secure him an unlimited measure of public confidence, and consequently a large and lucrative practice.

"His death, occurring as it did at an age when his mental powers were still in full vigor, and when many years of active usefulness might have been reasonably anticipated, was regarded as a public calamity; especially by business men, who knew and could best appreciate his worth.

"In person, Mr. Kellogg was rather above the common height, well formed and imposing, as well as prepossessing in his appearance and address; which was uniformly courteous and engaging. These, together with an open and intellectual countenance, and a disposition always

They moved, in 1801, to Cazenovia, N.Y.; and thence, in 1804, to Apulia, N. Y., where he had a large country trade, sending potash and grain to Albany by waggons, which returned with his goods. In 1811, he moved to Ludlowville, where he extended his business, owning several farms, and a controlling interest in five mercantile firms in that neighborhood. In the Autumn of 1825, he moved to St. Catharine's, C. W., where his energy, foresight, and public spirit were felt in every interest of the town. He dwelt at Centreville, in Grantham, from 17 June 1826 till 1829, and then returned to St. Catharine's. He took large contracts for the construction of the Welland Canal, at Deep Cut and St. Catharine's. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church, and contributed liberally for its support, wherever he lived, building the First Presbyterian Church at St. Catharine's, almost unaided. In 1851 he visited his native town, and the home of his early manhood; and, at Green River, made this note in his memorandumbook, which we quote, as affording some insight into his character: "Here, on the top of the mountain, near my father's place, on the 19th of August, 1799, the very spot where I now stand, did God open my eyes to behold the glory of the Lamb. Fifty-one years afterward, last August, here I bowed in prayer and praise to God, for plucking me as a brand from the burning. And here again, on this 23d April, 1851, have I bowed the knee in prayer and praise that His love and grace are still the same." He died at the residence of his son, Oliver Seymour Phelps, at Cayuga, Grand River, C. W., 4 May 1851. He was buried at St. Catharine's, and the sermon preached at his funeral, 7 May 1851, by Rev. Joshua Cooke, entitled The Lessons of Death, was published.	4317

1412	I. Stephen James, b. at Stamford, Conn., 8 Aug. 1767; a cooper; went, when a youth, to Stockbridge, Mass., on account of the breaking up of his father's household in the Revolutionary War; moved to St. John, N. B., after he was twenty-one years old, dwelling there three years, and afterward returning to the United States; married in 1794, at Stamford, Hannah Scofield; and moved, in 1796, to Stockbridge, where she joined the Congregational Church in 1800, and died, 8 May 1811, aged 43. He joined the church at Stockbridge in 1786, and was one of its deacons from 1812 till 25 Jan. 1819, at which date he was dismissed, to form a new church at Brownhelm, Ohio, where he and his children had settled, 4 July 1817, they being the first family in that town. There he married (2d), in Oct. 1828, Rhoda Butler, of Hartford, Conn., who died at Brownhelm, 8 Nov. 1852, aged 80 years, 10 months, and 25 days, and was buried there. He was commissioned lieutenant, in 4th Reg., Mass. Militia, 11 Aug. 1796; captain, in 2d Reg., 23 June 1800; major, of 2d Reg., 16 May 1804; lieutcol., of 2d Reg., 2 Sept. 1805; and resigned 27 Jan. 1807. He died, 11 Sept. 1841, at Brownhelm, and was buried there. An obituary notice says: "He was first elected to the office of Deacon in the church of the Rev. Dr. West, of Stockbridge, Mass. This office he sustained, with great credit to himself, and equal satisfaction of the church and congregation. Possessed of a strong mind and active piety, as well as a peculiar capacity to adapt himself to the circumstances of the poor, the sick, and afflicted; his visits, in the proper exercise of his office, became frequent among them, and always acceptable. In this respect, as well as others, he became a most efficient helper of his venerable Pastor. "In 1817, he emigrated to Brownhelm, with a colony whose religious character, like his own, had been formed under the able ministrations of Dr. West. "Without a spiritual guide in the wilderness, he led the devotions of	4591:

	the little band, with whom he had emigrated, and regularly sustained a reading meeting on the Sabbath in connexion with his brethren, until they were blessed with the stated ministry of the word. "He exercised here, too, the office of Deacon in the infant church in Brownhelm, with all his former acceptance. In the absence of clerical assistance, his labors were sought and equally acceptable to neighboring settlements. "These services, with the natural force of his character, made him venerated in the colony by the early settlers and their children. His name and memory are interwoven with the cherished recollections of the early history of Brownhelm."

dwelt the rest of his life, and followed the business of cabinet-making. He died in Scotland, 17 Sept. 1873, in his 85th year, and was buried in the Baptist Cemetery in that village.

An obituary notice of him says: "Mr. Whitney was of a highly moral turn of mind, and his life has been very exemplary. He had a highly social temperament, and his extensive reading, close observation, and accurate memory, rendered his company very desirable. Politically, he was a reformer, and in the great questions affecting the progress of this young country, he took a deep interest, and bore an active part. In the year 1845, he made a public profession of religion, and was baptized by the Revd. Mr. Porter, into the fellowship of the Scotland R. B. Church, of which he continued an honoured and useful member. His piety was deep and earnest, showing itself in his every-day life, as well as in his words. His last illness was short, but very severe. It was borne with great patience and resignation. His funeral was largely attended by all classes of the community. The Revd. Mr. Hay, of the Congregational Church, opened the service; the sermon was preached by his pastor, the Revd. Mr. Griffin; and his remains were deposited in the grave, in sure and certain hope of a blissful resurrection."

Jan. 1788, son of Daniel¹ and Anna Lewis (Phillips²) Phœnix. They dwelt at 18 State St., New York; and there he died, 4 May 1859, and was buried in the cemetery of the First Presbyterian Church at Morristown, N. J. She removed, the next year, to 22 West 23rd St., New York, where she dwelt until her death, passing the Summer months at her country-seat, "Glenwood," near Hudson, N. Y. She died, 5 April 1876, deeply lamented for the singular gentleness, purity, and tenderness of her character. Her remains were interred in the Whitney chapel at Greenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Phœnix was elected alderman of the First Ward in 1838 and 1839; was the Whig candidate for the mayoralty in 1840, '42 and '47; was one of the electors for President and Vice-President of the United States in 1840: was appointed a commissioner of the Croton Aqueduct Works in 1842; was elected a member of Congress, for the 3d Congressional District, in 1842 and 1848; was chairman of the Whig General Committee in 1846 and 1847; was a member of the legislature of the State of New York in 1847; and was appointed, in 1849, one of the governors of the Alms House, N. Y.

The following obituary notice appeared in the editorial columns of the

New York Commercial Advertiser:

"The subject of our notice entered actively upon the stirring scenes of commercial life, in which he became eminently successful. As a merchant, Mr. Phænix acquired the confidence of his associates to a remarkable extent, and became a prominent member of many of the commercial institutions of the city.3

"Having retired from commercial life, he entered upon the field of politics, and was elected, for several years, a member of the City Council from the 1st Ward-then the most important and wealthy ward of the city. He was afterwards, on three different occasions, nominated by the Whig party for the Mayoralty, but was defeated by a small majority. 4 of this city with great ability, as chairman of the Committee of Commerce. He succeeded in passing a bill which extended the detention laws to the Canada trade, though it had been unsuccessfully attempted for 20 years. He also introduced and advocated the warehouse bill, which has proved of great advantage to the commerce of this city.

"He also ably defended the bill to establish a branch mint in New York; and upon his return, the Chamber of Commerce voted him their thanks for his able efforts. He was nominated for the 30th Congress, but lost his election by 49 votes. In the following year (1847), he represented the city in the State legislature, and in 1849 was again sent to Congress.

1896	I. Lewis Le Crand Whitney, b. in Norwalk, Conn., 24 Oct. 1811; married in Stamford, Conn., by Rev. Daniel Smith, Congregational, 6 Jan. 1839, to Rebecca Webb, born at Stamford, 11 Feb. 1803, dau. of Ebenezer and Phebe (Todd) Webb, of Stamford, and widow of William Knapp, of Fairfield, Conn. She died at Stamford, 21 Feb. 1868, and was buried in Northfield Cemetery, in Stamford, near her first husband. When twenty-one years old, he began to prepare for the ministry, but his health failed before he had finished his sophomore year at college, in 1837; after which he taught school for several years, and, since 1848, was mostly engaged as a bookkeeper and cashier—four years in New York City, and the rest of the time in Stamford, Conn. While at Middletown, Conn., 5 Nov. 1873, he was stricken with paralysis, which rendered him entirely helpless. He returned to his home in Stamford, where he fell senseless from his chair, while reading the Bible, 28 June 1876, and died three hours later. He was a most worthy and excellent man, of rare integrity and sense of honor, and has left a precious memory. He was greatly interested in the progress of this work, and generously placed at the disposal of the author a partial record of the descendants of his great-grandparents, David and Elizabeth (Hyatt) Whitney, which was begun by his father and greatly enlarged by himself.	20

Republican Town Committee for this town, and his energy and zeal added greatly to its influence and power. For many years past, he was the Government Customs Inspector for this port, and was also a Registrar of Elections. Earnest though he was and tenacious of his political preferences, no opponent ever had cause to complain of the least unfairness or desire to deviate from the strict line of right. His mind was cast in a strictly Puritanic mould, and his probity, candor, and integrity were never questioned. The stores in the Borough were closed one hour as a token of the respect and esteem in which he was held by our business men." His family were living in Norwalk, in Jan. 1875.

III. Charles William Walton, b. in Norwalk, Conn., 19 June 1843; an insurance clerk; married, 8 June 1868, at the residence of her parents, 72 South 2d Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., by Rev. Alfred H. Partridge, rector of Christ Church, Brooklyn, assisted by Rev. Legh R. Dickinson, rector of Christ Church, Ridgewood, N. J., to Anna Eliza Beck, who was born at 109 Monroe Street, New York, 28 March 1846, dau. of Peter Stephen and Eliza (Clark) Beck. They settled in Brooklyn, and were living there in June 1877. He was then a clerk in the office of the Sun Mutual Insurance Company, 1 Nassau Street, New York.

He enlisted, 19 Sept. 1861, in Co. B, 51st Reg., N. Y. S. Vols.; and was promoted, second lieutenant, 29 Sept. 1862, on the recommendation of the officers of his regiment. He took part in the battles of Roanoke, and Newbern, N. C., Sulphur Springs, Bull Run, and Chantilly, Va., South Mountain, and Antietam, Md .- in the last of which he was severely wounded in the head. As soon as strong enough, he was sent to Frederick City, thence to Washington, and, after a few days, was allowed to go home, in care of his brother Edward. Before his wound was healed, he rejoined his regiment (making special efforts to do so, as a battle was expected) just in time to participate in the battle of Fredericksburgh, in which he was unhurt, though five bullets went through his clothes, and by the wounding of his captain, he was left in command of the company. At the request of his colonel, Gov. Seymour sent him a commission, with rank from 14 March 1863, as first lieutenant in the 51st Regiment, for bravery displayed on the battle-field of Fredericksburgh. He was then in his twentieth year, and the youngest officer in the whole Corps. In the Spring of 1863, the 9th Corps were in Kentucky; and by a special order he was assigned duty on the staff of Gen. Potter, who commanded the Second Division of the Corps, which was then sent to assist in the siege of Vicksburg. On the night after the surrender, Gen. Sherman was sent with three Corps, including the 9th, to follow the remnant of the rebel army, who were fortifying Jackson, Miss.; and Lieut. Walton was, at the request of Gen. Parke, commanding the 9th Corps, temporarily assigned to his staff, and, during the remainder of the campaign, was entrusted with all verbal orders and messages passing between Gen. Sherman and the Corps commander. In October he returned to the staff of the Second Division, then commanded by Gen. Hartranft; and when, at his own request, 3 Jan. 1864, he was relieved from staff duty and ordered to report to the commanding officer of his regiment, in New York, Gen. Hartranft took occasion to compliment him as follows: "The General commanding acknowledges, with gratification, the valuable services of Lieut. Walton. while serving as Aide, and takes particular pleasure in mentioning his handsome behavior at the battle of Campbell's Station, and during the siege of Knoxville." After his regiment had recruited in New York, they rejoined the 9th Corps, in East Tennessee; and, finding that it had just been ordered east to join the Army of the Potomac, he returned to the rendezvous, at Annapolis, Md., where he received a commission as captain of his Company, with rank from 19 March 1864. After a forced march to Washington, thence to Alexandria, and Fairfax Court-House, they joined the Army of the Potomac the second time, the night before the Battle of the Wilderness. Col. Bliss, having just been placed in command of the Brigade, hearing of Capt. Walton's former experience as a staff-officer, sent for him as his senior Aide; and, for fifteen hours, he he was in the saddle, carrying orders and assisting in forming new lines during that long and bloody conflict.

He remained on the staff for a few days, till relieved at his own request, that he might give his attention to his own Company. After this, he took part in the battles of Spottsylvania, 12 and 18 May 1864; South Anna, 27 May; Tallapotamy Creek, 3 June; and Cold Harbor, 7 June; after which came the flank movement across the James, and the march on Petersburg. He took part in a battle about a mile from that city, 17 June 1864; and on his twenty-first birthday, 19 June 1864, he, with forty picked men, under a severe fire from the Rebel sharp-shooters, marked out, and held a line, on the crest of a high hill leading to the front picket-line, which was soon developed into the well-known covered way, which at different times, during two months, served as a shelter for more than thirty thousand soldiers. He also took part, with the 9th Corps, in the charge on Cemetery Hill, after the great mine was sprung, 30 July 1864; and in the battle of Poplar Grove Church, 30 Sept. 1864, during the flank movement on Lee's army. The death of his brother led Capt. Walton to resign, and he was mustered out of service 6 Oct. 1864.

This gentleman has shown a most kindly and intelligent interest in the progress of this work, and has contributed to it an admirably full and accurate account of his own family and his immediate relatives on the Whitney side.
